The President to I. N. S.
No News in This.
What Is Heaven? He Knows.
Deadly Gas Guards Gold.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN 1909 William Randolph Hearst established the International News Service, a world-wide news-collecting agency, designed to make his many publications independent, if necessary, of all other news agencies.

This year International News Service celebrates its 25th anniversary, congratulating itself, with good reason, on many brilliant accomplishments. President Roosevelt writes to Joseph V. Connolly, president of International News, a letter of congratulations, most gratifying to the young men who have worked hard to make of International News the greatest news agency in the world.

ONE PARAGRAPH in the President's letter is important to all Americans, settling, so far as the President's term of service is concerned, the question as to continued freedom of the press.

President Roosevelt writes:

"I do not believe it would be amiss for me to say that I personally find high satisfaction in the knowledge that it is possible in this land of ours for anyone to establish a news service and to enjoy the freedom of operation guaranteed by our fathers, and which, I am glad to say, still prevails. I am glad, too, that our government never has seen fit to subsidize a newspaper or a news service, and I dare to make the prediction that it never will."

That settles, for the present, one important question. The government will not subsidize, nor will it seem to control, any newspaper or news service.

President Roosevelt's character and antecedents would make any other message on the subject from him impossible.

"DILLINGER GUNS blast way out of trap. U. S. officers hot on heels of desperado. Two killed in attempt to capture gang in North Woods hideout. Outlaws slip out back door of resort."

THAT NO LONGER is news. If police officers should meet Dillinger, and not have their revolvers and bullet-proof vests taken from them, that would be news.

AFTER THEIR latest interview with John Dillinger, the officials had to show for their efforts one officer, one outsider killed. They also had three young lady friends of the desperado, who came "choking and gasping" out of an inn when government agents threw in gas bombs.

"FOUR FLEE from Indiana prison. Three serving terms for murder among cell-breakers."

THAT IS NOT news either. The system of justice that catches criminals and lets them go, can't build a jail to hold them, is now generally accepted as a farce.

We build zoological garden cages that hold elephants, rhinoceroses, lions, tigers, bears. They don't escape. But that is easily explained. Rhinoceroses and elephants don't know how to bribe keepers. The "heroic Dillinger" did not escape with the aid of a toy wooden pistol. It is charged that he was aided in his dash for liberty by the use of hard cash. No heroism about that.

AT BLACKWELL, Okla., the Rev. Dr. Pool, 60, retired Methodist minister, returned to the pulpit to preach a revival sermon. Raising his eyes, he asked: "What is Heaven like?" fell, and died of a heart attack. His question, doubtless, was answered within the minute.

Many would like to know the answer. Human beings have answered that question in ten thousand ways, each answer reflecting some human idea of happiness. The Oriental Heaven, which Christians inherit, impresses modern minds as a magnificent piece of jewelry, with interesting, strange animals, but nothing much happening.

THE RED INDIAN Heaven, with bisons and bears to kill, seems more exciting. The Mohammedan Heaven, where ladies with bodies of solid musk confer happiness on the Mohammedans, all thirty feet tall, is not particularly attractive to a family man. And the Buddhist "Nirvana," where you simply enter into nothingness, seems not worth working for.

The average American will hope that Heaven offers opportunities for work, struggle, even for competition, with all respect for NRA, and some opportunity for a "go-getter" to prove his quality.

IN DECEMBER, Uncle Sam will have finished building a new, huge "burglar-proof" vault, big enough to hold all his gold, besides piles of silver and other valuables. The vault doors, of the toughest metal, thirty inches thick, are not the only protection. If a burglar succeeded in getting half way through the metal door, he would release a cloud of deadly gas, in which he would die in horrible agony.

There is an opportunity for John Dillinger.

LORD TENNYSON'S curlews, flying over Locksley Hall, were fortunate birds, living and flying in days before electric wiring.

In West Palm Beach, Florida, four curlews coming in contact with a high tension wire caught fire, and, with the feathers burning, landed on dry grass, and started a blaze that threatened the southern part of the

Davis Boy Faces Slain Man's Mother

DEATH STORY TOLD TO JURY

Schoolboy's Defense Scores in Trial For Murder

Fighting back the tears, Herbert Brantlinger's gray-haired mother took the witness stand in Criminal Court today to testify against young Tom Davis, the high school boy accused of murdering her son.

The pale-faced defendant shifted uneasily in his chair as the plump, bespectacled mother of the slain state highway patrolman followed her husband, F. H. Brantlinger, to the stand.

The parents told of burying their son in Blairsville, of being notified that he had been shot dead by a bandit he surprised at the Melrose filling station near Bridgeville one night last September.

BOY'S FATHER PRESENT

Listening intently to their testimony was Thomas A. Davis, Sr., former justice of the peace of Banksville, chewing nervously on a match. He believes his son is innocent.

The defense scored with the testimony of the first important state witness, Dr. S. E. McGarvey, of Bridgeville, who treated the dying patrolman.

On cross-examination Dr. McGarvey testified:

"He (Brantlinger) said there were two men in the car."

Chief of Police John A. Maoli, of Bridgeville, and B. D. McCracken, a private detective, of Bridgeville, supported this testimony.

John Funk, ballistic expert for the state police, was also put on the witness stand and said under cross-examination that the bullet which killed Brantlinger had mushroomed so much that it was

'Tragic Comedian's' Wife Wins Divorce

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—(AP.)—Benny Rubin was described by his wife as a "comedian on the stage but a tragedian at home." The Superior Court granted her a divorce yesterday. Mrs. Rubin, once in the movies under the name of Mary O'Brien, said:

"He called me names. He said he wished I would leave him and that if I did not he would throw me out."

Fast Train Crashes On First Run, 1 Dead

ALLENTOWN, April 24.—(AP.)—One man was killed and another injured as a Lehigh Valley Railroad express freight train, on its maiden run, plunged from the rails at Bowmanstown early today.

The engineer, Charles Remaley, of Leighton, was pinned beneath the cab as the locomotive overturned on a curve. Harold Brown, fireman, was scalded but not seriously.

'I Never Can Love Anyone But You,' Dickens Wrote, Begging Note of Maria

In yesterday's installment of Charles Dickens' love letters to Maria Beadnell, his boyhood sweetheart, he was revealed to be in the throes of a quarrel with her, apparently precipitated by Mary Anne Leigh, a girl friend of both. Apparently Miss Leigh, envious of Maria, wanted Dickens for herself and told tales to Maria that caused a rift between the young lovers. The sarcastic letter Dickens wrote to Miss Leigh and the letter he wrote to Maria about the same time are presented in today's installment.

By H. H. HARPER

YOUNG CHARLES DICKENS was certainly of the opinion that Marianne Leigh, often called Mary Anne, plotted to break up the love affair between himself and Maria Beadnell. Her apparent object was to win Dickens for herself.

And so he wrote Marianne a masterpiece of studied sarcasm. Perhaps it was more cruel than she deserved, but the reader must remember that it was intended for the eyes of Maria, as well as those of Marianne. It read:

Dear Miss Leigh:

I am very happy to avail myself of the opportunity of inclosing your Album (which I regret to say, want of a Moment's time has quite prevented me writing in). To say a very few words relative to an observation made by you the other day to one of the Miss Beadnells I believe—and which has only, I regret to say, just reached my ears quite accidentally.

I should not have noticed it at all were it merely an idle gossiping remark, for one is necessarily compelled to hear so many of them and they are usually so trifling and so ridiculous that it w'd be mere waste of time to notice them in any way.

The remark to which I allude, however, is one which, if it had the slightest foundation in truth—w'd so strongly tend to implicate me as a dishonorable babbler, with little heart and less head, that in justice to myself I cannot refrain from adverting to it.

You will at once perceive I allude to your giving them to understand (if not directly, by implication) that I had made you my confidante, with respect to anything which (may) have passed between Maria B. and myself. Now passing over any remark which may have been artfully elic-

TROLLEYMEN REJECT 3c PAY BOOST

New 2-Year Contract Voted Down; Speed Schedules Blamed

Employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company have rejected a new two-year contract calling for a wage increase of three cents an hour, a count of the balloting showed today.

Of the 1,011 street car men who voted last night and today only 30 voted for the new contract while 981 voted against it.

The men's opposition is understood to have centered on the speed-up schedules for operation of the cars.

Michael Garvey, president of Division No. 85, Street Car Men's Union, announced the vote. He said new negotiations with the company would be started tomorrow.

The present contract expires May 1.

YEAR SENTENCE IN BAN BOX 'FIX'

A convicted defendant in the Ban Box bombing jury tampering case failed today to take advantage of an offer of leniency from District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

As a result, Charles J. Chancel, of Tarentum, convicted this morning by a jury, was sentenced to a year in the workhouse, plus a fine of $50, the maximum.

After the jury had read its verdict, Park asked Visiting Judge Thomas F. Bailey if he might question Chancel. He told the defendant that if he would reveal who induced him to visit the McKeesport home of Mrs. Mary Breick, juror, during the bombing trial of Joe Rosa, he would ask the court to extend leniency.

Chancel replied that he had been in McKeesport "by accident" and did not know the woman he accompanied to Mrs. Breick's home. Chancel's attorney filed notice of appeal.

Comedian Obtains 'Cruelty' Divorce

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—(AP.)—Ken Murray, comedian of stage and screen, today obtained a divorce from Charlotte Doncourt—their private life name being Doncourt—on charges of cruelty.

The actor testified his wife had refused to make a home for him, told him she did not love him and threatened to make his life "a living hell" unless he gave her $50,000.

FORBES FIELD, April 24.—A crowd of more than 15,000 turned out here this afternoon to see the Pittsburgh Pirates open their local National League season with the St. Louis Cardinals as their attraction. Aside from the tossing of the first ball by Mayor William N. McNair and the parade to the flag-pole of both teams behind Danny Nirella's band, the opening game was devoid of the usual frills marking inaugural day.

Mayor McNair issued an order that excused practically every city employe from duty that they might attend the game.

After tossing out the first ball, the Mayor announced he would rush back to his office and take "complete" charge of all city affairs.

The Mayor's order to department heads told them to excuse every employe who could possibly be spared. Then he explained:

"I told the elevator dispatcher I was coming back to my office immediately after throwing out the first ball and for him to tell the telephone operators to switch all calls to my office."

The Mayor expected a busy afternoon, answering telephones, if doing little else.

The Pirates will play 22 games at Forbes Field before departing on their first eastern trip. The first Sunday game will be played next Sunday with the Cincinnati Reds as the attraction.

Cuban Chief Hurt By Bomb Lighter

HAVANA, April 24.—(AP.)—Col. Fulgencio Batista, who has emerged unscathed from many a bitter battle, suffered a slight injury to his right hand, unconfirmed reports said today, when a small cigaret lighter—loaded with gunpowder—exploded.

The lighter, sent to the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army through the mail, was said to have exploded as he was examining it.

Bingham Praises Wales at Banquet

LONDON, April 24.—(INS.)—High tribute to the Prince of Wales was paid by American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham at an annual St. George's Day banquet last night. Bingham said:

"Outside of my own countrymen, there is no one who has more admirers and more friends within my country than his royal highness."

Insull Gets Note, Sender Kept Secret

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, April 24.—(INS.)—Samuel Insull received a cablegram today—from whom he declined to say—which apparently affected him deeply. He displayed emotion for the first time during his extradition voyage back to the United States.

GANG HUNTED OVER WIDE AREA AFTER GETAWAY

Twin Cities Hideout Suspected; Officer Shot By Five

Developments today in the nation-wide hunt for John Dillinger, the "phantom gunman," included:

1—A cordon of police was thrown around Minneapolis and St. Paul as officers prepared to search for the gang responsible for the deaths of two men and wounding of three others in their wild flight from Northern Wisconsin.

2—Gunmen speeding in an automobile resembling the one in which Dillinger is believed to have escaped shot down a motorcycle patrolman in Bartlett, Ill., a suburb of Chicago.

3—Mobsters were reported seen in Milwaukee and Park Falls, Wis., indicating that Dillinger and his pals had eluded the manhunt centered about the north woods.

4—The killer was reported, in a broadcast by the Ohio State Highway Patrol, to have been seen at Muncie, Ind., headed toward Ohio.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 24.—Federal agents and police today were reorganizing their forces for a most systematic hunt for John Dillinger, "phantom gunman" of the Middle West, after a hectic night of dashing from place to place running down false reports of his location.

With a cordon of steel around the Twin Cities designed to keep the killer and his associates fenced in, the officers were preparing to search each section of this city and Minneapolis for the gang that killed two men and wounded three others in their wild flight from northern Wisconsin.

DILLINGER RECOGNIZED

Definitely recognized as he entered this area, Dillinger and two accomplices for the second time in 24 hours eluded the law, although police are convinced that one of the "mob" was hit by

Two London Dailies Ask About Dillinger

ST. PAUL, April 24.—(AP.)—Two trans-Atlantic telephone calls from London newspapers, interested in the serach for the desperado, John Dillinger, have been received by Police Chief Thomas Dahill.

The Evening News said:

"It quite an interesting story over here."

Sister of Bandit Released on Bail

Two Boys Seized In Stolen Machine

Two boys, 14 and 16, were arrested driving a stolen auto in Beechwood boulevard today, the police reported. The car had been stolen from A. G. Kern, of Monitor street.

BANKER SHOOTS BANDIT, 2 FLEE

ROUND LAKE, Ill., April 24.—(AP.)—Three robbers came gunning for bank money today, but they left hurriedly without it—two in a shower of bullets and one in an ambulance.

A quick-shooting banker, a swarm of vigilantes and a barrage of lead and garden tools sent them packing.

At 9:30 a. m., leaving one man at the wheel of their coach, the pair marched up to the cage and asked E. C. Weber, the bank president, for a job. Then, suddenly, one announced:

"This is a stickup!"

Weber retorted:

"The hell it is!"

He reached for his shooting iron.

A bullet dropped one robber as he raced for cover toward a lumber yard. William Luebe, dressing up his garden nearby, grabbed his rake and whacked the wounded bandit on the head to keep him down. The other two took to their car and raced westward out of town.

Everyone agreed none of the bandits looked like the Dillinger gang.

150 SEEKING AID MOB OFFICIAL

A mob of men and women estimated at 150 called at the building demanding aid. Beasley released a tear gas bomb and a group rushed the office.

When the crowd arrived one man entered to act as spokesman for the protesting delegation. Commissioner Beasley suggested that a committee of three be chosen to go over their complaints with him. The spokesman went outside and when he returned some of the protesters followed him inside. They continued to advance despite Beasley's warnings and the Commissioner released the bomb.

Tugwell Nominated As Under-Secretary

MELLON LAUDS REGISTRATION

Andrew W. Mellon likes the new permanent registration system, he said, after trying it out this morning.

With his son, Paul, the former Secretary of the Treasury slipped quietly into the registration office shortly after 10 a. m. Although the room in the County Office Building was crowded with registrants, few recognized the distinguished pair.

Mellon recorded himself as retired, Woodland road, residing in a house of 20 rooms. Paul described himself as a banker, also living at the Woodland road address. Both registered as Republicans. Their voting district is the Second in the Fourteenth Ward.

The elder Mellon told two girls, Marie McGraw and Bernardine McNanamy, who took their names:

"I like this new system. It only takes a few minutes."

Hardly more than two minutes was taken to register the leader of Pittsburgh's business life and his son.

Medal for Cohan War Songs Likely

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(INS.)—George M. Cohan, veteran theatrical producer, actor and song writer, will appear before the House Library Committee tomorrow to tell how he happened to write the songs "Over There" and "It's a Grand Old Flag." Then he will meet President Roosevelt.

Representative Peyser (Dem.), of New York, said the committee would recommend that Cohan be awarded a special congressional medal for his patriotic work during the World War.

Surprise to World Hinted by Marconi

LONDON, April 24.—(Universal.)—The London Daily Mail declared Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraph, is working on what he considers one of the most startling discoveries of his life. Marconi was quoted yesterday as saying in a message from Rome:

Story of Twin Beds Enlivens Divorce Suit

Although she had already filed suit for divorce, Mrs. Gabrielle S. Fried, of 5534 Phillips avenue, continued to live in the same house with her estranged mate, she testified yesterday in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Fried, pretty former Parisian, speaking with a French accent, bared a tale of movie stars, night clubs, twin beds and beatings in her testimony before Judge John P. Egan.

Learning from the record that service of the divorce papers had been obtained on her husband, Simon S. Fried, at her Phillips avenue residence, Judge Egan inquired:

"Did you occupy the same bed?"

She replied:

"No, no! We had twin beds."

Mrs. Fried filed suit for divorce last October, but actual separation did not take place until March 4, she testified. The Frieds were married in France in 1931.

Mrs. Fried testified that Fried, while intoxicated at a night club, went to the table of a party of movie stars, gave them whisky and showered money on the floor for entertainers, and that he had later beat her.

Fried, former manager of the University Club here, flew to Pittsburgh Sunday from Washington. Mrs. Fried asserted on the stand, charging that he had attempted to kick in her door. She caused his arrest and he was fined $10 in police court yesterday.

Roosevelt Plea Speeds Action on Crime Bills

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—The federal government had its hand closer today to new anti-crime weapons, thanks in part to its hated enemy, slippery John Dillinger.

Chairman Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, called his House Judiciary Committee this morning to consider half a dozen administration bills aimed at better federal gangster control. He acted upon a personal appeal from President Roosevelt. The committee quickly approved legislation making it a federal offence for anyone to flee across state lines to escape apprehension or prosecution for crime.

Here are the purposes of some other bills now before Sumners' committee, most of which have been given final Senate approval:

To transform into a federal offense the killing of a federal officer, whether on government property or not.

To require federal registration of all machine guns.

To make bank robbery a federal offense.

To establish federal laws against so-called "protective unions" as a blow against racketeering.

To permit federal punishment for the interstate communication of kidnap or extortion demands.

Citizens, Wire Your Congressmen to Sign Petition for McLeod Bank Bill

A new petition, designed to defeat the quibbling and technicalities that have blocked consideration of the McLeod bank pay-off bill, was introduced in Congress yesterday and should have the earnest support of every citizen.

Telegraph to your representative and urge him to respond to the will of the people by becoming one of the 145 signers necessary to make this petition effective.

When 145 Congressmen sign the petition, the bill will be taken out of the rules committee onto the floor of the House for a showdwn.

LEADERS URGE GIANT UNION MERGER

Brotherhood Able to Tie U. S. Industry Proposed

Formation of a brotherhood of four of the biggest unions in the country, able practically to paralyze American industry with a general strike, was being discussed here today.

The plan, sponsored by a group of progressive steel leaders attending the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers' convention here, has been in the hands of a committee since last week, it was learned today.

REPORT DUE

The convention of steel workers, begun last Tuesday, took a two-day recess yesterday after allotting to various committees the discussion of resolutions and constitutional amendments.

The convention will again be called to order tomorrow morning, at which time the committees will report back to the delegates, according to International President M. F. Tighe. At that time it is probable the tie-up with the other unions will be placed before the convention, with the committee's decision on its advisability.

According to reports leaking out of the convention, the tie-up includes steel workers, railroad men, automobile workers and coal men. The plan, if reported favorably by the committee, would need adoption by the convention and then by each of the three other unions involved, it was pointed out.

OPINION DIVIDED

William J. Long, of Weirton, W. Va., and Clarence Irwin, of Youngstown, O., leaders of the progressive element, were unofficially reported back of the plan as part of a four-point program for more action by the union.

Leaders of the more conservative element in the Amalgamated are reported as less optimistic about the good results to be obtained by the plan. They pointed to the failure of the general strike in England a decade ago, and the fact that "sympathy strikers" have often been locked out long after the strikers with whom they sympathized had returned to work.

NEW MINE WAGE FIGHT LOOMS

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—Indications the dove of peace is only insecurely perched over the soft coal industry were strengthened today by reports that operators in several states plan renewed protests against NRA's new wage scale for the miners.

Although work whistles at many pits echoed President Roosevelt's plea yesterday that striking miners return to work at once at the rates approved by Hugh S. Johnson, only incomplete figures were available here as to how many men obeyed.

Informed circles here said the Southwest and possibly West Kentucky would be the next storm centers of the industry for operators in these fields were reported as by no means satisfied with the existing wage setup.

Operators of the Fairmont region in Northern West Virginia disappointed by Johnson's failure to restore the 24-cent wage differential they had held over the Pittsburgh area, announced they would file a new brief in September protesting their present rates.

Authorities agreed, however, the dissatisfaction of other operators would crystallize much sooner.

Cleveland Teachers Union Recognized

CLEVELAND, April 24.—(AP.)—The American Federation of Teachers, Local No. 279, was a legally accredited organization representing its members before the Cleveland School Board today.

Affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the Teachers' Union won unanimous recognition from the school board at a quiet meeting last night.

WALL ST. LOBBY CHARGE DENIED

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—Fresh charges of organized lobbying against the stock market bill—quickly and sharply denied—were seen today by leaders as fuel for debate in approaching Congressional battles over regulation of the marts.

Both the New York Stock Exchange and the durable goods industries' committee hit back last night at lobbying charges by Chairman Rayburn, of the House Commerce Committee.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Exchange, promptly asserted his organization's opposition had been "open and above board."

As evidence of concerted opposition to the measure, Rayburn had cited the use by the durable goods committee of a mimeograph owned by stock exchange officials to turn out a statement of objections to the bill. The criticisms, Rayburn said, were virtually identical with previous exchange attacks.

CITY BONDS GET TOP PREMIUM

Although the interest rate is lower than that paid for many years, four city bond issues totaling $4,600,000 today brought the highest premium the city has ever received, Controller James P. Kerr said.

Graham Parsons & Co. investment banking house of Philadelphia and New York, was the successful bidder.

Three of the issues, aggregating $1,160,000, brought premiums of $3.50 per $100. They carry interest at the rate of 3¾ per cent and are for 30 years. They include $1,050,000 incinerator bonds, $900,000 funding loan and $210,000 North Side Market improvement bonds.

The fourth issue, $2,500,000 in 3¼ per cent five-year current expense bonds, brought a premium of $2.25 per $100.

BURGESS BACK AFTER OUSTER

After having been "ousted" from office for one day, Fred Seim, Democrat, was back on the job today as Burgess of Braddock.

Judge Frank P. Patterson ruled Saturday that James H. Rose, Republican candidate, was entitled to 28 additional votes cast in the election, thereby making him burgess by half a dozen votes.

Rose filled the office yesterday. Later in the day, however, Judge Patterson granted a supersedeas after attorneys for Seim had filed an appeal with the Supreme Court.

Burgess Seim will remain in office, under bond, pending final decision of the election controversy by the Supreme Court, probably in September.

INSURANCE FIRM COLLAPSE TOLD

The Triangle Fire Insurance Company was forced to suspend operation when it was caught in the failure of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, in 1931, is was learned today.

The existence of the companies was, in turn, vitally affected by the collapse of the First National Company of Baltimore, it became known following the State Insurance Department's filing of a suit to collect $5,000,000 from the directors of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, on the grounds of alleged negligence.

Control of the Triangle, held by the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, subsequently passed into the hands of the old Diamond National Bank, as the result of a loan by the bank to the surety corporation, with Triangle stock as collateral.

New officials were then elected for the Triangle, according to Robert R. Gordon, receiver for the Diamond National Bank.

A futile attempt was made to save the Triangle by the bank in depositing $50,000 cash with the State Treasurer as a token of good faith, according to a former associate of the State Insurance Department.

NEW MAIL BILL PLANS DROPPED

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—Leaders today abandoned plans to obtain immediate House approval of a new, temporary air mail bill.

Chairman Mead (Dem.), of New York, of the House Postoffice Committee, said the bill which leaders had planned to put through the House this week had included two major objectives—permit competitive bidding for air mail contracts, and create a special commission to study and determine upon a federal aviation policy. He said:

"The Postoffice Department now has had competitive bids. Why should we pass a bill to give it something it already has?"

Subsequently, Mead asserted, Congress should pass a bill creating the special commission alone, or couple with that a stipulation placing air mail contracts under another commission, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission while the special commission was studying the situation.

Chimp Actor Cheers Self, Jeers Lions on Screen

Cheeta, a chimpanzee with histrionic talent in abundance, sat down in a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio theater with Harrison Musgrave and Neil D. Warren, University of Southern California professors.

The professors wanted to know if actions on the talking screen would seem real to the animal in the absence of the "totality of reality" that includes smelling, touching and instinctive awareness of living creatures and nature.

The theater was darkened. Cheeta looked on. Soon the locale shifted to the jungle. Cheeta was all eyes, more than ever. Came the big scene. Lions set out after chimpanzees and Cheeta saw himself on the run. It was too much! When Cheeta on the screen shrieked wildly and wierdly, Cheeta in the eleventh row chimed in.

This proved Musgrave said that the monkey experiences enough sensory stimulation through seeing and hearing to produce whatever emotions a monkey has in his emotional repertoire.

Then the picture was run without sound. Cheeta was still interested, but silently so.

PINCHOT FLYING TO BARE STATE RELIEF NEEDS

Washington Meeting To Determine What Funds to Expect

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 24.—Pennsylvania's critical relief situation will be laid before federal authorities this afternoon by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The Governor announced that he and Mrs. Pinchot were flying to Washington with Fred (Shorty) Nelson this afternoon for a conference with Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in an effort to determine the amount of federal funds Pennsylvania can expect.

At the last meeting of the relief board practically all available funds were allocated to continue works and direct relief until the end of this month. The board meets again May 2.

Previously, Gov. Pinchot had declared that the federal government must virtually support relief in Pennsylvania from now on because of the exhaustion of state funds. The only state money allocated to relief which is unspent is the $20,000,000 appropriated from liquor profits, and this is not yet available.

Roosevelt Releases $75,000,000 for Relief

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today made available $75,000,000 for relief purposes during the remainder of this fiscal year ending June 30.

Te relief money comes out of the $450,000,000 recently allocated to the Federal Civil Works Administration by Congress. The $75,000,000 will be administered by Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator.

SILVER MONEY BILL PASSAGE PREDICTED

Senate Leader Sure Billion-Ounce Plan Will Succeed

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—Congressional passage and presidential approval of a bill to authorize the purchase of a billion ounces of silver for use as primary money was predicted today by a member of the Senate silver bloc.

The Senator, one of seven leaders, who took part in the White House conference on silver, said that when the President was told that silver once occupied a ratio of 1 to 4 with gold as a primary money, Mr. Roosevelt suggested the restoration of that ratio.

Other members of the silver bloc, definitely split with the White House, concentrated for enactment of the Dies silver remonetization-farm relief bill in mandatory form. The President agreed openly to accept only permissive white metal legislation.

Hemphill Asks Approval For Dies Silver Bill

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(Universal)—Robert H. Hemphill, formerly credit manager of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank and a financial writer, urged prompt enactment of the Dies agriculture-silver bill before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

He told the committee that this silver legislation is of far greater importance than the technical matter of a metallic money base. He said:

"We transact business with bank deposits, which can be created only by depositing currency or the net proceeds of bank loans. In 1929 we had in demand deposits subject to check in our commercial banks 27 billion dollars. This has been reduced by the withdrawal of bank credit to 16 billion dollars.

"The immediate effect of this withdrawal of bank credit has been to reduce our national income from 81 billion dollars in 1929 to 48 billions in 1932. That is the whole story of this depression."

Large Silver Holders Revealed in Senate

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(INS.)—The Chase National Bank, with 18,096,109.59 ounces of silver, headed a list of silver holders sent to the Senate today by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

The list contained the names of a number of persons, but the holders of the largest amounts of silver were banks or business corporation, apparently dealing abroad.

Among the largest holders were the Bank of Manhattan, of New York, 11,063,759.23 ounces; Eastman Kodak Company, 12,000,514.59 ounces; Goldman Sacks & Co., 2,824,355.57 ounces; the Guaranty Trust Company, 4,000,000 ounces, and Handy & Harmon, New York, 3,641,000 ounces.

The report was laid before the Senate by Vice President Garner. It was made in response to a resolution, introduced by Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, who authorized the republication of the names.

Some of the important holders were Henry B. Babson, Chicago; William J. Bryan, Jr., Los Angeles; Emily M. Crosby, Chevy Chase, Md.; John F. Crosby, trustee for Emily M. Crosby, Washington; Everett N. Crosby, Philadelphia; Stuyvesant Fish, New York.

Blow in Furnace, Idle Four Years

George E. Hitchens, general manager of the National Tube Company in McKeesport, announced today that the company will blow in No. 4 blast furnace May 1. The furnace has been idle since April, 1930. Seven hundred men formerly employed at the furnace will be recalled, Hitchens said. A few days after the furnace is blown in the skelp mills will be reopened.

city. Firemen found one curlew, badly singed, with a broken wing, and are trying to cure it.

CONGRESSMAN RAYBURN, from Texas, is indignant, amazed, outraged to find fighting his bill to control the New York Stock Exchange "the most powerful lobby ever organized against any bill which ever came to Congress." Congressman Rayburn must remember that his bill is aimed at 1,400 very able young and old men that make up the stock exchange membership, each owning a "seat" with value varying mysterious from $50,000 to $500,000. Members think the Rayburn bill might drop those pleasant prices, perhaps, to $5,000, and they don't like that.

Besides many, probably 95 per cent, sincerely believe that they are public benefactors, preserving for the country "liquid values" absolutely essential to the convenient conduct of business.

Thousands Send Appeals to Pass McLeod Bank Bill

At the crossroads and in congested city areas, hands were joined today in a common cause—support of the McLeod bill to free frozen deposits in closed Federal Reserve banks.

Pathetic little stories, revelations of what business houses might do if they had the funds, alike were contained in letters accompanying thousands of petitions asking Congress to pass the McLeod bank pay-off measure.

Daily an assortment of these letters have come to the Sun-Telegraph along with the petitions urging Congress to enact the bill. They come from West Virginia's mountain villages, towns throughout Pennsylvania and Ohio, small business houses in Pittsburgh's environs and the best residential districts and the industrial sections of the city itself.

All of them commend the efforts put forth in behalf of the measure that would provide the innocent victims of bank closings with money for their multiple and varied needs.

NOT SELFISH PLEAS

Nor are they selfish pleas, these for the bill. A businessman points out that if he had the money tied up in a closed bank he would be hiring people, putting the money into trade; a householder would buy things of which he long has been in need; there are repairs to be made on the house; perhaps a new car would be possible.

News dispatches from Washington say that their pleas have brought results. For instance, a dispatch to the Sun-Telegraph reads:

"The effect of the latest messages were electrical. Members of Congress who hitherto have paid little attention to the pay-off battle were amazed at the interest that has been aroused throughout the country in favor of the McLeod bill and declared they would carry out the wishes of their constituents where an overwhelming number sought their support of legislation for suffering bank depositors."

The Sun-Telegraph has received and relayed to Washington 3,617 petitions, a number that is growing by hundreds daily, in addition to thousands of others sent directly to Washington from districts between the Southern West Virginia mountains and Lake Erie.

To consolidate this support of the legislation, Congressman McLeod, of Michigan, author of the bill, will speak in the Nixon Theater at a public mass meeting at noon, May 2.

ORGANIZATION SUGGESTED

Congressman Clyde Kelly, one of Allegheny County's four representatives in Congress who have stood staunchly by McLeod in the parliamentary battle for the bill, said that if every supporter of the legislation in this area joined the movement to organize, it would have a far-reaching affect on advancement of the legislation.

Representatives Muldowney, Dunn, Kelly and Ellenbogen, of Allegheny County, did their bit in the parliamentary struggle for the bill yesterday as they have done in the past. Representatives J. Twing Brooks, of Sewickley, thus far has been the only absentee from Washington at crucial tests on the measure. Brooks has declared himself in favor of the bill, but has not signed the petition nor cast a vote supporting it.

Hopeful of winning in the struggle to bring the bill to a vote in the House, where they have been assured by congressional leaders that it will pass if it survives parliamentary maneuvers to prevent a vote, supporters of the measure were watchful to learn the attitude of senatorial representatives toward the bill in the event that it should reach the Senate in the legislative mill.

At the mass meeting next week, Maj. E. Lowry Humes, former Democratic United States attorney here, will preside. Congressman Kelly will introduce McLeod.

HOUSE BLOCKS DIRECT VOTE ON M'LEOD BILL

Proponents in New Move to Force Action May 14

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Under the lashing of Democratic leaders, the House refused to permit a direct vote yesterday on the McLeod bank pay-off bill.

During a furious two-hour battle, the little band of harassed Democratic chiefs resorted to almost every parliamentary device in the book in an attempt to keep the bill off the floor.

SEEK RULES DISCHARGE

A new petition was presented by Representative Weideman, of Michigan, to discharge the Rules Committee and force the measure to the floor for a showdown on May 14, the earliest possible under the rules.

Sponsors expressed confidence the requisite 145 names would be signed speedily to the petition, and thus end the leadership's maneuvering to smother the legislation. At adjournment last night, 28 names were on the petition.

Catching the leaders by surprise, the McLeod supporters as soon as the House convened challenged the validity of a report by the Banking Committee on the bill. Representative Beedy, of Maine, charged the committee, by submitting "an illegal and irregular report," was merely trying to block a vote on the bill. He moved the report be declared void.

TABLE 'ILLEGAL' CLAIM

If the report had not been submitted, the House would have been forced to vote yesterday.

Speaker Rainey upheld Beedy's privilege to bring up the question, but Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, House floor leader, moved to lay the Beedy motion on the table.

On a roll call, the House voted 227 to 122 to table the motion. By this indirect method it declined to consider the bill to aid millions of distressed depositors.

Democratic leaders sought to make it a partisan issue, while McLeod forces have tried to keep all politics out of the matter.

The result showed 212 Democrats and 15 Republicans voting to table the motion, and 38 Democrats, 80 Republicans and four Farmer-Laborites against it. A vote against tabling, in effect, was a vote for the McLeod bill.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

RABBITS AND MICE TO AID MILLEN MURDER DEFENSE

DARROW'S HELP ASKED IN PLEA OF INSANITY

Case Unique as That Of Leopold, Loeb To Be Offered

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 24.—Cages of white rabbits and white rats upon which science has conducted relative experiments will be offered in evidence by the defense when it opens its case at the murder trial of Murton and Irving Millen and Abe Faber, International News Service learned today.

And not only may the courtroom, if the court permits, resemble a clinical research chamber in the Rockefeller Institute but the defense of the alleged young machine-gun killers of two policemen during a bank holdup promises to be as unique as the court strategy used in the famous Loeb-Leopold "thrill murder" trial in Chicago.

DARROW CONSULTED

William R. Scharton, counsel for Faber, made a week-end trip to Washington for the announced purpose of consulting Clarence Darrow, attorney in the Loeb-Leopold case.

There have been few cases in legal history where three defendants on trial for murder have all claimed insanity.

But even as the young defendants have been pictured by the authorities as planning to enlarge their syndicate of crime by welding science—aviation, radio electricity and mechanics—science will be called upon to save them from the electric chair.

Faber, inventive wizard, aviation instructor and honor graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be pictured as suffering from "social anaemia."

An equally novel defense will be included in the evidence offered in defense of the young Millen brothers.

They will be termed insane and the effect of the past decade of prevalent crime and the emotional influence of a topsy-turvy world on the mental system of youth will be cited in their behalf.

WITNESSES TESTIFY

The parade of prosecution witnesses began after the Millen brothers and Faber were painted as cold-blooded murderers in the killing of Patrolman Forbes McLeod. Patrolman Frank Haddock also was killed by a machine gun during the bank raid on February 2.

Fixing actual handling of the machine gun on Murton Millen, alleged "brains" of the youthful trio, District Attorney Edmund Dewing, in his opening address to the jury, said:

"They were prepared for anything. They went to the Needham Trust Company determined to rob and not be caught alive—to shoot it out."

The first two witnesses called by the state were Hadley White, Norfolk County engineer, and Sergt. Walter Toelkins, state police official photographer.

Meanwhile, Norma Brighton Millen, 19-year-old bride of Murton and daughter of a minister, was served with a subpena to appear in court next Monday as a witness for the defense.

TWO THEATERS 'BOMBED'

Patrons in the New Carnegie and Liberty theaters, both in East Main street, Carnegie, were routed when phosphorus bombs were discharged in the places within a few minutes last night, according to police.

Harry Siebel, 27, of 235 Magazine street, Carnegie, in the New Carnegie Theater, where the first "blast" occurred, suffered burns on the face, neck and hands and was treated by Dr. W. J. Connelly. The flame shot out from under the row in which he was sitting. He thought it came through the floor.

Lieut. Harry Keisling questioned more than a score of patrons of both theaters in an effort to obtain a clue to the perpetrators.

Boy Seeks Bed In Hotel, Winds Up in Law's Grip

SLEEPY EDWARD DRAINER

FAILS TO FIND AUNT HERE

Twelve-year-old Edward Drainer, of Sabraton, W. Va., walked into the Hotel William Penn at midnight, placed a quarter in front of the clerk and asked for "a room without bath."

A few minutes later "Eddie" was in the hands of the law.

At Central Police Station he told how he had arrived in Pittsburgh from Morgantown yesterday afternoon, missed an appointment with an aunt and had gone to see a "cowboy" movie when he failed to locate her. After that, sleep was his immediate problem, he admitted.

Eddie has been doing some gardening work for his mother, he told police, and the reward had been a trip to Pittsburgh and some spending money. He was supposed to meet an aunt, Mrs. Florence Bohmer, he said, in front of a theater here.

When the latter failed to appear, he said he went to another theater.

Asked why he did not seek the aid of police when he failed to locate his aunt, he replied:

"I didn't see any. No one had any guns."

He didn't know where his aunt lived. All he remembered was that his mother placed him on a bus at Morgantown.

"Eddie's" parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Drainer, live near Sabraton. He had not been reported missing to police there or at Morgantown.

False Burglar Alarm Sounded at Bank

A short circuit in the wiring of the Allegheny Trust Company, 413 Federal street, sounded the burglar alarm a few minutes before the bank opened for business this morning. Police radio cars, hastily sent to the scene at the first alarm, were ordered back before they reached the bank.

DOG ONCE DEAD FIGHTING COMA OF 10 DAYS

Asphyxiated, Brought Back to Life by Scientist

BERKELEY, Cal., April 24.—(AP.)—Science watched anxiously over a sleeping dog today, hoping for a definite indication the animal would regain consciousness.

The dog has lain unconscious for 10 days in a University of California laboratory, ever since it was asphyxiated and restored to life by Dr. Robert Cornish.

Dr. Cornish is the man who put several dogs to death and restored their physical functions, but was unable to bring them back to consciousness. He found that the heart, once stopped, could be made to pump blood into the arteries again, but that a diminishing supply of blood finally caused the heart to stop beating forever.

In his latest experiment, he injected a fluid into the dog's veins to supply something for the heart to pump again, with the result that the dog has remained alive since April 13, and has even given signs of regaining consciousness. Light causes the dog to bling his eyes, Dr. Cornish said, and a fly on his ear causes the animal to twitch.

These signs indicate, the scientist said, that it is not impossible for the brain cells to be restored. If the eye's retina can repair itself, he believes, other brain centers may be restored in time.

The dog was fed at first by injections, but now is being given food through the mouth.

Handclaspers: One's Father, Other's Mother

The moving scene in the courthouse corridor as Mr. Davis, father of the boy on trial for the slaying of her son, clasped the hand of Mrs. Brantlinger. Her words: "Nothing can bring my boy back. Of course, I don't want your boy to go to the electric chair." The case continues today—with the prosecution seeking a sentence of death for the boy. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

impossible to identify it as having been fired from a rifle said to have been in Davis' possession.

PROSECUTION STAND

Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk, in his opening argument to the jury, contended that the former South Hills High School senior was alone "on the job." And in the confession attributed to Davis there is no reference to an accomplice.

Clunk, however, will contend that Brantlinger, dying, confused a passing motorist, William Hulick, with the robbery, whereas it was Hulick who found the patrolman and summoned aid.

Testimony that the automobile allegedly used by Davis was stolen from Mt. Lebanon, that the schoolboy defendant, several weeks later, fled in the car to Illinois, using stolen license plates, and that during the intervening time he rented a garage for the automobile, leaving a stolen watch with a note, in payment when he fled, will be introduced.

DOWLING YELLS BATH CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—(AP.)—R. C. (Danny) Dowling, film dance director, was held for trial today on the charge of Marjorie Wellman that he kidnaped her in an attempt to marry her.

After a day of dramatic testimony in his preliminary hearing, the municipal court set the dance directors arraignment for May 9 and bound him over under $5,000 bond.

The high point of Dowling's testimony was his attempt from the witness stand to make the actress agree he gave her a bath at the Yuma, (Ariz.), hotel to which he took her last March 30. As Dowling told of the bath, Mrs. Wellman shook her head negatively.

Dowling leaned forward in the witness chair and fairly shouted:

"As God is my judge, I gave you a bath."

Previously the actress had admitted under cross examination that the dance director helped her remove her skirt and blouse in preparation for the much discussed bath.

Girl Gets Brown's $5,000 Balm Check

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—(AP.)—A check for $5,000 plus court costs has been received by Marjorie Whiteis, movie actress, in payment of the judgment she obtained against Harry Joe Brown, director and producer, in a suit charging him with breaking a promise to marry her. The payment was announced by her lawyer, Whitney Smith.

Miss Whiteis, Marjorie Gay on the screen, sued Brown, now the husband of Sally Eilers, for $100,000.

McNair Will Avoid Dinner; Fears He'd Hurt Judges

Mayor McNair will not attend Duquesne University Law School's annual dinner Thursday. He does not want to meet the Superior Court judges there.

The Mayor is afraid he might embarrass them in the matter of "excessive salaries." He said:

"If they called on me for a speech, I would tell them judges get too much money. The salaries are ridiculous. Not a judge could make as much in private practice. None should get more than $10,000 a year."

President Judge Frank M. Trexler and his Superior Court associates are to be honor guests at the dinner. Mayor McNair declined the invitation of Bernard J. Hampsey, dean, to sit at the speakers' table.

NORMA, JESSEL WED AT LAST

She and the stage comedian were married at the Hotel Ambassador late yesterday after keeping the wedding plans a secret since last Thursday when they obtained a marriage license. Miss Talmadge said:

"I'm Mrs. Jessel now, all right, and I love it."

Jessel, after kissing Mayor Harry Bacharach, who performed the ceremony, and everybody in sight, said over and over:

"I've never been so happy in my life."

Less than a month ago Miss Talmadge obtained a Mexican divorce from Joseph Schenck, the producer.

For two years the former movie actress and Jessel had been denying reports they would wed.

RESERVE CORPS OFFICERS AT THE FUNERAL FOR COL. WILLIAM THAW II, WORLD WAR FLYING ACE

The Thaw coffin leaving the funeral home for the trip to interment in Allegheny Cemetery as death brought a close to Col. Thaw's long and outstanding career in aviation. He flew with the famed Lafayette Escadrille.

Fellow Aces Pay Homage To Thaw at Graveside

With war-time comrades joining a last tribute, Col. William Thaw, II, noted World War Ace, and scion of a prominent Pittsburgh family, was buried yesterday in Allegheny Cemetery following simple services in Samson's chapel, on Neville street.

Although Col. Thaw was one of the outstanding heroes of combat flying during the war, the only military touch given his funeral was a guard of honor and the sounding of taps at the grave.

The flier's family had requested the services be as simple as possible.

Col. Thaw died Sunday in his home in the Schenley Apartments, following a brief illness with pneumonia. He was 41.

Among those who attended the services were Chateau Johnson, Robert Soubiran and Cord Meyer, who flew with Col. Thaw in France in the famous Lafayette Escadrille.

Col. H. C. Fry led a guard of honor representing the Pittsburgh Aero Club, of which Col. Thaw was a director, and the flying units of the Officers' Reserve Corps. Among these was Lieut. Corley D. Arment, of Rodgers Field, representing the Regular Army.

Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, officiated at the services.

Honorary pallbearers were Mr. Meyer, Mr. Soubiran, Mr. Johnson, Kenneth M. Rafferty, Gordon Fisher, Floyd Clarkson, J. C. Dilworth, T. H. Eddy, George Dickson, F. G. Stevenson, Gen. William Mitchell and Gen. Benjamin Foulois, head of the Army airmail service.

Neither Gen. William Mitchell, the noted commander of the United State Army's war-time flying units, nor Gen. B. D. Foulois was able to attend the services.

Col. Thaw leaves his wife, Mrs. Margary Thaw; a brother, Benjamin Thaw, Jr., and a sister, Mrs. Lawrence Slade, of New York.

GLORIA TO SUE IRISH PLAYBOY FOR DIVORCE

Farmer Too Frivolous, Film Stars Says; Romance Ends

By LUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—Gloria Swanson said that she will bring suit for divorce from Michael Farmer, Irish playboy, as soon as she returns to Hollywood.

Over the long-distance telephone Gloria told this writer that Lloyd Wright, her Los Angeles attorney, will prepare the necessary papers. She said:

"I am sorry, but I have made a mistake. I wish that my marriage to Michael might have turned out happily—but our ideas are so different. He loves a good time. He hates being in one place for any length of time. I have my career to think about and my work as an actress. Besides, it is necessary for me to support my children."

FIGHTS FOR CHILD

Miss Swanson refused to comment on dispatches from Paris in which Farmer said that he would bring their daughter, Bridget Michele, to Paris and keep her with him, other than to say that she did not believe that Farmer would really try to separate her from their child. She said:

"After all, Michael is a gentleman, and I don't believe that he will keep my baby."

Wright said that Miss Swanson would probably bring charges of incompatibility in her divorce charges.

The trouble between Farmer and Miss Swanson started last Christmas. Michael, who had never missed a season at St. Moritz, wanted to join Douglas Fairbanks there for the winter sports. Gloria did not feel she could leave Hollywood and the motion picture offer that had been made for her. She urged him to remain with her until she had settled her plans one way or another, but he chafed at the bit and finally left California and his wife of only three years at their home in Beverly Hills to spend Christmas alone.

Gloria's Fourth Failure In Love Stirs Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 24.—(INS.)—Elinor Glyn, the scientist of sex who discovered that element called "it," once looked into Gloria Swanson's grey-blue eyes, studied her piquant face and her dainty tip-tilted nose and announced:

"She has the look of a huntress—that is the secret of her fascination."

And today, the folks in this village called Hollywood were wondering if Miss Swanson is really as Miss Glyn described her—a huntress in the marital jungles—or if she is only a little girl who is in love with love.

It was Miss Swanson's announcement, long rumored, that she would divorce her fourth husband, Michael Farmer, which set the people of the film world to psycho-analyzed Miss Swanson, who created "Sadie Thompson" on the screen. Even in Hollywood, four is quite a number of husbands for one woman to have in 18 years—especially when that woman is still young and beautiful.

Hollywood was not surprised at Miss Swanson's announcement that Farmer soon would become an ex-husband, along with Wally Beery, the late Herbert Somborn and Henri de Bailly de la Falaise, Marquis de la Coudray.

All of her ex-mates speak highly of the exquisite Gloria.

A long time ago, shortly after he divorced Miss Swanson in 1918 when he was a custard-pie king and she was a bathing beauty, Beery tried to explain why they parted:

"We were too young—we might have made a go of it later. We ought to have made a go of it."

Somborn, who was an executive at Paramount when she married him in 1919 and who after their divorce in 1921 became one of Hollywood's most successful cafe operators, never had anything to say about why they drifted apart. Beery and Somborn each obtained divorces on grounds of desertion.

Said the marquis, whom she married in 1925 and divorced in 1930, again on grounds of desertion:

"Hollywood tore us apart. It is no place to stay married."

However, shortly afterward he married Constance Bennett.

Miss Swanson is now in New York making personal appearances. She will return within a few weeks to play the leading feminine role in "Barbary Coast" for Samuel Goldwyn, opposite Gary Cooper. After she completes "Barbary Coast" she will move to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot to make a series of pictures for Irving Thalberg.

'NEWS' TO FARMER

PARIS, April 24.—(AP.)—Michael Farmer said today he had not heard Gloria Swanson was considering filing a divorce suit, but admitted he is remaining in France.

Surprises Negro Ransacking Home

Returning to her home last night, Phyllis Klein, 2106 Fifth avenue, surprised a Negro ransacking the place, police reported. The intruder escaped with a necklace valued at $60 and $8 in cash.

a 30-30 bullet from the gun of a county deputy.

A lookout warning to all hospitals and doctors for anyone seeking treatment for a gunshot wound has been issued by the authorities and the police are hourly expecting some report from this appeal.

While the search for the bandit gang centers here, federal officers have not overlooked the possibility of Dillinger's return to the remote section of Wisconsin from which he escaped Sunday night.

Led by W. A. Rorer, the agent who captured George (Machine Gun) Kelley, the Urschel kidnaper, a squad of Department of Justice men still are near Rhinelander laying plans for an ambush if the gangster or his friends return there.

FEDERAL LEADER

H. H. Clegg, assistant director of the investigative bureau of the Justice Department of Washington, is here assuming charge of the most intensive manhunt staged by the department.

Meanwhile St. Paul is in the throes of a municipal election, upon the outcome of which the future administration of the police department may depend. Chief of Police Thomas Dahill said:

"The election will not interfere with the hunt for Dillinger."

OIL MAN KIDNAPED

ST. PAUL, April 24.—(AP.)—A midnight raid on an Ellsworth (Wis.) gas station by three men, who kidnaped the proprietor, today intensified the search for John Dillinger mobsters in the Twin City area.

OHIO POLICE WARNED

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—(AP.)—WPGQ, the state highway patrol radio station, today relayed a broadcast of the Department of Justice, warning police officials of Indiana and Ohio to be on the lookout for a Ford V-8 sedan, maroon colored, carrying Minnesota license plates and believed to have been stolen at St. Paul yesterday by Dillinger gangsters. The broadcast said the car contained the men who shot a Chicago policeman today and was last seen in the vicinity of Muncie and Fort Wayne, Ind.

KILLER IDENTIFIED

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP.)—George (Baby Face) Nelson, Chicago criminal, was definitely identified at the Department of Justice today as the Dillinger mobsman who killed Special Agent W. Carter Baum in the gunplay in Wisconsin woods early yesterday.

Nelson escaped from the Illinois state penitentiary in February, 1932, where he was serving a sentence of from one year to life for first degree robbery. He is wanted at St. Paul in connection with another bank robbery case. He is 22 years old.

Manhunters Swarm Woods In Hunt for Dillinger

MERCER, Wis., April 24.—(AP.)—Through the wooded wilds of the North country, freshly white with snow, an army of determined men hunted big game today—John Dillinger.

Crafty as a fox and ruthless as the wolf that sometimes prowls the brush-snarled timber lands of Northern Wisconsin, the gunman from Indiana continued to elude one of the most extensive manhunts the Northlands ever have known.

"Dillinger luck" was holding, but the feeling was strong among the hunters that John Dillinger—cop-killer, bank robber, highwayman and jail fugitive—was very close to his last sand.

The government had nearly 100 picked men on the job. Some of them were drafted from points as distant as Philadelphia and Washington. Many airplanes dropped from the skies, bringing reinforcements.

'SHOOT TO KILL'

The Department of Justice men were under orders to shoot to kill.

Dillinger was believed hiding today either in this North Woods country or to have taken refuge in one of several hideouts he is believed to have prepared in the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The casualty list from Sunday night's two gun fights remained two dead and four wounded, with the condition of one of the wounded men critical.

The deputies, who had been guarding the roads in the search for the Dillinger mob, exchanged shots when they encountered the trio in a small automobile bearing Wisconsin license plates. Here again fortune smiled on Dillinger—if Dillinger it was.

A lumbering truck, coming in from a side street, delayed the deputies' machine just long enough to permit the trio to escape. One of their number, however, was believed to have been wounded. There were bloodstains in the trio's car when it was found, abandoned.

After the gun battle in the streets of the St. Paul suburb the police investigated reports that a car which sped past the city limits had contained a man bundled in blankets. Officers believe this may have been one of their foes in the gun fight—wounded or dead. They pointed out that if he had been killed, his comrades could have disposed of his body in one of the many lakes that dot the countryside or that they could have dispatched it to an ignominous Valhalla in a swamp.

CIRCLE OF POLICE

Authorities were quick to hem the killers in a gigantic circle that extended from Duluth to St. Paul and Minneapolis, to Chicago and to Milwaukee. Synchronizing their movements, the constabulary of Michigan took up strategic posts along the Wisconsin border to preclude the possibility of the gunmen back-tracking through the Upper Peninsula.

The fact that the desperadoes might be hampered by a shortage of armament was disclosed when federal agents announced they had confiscated six machine guns, a dozen shotguns and rifles, and five steel vests left behind by the seven men of Dillinger's mob tavern.

The officialdom which had watched the toll of deaths ascribed to Dillinger and his no-quarter nomads grow to an ominous 13 with the slaying of W. C. Baum, a government operative, and Eugene Boisoneau, a Civilian Conservation Corps employe, in the Sunday night gun engagement, apparently had decided to beat them at their own machine-gunning game.

While four of the desperadoes had not been located since they burst out of the Mercer tavern, one of the victims, John Morris, another CCC worker haplessly caught in the crossfire, remained in a critical condition at an Ironwood hospital. Two other casualties, Constable C. C. Christensen, of nearby Spider Lake, and John Hoffman, of Mercer, were convalescing, while the fourth of those wounded in the resort battle, Federal Agent J. C. Newman, left the infirmary.

The women the criminals deserted at the inn when they beat their retreat were spirited out of the Eagle River jail last night under a heavy guard and started for an undisclosed destination. The girls flippantly declined to yield any information concerning their erstwhile escorts, according to authorities who put them through an extensive questioning.

Werner Hanni, Department of Justice chief in the St. Paul area, returned to his headquarters last night. He declined to discuss the case.

KEENAN CONFIDENT

Assistant United States Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan spurred the marksmen participating in the manhunt with this statement issued in Washington.

"We will get them!"

Dillinger has undergone some decided changes in appearance since he broke from jail last March 3. Emil Wanatka, owner of the resort where the gun fight occurred, said that Dillinger's hair had been dyed a bright red. It used to be light brown. He has lost none of his knowledge of the psychology of fear—one of the aces in his deck of cards. He demonstrated that when he forced Robert Johnson, a farmer, to act as his chauffeur when he made his getaway from the Mercer resort. Johnson said:

TELLS OF GETAWAY

"Dillinger and two companions came to my cottage about 10 p. m. and hollered to wake me up. When I asked him what he wanted he said that Mrs. Mitchell (wife of another resort keeper) was sick and that a car was needed to drive for a doctor.

"I didn't suspect anything, so I dressed and went out. There stood three men facing me with guns. 'Get your guns and drive us,' they said, sticking their guns into me.

"'Now mind your own business and drive as we tell you and everything will be all right,' they said. I only have a little Ford coupe, a 1930 model, and they told me to drive as fast as I could make her go. All the time they kept those guns against me and forced me to drive along side roads. When they stopped for gas I couldn't say a word because there was a pistol pressing against my ribs.

"They seemed to know the roads all right and we must have traveled about 50 miles. Around midnight they told me to get out. I did. Then I made my way to Park Falls."

S. A. Drive Supports Twenty Institutions

Maintenance of the 20 institutions supported in Allegheny County by the Salvation Army depends upon the success of the budget-balancing campaign due to start next week, according to an announcement by the organizations. Among the institutions dependent on the drive are a maternity hospital, an employment bureau, and a residence for homeless girls.

Dillinger's Luck Laid to Women By Writer

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—(INS.)—John Dillinger, the notorious killer, is still at large because of the aid he received from women, in the opinion of Courtney Ryley Cooper, noted author. Speaking before the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, Cooper declared:

"Women were responsible for the escape of Dillinger.

"Every arch criminal has with him an arch-criminal who is much the more dangerous of the two, and that is a woman. Until these women are placed in the same category as men and are punished just as severely for their crimes, there will be as much crime as ever."

DILLINGER RAID PUTS END TO POKER GAME

International News Service.

MERCER, Wis., April 24.—Principals in the swiftly-moving series of events in Dillinger's latest escape recounted details of the gun battle fought in the woodland resort retreat near here.

Last Friday Dillinger, John Hamilton, his chief lieutenant, three other men and three young women moved in on Emil Wanatke, proprietor of the Little Bohemia resort. Wantake had no choice but to entertain them. Until federal agents blasted the gang out of hiding they dined, drank and played cards. Wanatke said:

"Sure, I played cards with them and did as they told me. A regiment of guards hasn't kept Dillinger in jail and who am I to tell him what to do?"

A poker game was in session when Department of Justice agents approached the two-story building. Wanatke's two collie dogs barked at the strangers. Guns blazed in the darkness.

While the federal men fired from the front and one side of the hotel Dillinger and his henchmen escaped into the night through a rear door.

Three of the desperadoes soon appeared at the resort of E. J. Mitchell, where they took by force a car belonging to Robert Johnson, an employe.

The other group went to the resort of Alvin Koerner. One carried a machine gun. As they were arranging to get Koerner to drive them away a carload of officers appeared, including J. C. Newman, C. C. Christiansen and W. Carter Baum.

To the gunmen's demand, "Who's there?" came the reply:

"Federal officers."

The machine gun spoke and the three officers were chopped down by the hail of bullets.

Wanatke said Dillinger revealed his identity as soon as the party arrived. He explained:

"Once Dillinger and his crowd were settled we couldn't complain about them. We were prisoners. They were pleasant enough to all of us. When they played poker they put their weapons on the table.

"Dillinger invited me to play with them. It was a real game, for those boys had money."

Dillinger Band Rivals Exploits Of James Boys

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Recalling the spectacular exploits of Jesse James, Harry Tracy, the Younger brothers and other bad men of former days, John Dillinger has packed a wealth of amazing outlawry and thrilling escapes into the few years he has been at liberty during his adult life.

He definitely is charged with the ruthless slaying of Patrolman William P. O'Malley during a $15,000 holdup at East Chicago and is suspected of others.

The latest victim of his gang's machine gunners was W. Carter Baum, federal agent, who was shot to death in Sunday night's raid upon the Dillinger roadhouse hideout in Wisconsin.

Dillinger's own delivery from the county jail at Lima, O., last October 1, was attended by the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber, but it was one of his pals, Harry Pierpont, who fired the fatal shot.

His desperate companion, John Hamilton, is credited with the slaying of Policeman William Shanley in Chicago last December.

Dillinger's most famous exploit was his wooden gun escape from the Crown Point, (Ind.,) jail March 3. Since then he has struck repeatedly and successfully at one bank after another. He and his daring companions are reputed to have rolled up close to $300,000 in loot.

His first offense came in 1924 as a youth of 22 in Mooresville, Ind., where he and a companion beat a storekeeper with a lead pipe and robbed the store. For that, Dillinger got 10 to 20 years at the Pendleton Reformatory. After two attempts to escape, he was transferred to the state prison at Michigan City, but was paroled by Gov. Paul V. McNutt in 1933, after serving about nine years.

GUNMAN 'SORRY' OVER TAKING MAN'S CAR

Roy Francis, driving with his wife and 19-month-old son, near South St. Paul, was stopped yesterday by John Dillinger and two companions, who forced them to surrender their automobile. Francis is manager of the Northern States Power Company in St. Paul.

By ROY FRANCIS

As Told to Universal Service.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Minn., April 23.—I was making my usual noonday roundup today and had my wife and 19-month-old son with me for the ride.

As we reached the top of a hill about three miles from here on a new road I saw a car parked on a section a little ahead of me. It was facing on the wrong side of the road.

As I slowed down, because the road . newly filled there, a man jumped out of the parked car and waved a gun, telling me to stop at the same time saying:

"I'm sorry I have to do this, mister, but we're going to have to take your car away."

I put up my hands, but the man told me to put them down and for my wife not to be scared. He said:

"We're not going to hurt you."

I told them to be careful of my baby, and I pleaded with the fellow not to take our car.

My wife was terror stricken, just scared to death, and kept telling me to be careful and keep quiet.

They took our car, turned around and drove away from here, with one man following in the other car, a coupe

U. S. Experts Join Dillinger Pursuit

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—(AP.)—Federal agents, men picked because of their expertness with firearms, have been sent from Philadelphia to join in the Mid Western manhunt for John Dillinger.

R. George Harvey, agent in charge of the division of investigation's Philadelphia office, disclosed that the Department of Justice agents left yesterday, but declined to say how many went.

FEAR DILLINGER IN HOME TOWN

MOORESVILLE, Ind., April 24.—(AP.)—John Dillinger's home town asked today for military protection against its infamous son.

A resolution to Gov. Paul V. McNutt from the Mooresville board of trustees set forth that the citizens "are not equipped with weapons of a nature to cope with a man who carries a machine gun and bullet-proof vests."

It asked the Governor to send National Guardsmen, "if necessary," or a sufficient number of deputies to give the townsfolk "adequate protection" against the desperado, whose activities, the resolution termed, "a disgrace and danger to the people of the state."

The resolution was the town's official answer to reports that Mooresville favored amnesty for Dillinger.

JAPAN AFFIRMS 'HANDS OFF' IN ORIENT

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, April 24.—A truculent Japanese government reaffirmed today its determination to stand by its declaration of a "Monroe Doctrine for the Orient."

The pretext that the declaration of policy made last week was merely the "informal verbal statement" of a foreign office spokesman was cast aside and Foreign Minister Koki Hirota informed his fellow members of the cabinet it was a policy Japan was ready to "reiterate at any time foreign observers need enlightenment."

CLARIFIES SITUATION

Hirota's statement to the cabinet followed Great Britain's action in sending to the Japanese government a "friendly communication" clarifying British policies in the Far East.

Hirota's statement left no doubt of Japan's determination to pursue the course she has outlined with regard to China, just as she did in her Manchurian policies, despite the opposition of the Western powers.

TO WATCH ARMS SALES

The Japanese government, Hirota said, is determined to watch the sale of airplanes and arms to China because it regards such sales as possible factors contributing to the eventual disturbance of the peace of China.

Financial and technical assistance to the Chinese government by other nations, Hirota said, also would be looked upon with disfavor because such assistance would tend to threaten Japan's relations with China.

Britain to Ask Powers Join in Warning Japan

LONDON, April 4.—(INS.)—The powers of the western world will be asked by Great Britain to join in a warning to Japan that they will not accept sole Japanese control of China, it was indicated today.

This was the development expected to follow the official approval of the Japanese "Monroe Doctrine for the Orient" given in Tokio by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. The official backing given Japan's "hands off China" policy, hitherto enunciated as an informal verbal statement of a foreign office spokesman, caused a sensation here.

The British cabinet, it was understood, is canvassing the prospects of a common approach by the western powers in the event Japan proves unyielding in her determination to dominate the Far East.

There was some disappointment expressed in official circles that the United States had not already taken official action regarding the Japanese statement.

Nippon's China Policy Held Defy of League

GENEVA, April 24.—(AP.)—League of Nations circles were dazed today by Japan's warning to the world that she will oppose foreign aid to China "under whatever guise" which she deems may disturb the peace in Eastern Asia.

League representatives say Japan is reaching out to the Asiatic peoples and seeking to inculcate in them Japanese ideas and leadership.

Film Scoring Hitler Under Chicago Ban

CHICAGO, April 24.—(AP.)—Police have stopped showings of "Hitler's Reign of Terror," a movie purporting to depict conditions in Germany under the Nazi government.

A protest by Dr. R. L. Jaeger, German consul-general in Chicago, to Mayor Edward J. Kelly brought rescinding of the permit for the film here.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Japanese dare not say it openly but they are coming around whispering in the ears of our officials that their new gate-keeping policy in China was not directed at us but at France. The Japanese say they had inside information about a new loan France was making to China. This loan ostensibly was to strengthen Chinese banks, but the Japanese assert the money really was going into munitions.

The security for the loan was to be certain concessions in the interior of China and on the Yangtze River.

Everyone knows China never would be able to pay the loan, so such a transaction would only mean that the French were purchasing new foreign concessions in China.

SUSPICIONS

Our people are suspicious about such whispered diplomatic explanations, especially when these come from the Japanese. The Japanese record for diplomatic veracity is considerably under 100 per cent.

Our official Far Eastern experts are more inclined to believe that the Japanese were shooting at the League of Nations. The League's Far Eastern Commission is to meet early next month to decide what to do about Japan's conquest of Manchuria.

All that does not explain, however, why Japan specifically attacked American trade relations with China.

BACKTRACKING

Our State Department crowd has heard from Japanese sources that Japan will not give us an opportunity to respond to her new Chinese policy. Apparently the matter is to be left in its present unofficial condition. No official announcements of the policy are to be sent out from Tokio.

HOUSES

The only big bad wolves who live in that little red house in Georgetown are Tom Corcoran (RFC attorney) and Ben Cohen (PWA attorney). The three or four others who live with them are not outstanding New Dealers. The "little" house is one of the largest mansions in that section.

Jim Landis (FTC) lives ten miles away in Virginia. Prof. Tugwell (AAA) resides in his own house several blocks away. They are all working so hard at their individual tasks that they rarely get together.

About the only thing they have in common is that they all live in houses, and hate Wall street.

TOUGH GUYS

Leroy Peterson (Consumers' counsel, AAA) is now known in gangland circles as "Dangerous Pete."

He was handling a code for an industry controlled, unbeknown to him, by racketeers. In a conference with him in New York they started to rough him up a little. Assuming them to be ordinary business men, Peterson roughed them right back. He laid down the law to them and won his point.

Later, he noticed several guns sticking out of their back pockets. But, by that time, the gangsters enjoyed Peterson's style so much they offered him $25,000 a year to represent them on the code authority. He declined and became the government's representative at something like $6,000.

HANK

The Japanese censors refused to let the foreign correspondents tell half the story about the recent coronation of Henry Pu-Yi as emperor of Manchukuo.

Among the incidents the censors suppressed was the one about the difficulty of getting Henry, familiarly known as Hank, into an automobile for the coronation. With the royal headgear on, Hank could not sit up straight in the seat.

The American automobile representatives held a consultation and decided to remove the rear seat. They strapped down the seat springs three inches so Hank would fit in.

Hank would have been crowned before the coronation if the straps broke.

ALLIANCE

The Russians say they have confidential dimplomatic information of a secret alliance between Japan and Germany. Earlier in the spring, the Russians expected to be attacked by Japan, on one hand, and by Germany, Poland and Finland, on the other.

Rumors of such an alliance have long been current, yet lack authoritative substantiation.

DEBATE

If you want to read the best brief opposing arguments in the current debate on the New Deal, get the speeches of Eugene Meyer and Prof. Tugwell before the American Society of Newspaper Editors here.

Prof. Tugwell's speech was as carefully prepared as any New Deal statement of policy that has gone out of the Department of Agriculture. It is the first able answer to current New Deal criticism.

Meyer presented the other side better than has been done before.

NOTES

Members of Roosevelt's Harvard graduating class say that the reunion held at the White House was the driest and most colorful in the class's 30-year history . . . Senator Borah was the man behind the curtains who induced the silverites to resist Mr. Roosevelt's idea on permissive rather than mandatory powers. Borth hit on that one once before and was disappointed when the President failed to use the silver powers Congress gave him . . . The Roosevelt dollar policy is costing the Carnegie Peace Endowment $50,000 a year to pay the dollar disparity for its workers abroad.

NAVY EN ROUTE, GUARD CANAL

BALBOA, C. Z., April 24.—(AP.)—The sun rose over the horizon of the Pacific Ocean today to illuminate a steady stream of United States Navy warships still moving through the Panama Canal in the procession maintained for 24 hours past.

The transit of 111 warships, which began at 5:11 a. m. yesterday, was not completed in the 24 hours suggested before the maneuver began, but the completion appeared probable before nightfall.

All commercial shipping was tied up. Among those delayed was the British cruiser H. M. S. Exeter, which had asked for a quick transit.

As dawn broke, Navy scouting planes started a patrol above the Canal Zone, and a few minutes later the pursuit ships from Albrook Field were in the air, flying back and forth across the canal.

The whole organization gave the appearance of war days, with military units on duty everywhere.

Too Much Realism Injures Film Actor

MARKHAM, 82, FOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP.)—Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," greeted his 82d birthday yesterday with the observation that President Roosevelt is "one of the greatest men of modern times." He said:

"I stand strongly for him. One of the heaviest burdens a President ever assumed was on his shoulders—not excepting Lincoln. And I think he is showing a great deal of intelligence."

Of himself, the bearded poet said he was "more celebrated than I want to be," and expressed the opinion that those who arrange his birthday parties get more fun out of it than he does.

School Painting Job Contract Up to Board

The Board of Public Education today was to act upon a recommendation of the Property and Supplies Committee for the award of contracts for painting work at the various city schools. How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sweets Have a Place In the Diet

"You may have a piece of candy after your nap," a young mother said to her five-year-old son in the presence of the child's grandmother. This dear lady was horrified and said that in her youth sweets were considered harmful to the health of young children.

Dr. Copeland

Our attitude in the feeding of children has changed greatly in the last 25 years. With increased knowledge we know that certain foods, condemned not so long ago, are today considered health-giving foods.

Doctors who specialize in the care of children tell mothers that candy and sweets in moderation, should be included in the diet of children. This change in attitude has been brought about only as a result of careful study and investigation.

Candy is sugar in a flavored and easily digested form. It is accepted as a food and supplies the body with nourishing substances that are equal in food value to other substances found in less palatable form.

Candy and sweets are an immediate supply of energy, so necessary for active and growing youngsters. Their use relieves fatigue and sometimes aids in bringing about a peaceful and restful sleep. This is confirmed by a recent report which states that heavy sugar eaters have fewer dreams and rest more quietly than those who refrain from eating sweets.

Of course, overeating of candy and sweets is not advised. Like any other food substance, when taken in excess, it leads to marked interference in appetite and causes digestive disturbances. It is not advisable to include in the diet, sugars, candies and other rich carbohydrate foods if you are a sufferer from acne or other similar skin disturbance.

In what I have said I do not mean to imply that candy can be substituted for other foods. But it is really a food and can well be included in the daily menu. For children who are active and energetic in their play, it is an excellent fuel substance and can be given without any hesitancy.

Do not be misled by the once popular notion that candy and sweets lead to cavities of the teeth. Cavities only occur when the teeth are neglected and infection is allowed to persist. Daily brushing of the teeth, periodic visits to the dentist, and a daily well-balanced diet that includes milk and fresh fruits and vegetables, are required to prevent dental cavities.

If everyone realized the significance and importance of moderate amounts of sweets in the diet, I am sure there would be fewer digestive disturbances. Remember that it is better to eat the foods that appeal to you than to choose only the things that are supposed to be good for you.

BEAUTY OF DESIGN now complements the refrigerator mechanism famous for its performance record throughout the world.

Seven years ago General Electric introduced the first Monitor Top refrigerator. 15 previous years of research, in the famous General Electric House of Magic, had perfected a matchless mechanism that set a new standard for quiet, dependable, trouble-free refrigeration service at low cost.

In less than five years 1 out of every 3 electric refrigerators in America's homes was a General Electric Monitor Top. It became universally recognized as the standard of excellence. Even in the movies you will note a General Electric Monitor Top refrigerator is invariably shown when the scene represents a model kitchen.

Here is the refrigerator with a mechanism that is built for a lifetime, hermetically sealed within walls of ageless steel, and requiring no attention from you, not even oiling.

Now, to perfected and proved mechanical performance that is unequalled, General Electric adds brilliant beauty and distinguished cabinet styling. The skill and genius of America's foremost designers has been drawn upon, and in these new de luxe models General Electric offers you the aristocrats of all refrigerators. They have created the style sensation of 1934!

There are only two styles of electric refrigerators... Monitor Top and flat-top. See them both at our show rooms. If you haven't seen the new 1934 General Electric Refrigerators, we believe you will be agreeably surprised at their distinct and beautiful styling. We suggest that you take enough time to look at the G-E Refrigerators now on display at any of our three conveniently located stores. We know you will like them.

GHOSTLY HANDS PAY $225,000

KANSAS CITY, April 24—AP.)—Unseeing hands, dealing through a slightly opened door between two hotel rooms, today had restored approximately $225,000 in allegedly stolen stocks and bonds to the Independence (Kan.) State Bank.

In a strange transaction, shrouded by secrecy, the securities were delivered to attorneys for the bank by unidentified negotiators here last night.

By prearrangement, the securities were divided into five packages, each of which was to be turned over separately to the bank's attorneys upon payment of $5,000. After a package was handed through the door, it was taken to an institution acting as a fiscal agent, checked and $5,000 went to the parties making the delivery.

AUTO HITS POLE, LIGHTS PUT OUT

A freak accident in which two men were slightly injured disrupted the electric light and telephone service in the North Hills Estates district, Perrysville, today.

Herbert Saeber, driver, and Eugene Obrosky, both of Avalon, suffered minor injuries when the automobile in which they were riding swerved off the Perry highway, striking a telephone pole and snapping it in half.

Residents of the district were prevented from phoning the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue, because telephone service was temporarily interrupted by the broken pole.

In Paris
—With—
Jane Eads

PARIS, April 24.—News trickled to Paris from the Riviera today, that H. G. Wells, famous British novelist, is no longer "romancing" with Odette Keum, Dutch writer, and that his new flame is an exotic Russian beauty he met in Russia some years ago.

The broken idyll of the Wells-Odette romance is mourned both in Paris and at Grasse, where they used to give parties at the Villa Loupidou for world celebrities like Charlie Chaplin, Lloyd George, the Agha Khan and others.

Wells and Odette parted "friends," as the saying goes, but she is planning a trip to Africa. Her friends say that Odette, who wrote "Adventures in Bolshevik Russia," is planning a book about Wells, but that it will probably be "mild."

I hear from a very authentic source that Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Gertrude Lawrence are still trying to cover up their unsuccessful attempt to get a marriage license at Palma, Mallorca, when young Doug visited her there recently.

King Prajadhipok, of Siam, has become a real stage-door Johnny. Whenever he goes to the theater, which he does frequently, he goes backstage. His last expedition of this kind occurred the other night when he went backstage to compliment Mary McCormic, American opera singer, on her performance at the Opera Comique. The King's exquisite little wife, Queen Rambai Barni, always accompanies him backstage.

Seen in Paris at the newly reopened swanky Ambassadeurs: Senora Sert, who was Princess Mdivani before her marriage to the famous artist, Jose Maria Sert. Mme. Sert was wearing flowered organdy with a lei of wildflowers around her neck.

Her sister-in-law, the latest of the Mdivani princesses, the former Barbara Hutton, American heiress to the Woolworth fortune, was also there, looking very much a princess in satin and rubies, the newest whim of Parisian fashionables.

PRINCESS MDIVANI . . . A princess who looks like a princess

Mme. Paul Dubonnet, the former Jean Nash, was observed at Cannes the other night in a black lace tulle trained gown which caught many an eye, as she was the only woman at the Casino with a train on her gown.

To return to the Mdivani entourage, young Jimmy Donahue, Barbara's cousin, is en route to British East Africa for a hunting trip to "forget all about it," it being his broken engagement to Dorothy Fell.

Mrs. Percy Brooksbank, the former Annabelle Ralph, of Los Angeles, and her husband are always among the first to go out at Cannes "when the cows come home." But after a gala night at the Casino, they themselves are are only milkmen early morning stragglers meet.

They have a model dairy farm and have been teaching some of Cannes socially prominent residents how to milk cows. The trick is to do the milking while in evening dress.

Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, who has been visiting Lady Furness, has gone to Oslo to visit her third sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, whose husband is counsellor at the American legation.

Hollywood spies are trying to lure the dark, handsome, dashing Prince Karam, of Kapurthala, to Hollywood for a screen test. He is cold to all offers, although the petite princess frankly says she would like Hollywood and even admits her coiffure of close-cropped curls was inspired by the latest Hollywood films.

She is not investing in Paris gowns and is remaining faithful to her native costume of pale gray robes with a silver woven border rope of huge pearls and turquoise and diamond earrings.

JUNIOR PATROL

Be sure about what you know, fellows!

You would be surprised how many people go around believing things that aren't true at all.

They just get these notions in their head, or else they read something that is false somewhere, and they think it is the truth.

It used to be, for example, that people thought you were crazy if you told them that the world was flat. Some people think so today! It doesn't seem possible does it? Now, even the smallest children know that the world is round as a ball. And they understand, dimly, that the people and the houses and everything else on the earth sticks on it because the earth is always pulling everything on it toward the center. We call this pull, or attraction, gravity. A man named Newton was one of the first to figure that out when an apple fell. He wondered what made it fall, and then he tried to find out why.

Many people think that a brass pin is more poisonous than any other kind. Now we all know that it isn't the brass pin that poisons people. It is the microbes, the invisible little animals everywhere that may be sticking on the pin. They get into us through the blood, and make us ill. But of course a brass pin isn't any worse than a steel pin or a gold pin. Microbes stick on any kind of metal, brass, iron, copper, gold, silver or anything.

Some people think that the sun is nearer the earth in summer than it is in winter. But the astronomers can measure the real distance. They know that the sun is nearer to the earth in winter. They can prove it!

But because the sun makes heat on the earth, and because it is warmer than in winter people jump to the conclusion that it is nearer. The truth is that the earth is warmer in summer than in winter because the earth tilts on its axis until the rays of the sun don't have to pass slantwise through the

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

-:- Viewing the New -:-

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

When you stop to consider how many situations you "face" . . . it's time you were stopping a moment to really think of your FACE! That's what we have on our mind today . . . this thing called faces!

Every time we stop to talk to a representative of one of the beauty preparation houses, we are struck afresh with the amazing good looks she has . . . lovely skin . . . clear, unworried eyes. (And, after all, she must have as many worries as most of us, don't you think?) Yes . . . these women are just simple mortals, but they KNOW how to take care of themselves.

And here's one way—never let your skin go dry . . . or stay dry. That's the first way to invite lines . . . even so-called "character" lines. A good antidote or preventive is the Herbal Oil Blend that a well-known house has put out. This is an oily cream . . . smelling of fresh, clean herbs (just good old-fashioned "yarbs") . . . that you smooth over your face when going to bed, and leave on at night. It's $2 for a very ample size (it goes a long way) and a wise addition to almost any toilet kit.

Included in the same collection . . . for we went into this very exhaustively . . . is a Creme Masque. A pink marshmallowy cream that tightens, smooths, youthifys, and refreshes all in one. An ideal treatment for that hurried must-get-ready-and-look-nice-in-twenty-minutes!

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

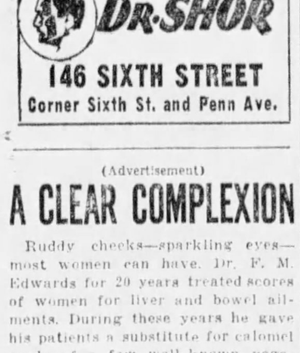
Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets — now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Spent Two Days in Bed



No More Pain or Backache

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets for painful periods, backache and headache," says Mrs. Hattie Shaner of 120 East Cherry Street, Cherokee, Iowa. "Usually I spent two days in bed. I saw these Tablets advertised in the papers. My aunt recommended them too. I do not have pains now like I used to." Try this medicine yourself. Sold at all drug stores.

Electric Refrigerator

FRIGIDAIRE

MODEL ILLUSTRATED $155

4.1 Cu. Ft. Capacity . . . 8.4 Sq. Ft. Area

Every year, Frigidaire, with its backing of General Motors, has contributed important developments that have made it a leader. The famous two-cylinder compressor with its super-power produces super-refrigeration at the lowest cost. The new Frigidaires have kitchen-planned interiors—even the smallest models are marvels of spaciousness. Plenty of bottle room and a sliding dairy basket for eggs, butter, and small packages are among the features.

Frigidaires begin at $115

Just any Refrigerator and any Store won't do, if real and lasting satisfaction is desired. The Make must be one of tried and proved service. The Store must be one that can be trusted to make good every guarantee and promise. Terms, also, are important. Here again the reputation of the store is one's only assurance of fair, square and pleasant dealings.

Horne's qualifies fully on all of these points. It offers only world-accepted Standard Makes (those which lead the field in sales); its resources and reputation guarantee the fulfillment of every promise, and its Terms will stand comparison with any for reasonableness and satisfaction.

Ask About Our New Payment Plan

It meets every normal requirement of EASY and CONVENIENT TERMS—a small down payment, and the balance distributed over an extended period of months. We will be glad to point out the distinct saving in Horne terms over some of the sensationally advertised terms. Let us explain the Horne Payment Plan fully to you.

Coast Trip for National Winner!

By J. JAMES MOORE,
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Say, Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen, wouldn't you like to win a three-day trip to Washington, D. C., the nation's capital, and visit the many government buildings, make a sightseeing tour to the various points of interest about the city, visit the home of George Washington at Mount Vernon, see the tomb of the unknown soldier and the beautiful amphitheater at Mount Arlington National Cemetery? Sure you would. Every boy and every girl is anxious to make this trip, and I am going to make it possible for four members of the Junior Birdmen—two Group "A" members and two Group "B" members—to be our guests on just such a trip.

As prizes in our first activity—a motto contest—we will award to the two boys or girls in each age group, sending in the best motto for our organization, one of these fine three-day tours of our national capital. What a prize! But wait, that isn't all!

All Expenses To Be Paid

All expenses of the four winners—air trip down and back, residence at fashionable hotel, sightseeing around the city, tour through White House, Capitol and other buildings, trip to Mount Vernon and Mt. Arlington, and other interesting features, will be paid for by the Junior Birdmen. Here is your opportunity to be our guest in the nation's capitol as a winner in our first activity.

I told you that this would be a very easy contest, one in which every boy and girl could take part in and have an equal opportunity to win one of the fine awards. Well, here is all there is to it:—

Every organization has a motto, whether it be "Do A Good Turn Daily," "Preparedness is our Creed" or America First." We, too, should have a motto and it is up to you members to find one for us. Every Junior Birdmen wing city is conducting this activity to seek an official motto and every wing city is offering four major awards of its own, similar to the three-day trips to Washington which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing is offering members in the Pittsburgh area. After the four best mottos are selected in each town by the wing commander and his committe, they will be forwarded to national headquarters where a national committee, to be announced in this column shortly, will choose the prize winning motto.

As an additional award, the national winner, whose motto will become the official motto of the junior birdmen, will receive a transcontinental trip on a fast United Air Line Boeing passenger transport plane. Just think of it—an opportunity to make a coast to coast trip by airplane! A seven-day tour with a stop off at the Chicago World Fair.

If a member in one of our eastern cities is the victor, he will be flown to San Francisco or Los Angeles where he will be feted. If a western boy or girl is the winner, he or she will be brought to New York where due arrangements for an interesting stay will be arranged. Should a member from one of our wing cities elsewhere in the country, such as Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee or Omaha, submit the best motto, he may choose either New York or the West Coast as his or her destination and an extra side trip will be arranged to cover that part of the cross-country trip he or she lost.

Send In Your Mottos

So, you Sun-Telegraph wing members, here is a chance for you not only to win a three-day trip to the nation's capital, but a cross-country flight to the west coast as well.

Here is all you have to do:

Get out a piece of paper and pencil and jot down all the worthwhile mottos you can think of for the Junior Birdmen. They must be original. Following are the rules. They are easy, so be sure to follow them closely:

1—No boy or girl may compete in the Junior Birdmen motto contest unless he or she is a member of the Junior Birdmen organization. Boys and girls who sent in applications for membership but have not as yet received their membership may submit mottos. By the time the winners are chosen, their memberships will have been sent out and their name included on our records.

2—All mottos must be sent to the Junior Birdmen wing through which you enrolled. Be sure you put the words "Motto Contest" in lower left corner when you address your envelope.

3—Members may send in as many mottos as they choose. Be sure to put your name and address on each list you send in.

4—In case of a tie, all tie-ing contestants will receive the full award.

5—Slogans may contain any number of words, but preferably few.

6—All slogans must be in the mail by Monday, midnight, April 30.

7—Announcement of the names of the local winners will be made in the Junior Birdmen column of Sunday, May 6. Announcement of national winner will be made at a later date.

That's all there is to it, members, and, believe me, it's going to be worth your while to send in a prize slogan. Be one of the first to get your list in. Certainly you can think of some very interesting ones.

Washington Trip Itinerary

In tomorrow's column I will give you the complete itinerary of the four three-day trips to Washington, D. C., being offered in our motto contest. On Thursday Mr. Larence Shaw, your national director, will give you the complete details of the national award—a seven-day trans-continental trip from coast to coast, and what a trip it will be. Some boy or girl is going to be lucky! It can be you!

Don't forget tomorrow we will also have the second list in our dictionary series. Don't miss it.

Happy landings!

M'NAIR TO SWEAR SMITH ON TRACTION BOARD

Announcement Soon of Pinchot - Shannon Coalition Here

By MARK SHIELDS

Coalition between the Pinchot and Shannon forces in Allegheny County neared actual public announcement today following conferences between leaders of both groups and a discussion of the subject last night by two-score Pinchot lieutenants from all parts of the county.

Mr. Shields

Lieut. Gov. Shannon, seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, is being represented in the negotiations by County Controller Robert G. Woodside, while Judge Ralph H. Smith is acting for Gov. Gifford Pinchot, opponent of Senator David A. Reed for the senatorial nomination.

The only concrete accomplishment of last night's interchange among the Pinchot group was the selection of Attorney Horace J. Thomas, Jr., as manager of the Governor's campaign in Allegheny County. Mr. Thomas, who lives in Coraopolis Heights, has offices in the same suite with the private office of Judge Smith, and has been suggested for appointment to the vacancy on Common Pleas Court bench caused by the death of the late Judge Sylvester J. Snee.

Arrangements such as those being worked out between the Shannon and Pinchot forces here require some time to perfect. It is something of a political marriage of convenience, and figuratively speaking there are certain marital documents to be signed involving dower rights, etc. These must be scanned to be sure that neither party to the felicity gets the best of it.

As sure as anything can be in politics, however, the Pinchot contingent through Judge Smith within a day or two will express approval of Shannon, coupling with that indorsement some criticism of Attorney General William A. Schnader, one of Shannon's opponents, because he has been indorsed by the Mellon-Grundy-Vare alliance.

McGovern Expected in Shannon Movement

But there will be reciprocal committments, under which some leaders of the Shannon movement unmistakably will indicate their preference for Gov. Pinchot over Senator Reed. To be mutually successful there can be no halfway measures or one-sided agreements, an opinion held particularly by the Pinchot group, which is in a better position than the Shannon outfit to ask concessions.

If things work out as they are projected, the tie-up between the two factons will be unmistakable.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, veteran of Pinchot campaigns, also is expected to join the Shannon movement, though not through relation to any agreement made between Judge Smith and Controller Woodside. The chairman of the county board has said nothing officially, but he is opposed to Schnader and recently has expressed himself sympathetically toward the Lieutenant Governor.

William B. McFall, chairman in Allegheny County of the Schnader campaign, has asked Walter J. Christy, former political writer and delinquent tax collector, to manage the Schnader campaign in Pittsburgh. Mr. Christy is an experienced and uncanny strategist, associated with the Oliver family when it was a power in Pittsburgh politics.

In recent years the Oliver faction was taken over by—or willed to—Senator James J. Coyne, but there never has been any great warmth between the Senator and Mr. Christy. One thing operating against acceptance of the offer by Mr. Christy is that his son-in-law, Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, is a candidate for renomination in the Thirty-eighth district.

Both Sides Flirting With McDevitt Friends

The presence of Mr. Christy in the Schnader camp might turn the Shannon contingent against Senator Armstrong, and involve him in a factional struggle.

Withdrawal as a gubernatorial candidate of Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Philadelphia, has freed some ward leaders who are being flirted with by both the Shannon and Schnader forces. President Jim Clark, of the Philadelphia Board of County Commissioners, who urged McDevitt to run, is antagonistic to City Chairman James M. Hazlett, who is in the Schnader camp, but it is assumed this will not be sufficient basis to keep a number of McDevitt's friends from joining the Attorney General.

Judges Albert S. C. Millar, Robert E. Lamberton and George A. Welsh, of Philadelphia, also are expected to retire. Judge Lamberton at one time was seriously considered as the organization candidate, but was knocked out of consideration by objections from Grundy lieutenants. Judge Millar, if he retires, will declare for Mr. Schnader. Judge Welsh is on the federal bench.

Mayor William N. McNair this afternoon took time off from throwing out party officers from city jobs to make the first toss at the Pirate opener. It could not be determined from a distance whether he was throwing a "screw ball," a la Hubbell, or an apple.

Headquarters of Judge E. E. Bonniwell, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, announced today that he had been indorsed by the Italo-American Democratic Club.

Dickens Tried Hard to Win Reconciliation With His Maria

Offered Pure and Lasting Love, But Was Upset at Learning Sweetheart Had Revealed Confidences, Letters Disclose

ited from me in any unguarded moment, I can safely say that I never made a confidante of any one.

I am perfectly willing to admit that if I had wished to secure a confidante in whom candour, secrecy and kind honorable feeling were indispensable requisites I could have looked to no one better calculated for this office than yourself; but still the making you the depositary of my feelings or secrets, is an honor I never presumed to expect, and one which I certainly must beg most positively to decline—a proof of self-denial in which so far as I learn from other avowed confidantes of yours, I am by no means singular.

I have not hesitated to speak plainly because I feel most strongly on this subject. The allegation—if it were not grossly untrue—I again say tending so materially to inculpate me, and the assertion itself having been made (so far as I can learn at least, for it has reached me in a very circuitous manner) certainly not in the most unaffected or delicate way.

I hope you will understand that in troubling you, I am not actuated by any absurd idea of self-consequence. I am perfectly aware of my own unimportance, and it is solely because I am so; because I would much rather mismanage my own affairs, than have them ably conducted by the officious interference of any one, because I do think that your interposition in this instance, however well intentioned, has been productive of as much mischief as it has been uncalled for.

And because I am really and sincerely desirous of sparing you the meanness and humiliation of acting in the petty character of an unauthorized go-between that I have been induced to write this note—for the length of which I beg you will accept my apology.

I am, dear Miss Leigh,

Your &c.,
CHARLES DICKENS.

After reading all this Maria Beadnell replied immediately so that her letter reached him Saturday. Before returning the one he proposed to send to Marianne, she copied it carefully and thus it was fortunately preserved for posterity. She wrote that Marianne would probably blame her for the whole trouble; then after asking to see Marianne's answer she deigned to give him permission to write to her again, if he chose. There is no record that Miss Leigh ever answered his letter.

* * *

THE FOLLOWING "conciliatory note" is the last one in existence that he wrote at this period; it tells of his love as only he could relate it. It shows also how deeply Maria had wounded him, and that he had little hope of a favorable reply. The note read:

18 Bentinck Street,
Sunday morning.

Dear Miss Beadnell:

I am anxious to take the earliest opportunity of writing to you again, knowing that the opportunity of addressing you through Kolle—now my only means of communicating with you—will shortly be lost (Kolle was to marry Anne Beadnell) and having your own permission to write to you, I am most desirous of forwarding a note which had I received such permission earlier, I can assure you you would have received ere this.

Before proceeding to say a word upon the subject of my present note let me beg you to believe that your request to see Marianne Leigh's answer is rendered quite unnecessary by my previous determination to show it to you, which I shall do immediately on receiving it—that is to say, if I receive any at all.

If I know anything of her art or disposition, however, you are mistaken in supposing that her remarks will be directed against yourself. I shall be the mark at which all the anger and spleen will be directed—and I shall take it very quietly, for whatever she may say I shall positively decline to enter into any further controvery with her.

I shall have no objection to break a lance, paper or otherwise, with any champion to whom she may please to entrust her cause, but I will have no further correspondence or communication with her personally or in writing. I have copied the note and done up the parcel which will go off by the first Clapton Coach tomorrow morning.

And now to the object of my present note. I have considered and reconsidered the matter, and I have come to the unqualified determination that I will allow no feeling of pride, no haughty dislike to making a conciliation to prevent by expressing it without reserve.

I will advert to nothing that has passed; will not again seek to excuse any part I have acted or to justify it by any course you have ever pursued; I will revert to nothing that has ever passed between us—I will only openly and at once say that there is nothing I have more at heart, nothing that I more sincerely and earnestly desire, than to be reconciled to you.

It would be useless for me to repeat here what I have so often said before; it would be equally useless to look forward and state my hopes for the future—all that anyone can do to raise himself by his own exertions and unceasing assiduity I have done, and will do.

I have no guide by which to ascertain your present feelings and I have, God knows, no means of influencing them in my favor.

I never have loved and I never can love any human creature breathing but yourself. We have had many differences, and we have lately been entirely separated. Absence, however, has not altered my feelings in the slightest degree, and the love I now tender you is as pure and as lasting as at any period of our former correspondence. I have now done all I can to remove our most unfortunate and to me most unhappy misunderstanding. The matter now, of course, rests solely with you, and you will decide as your own feelings and wishes direct you.

I could say much for myself and I could entreat a favorable consideration on my own behalf, but I purposely abstain from doing so because it would be only a repetition of an oft told tale and because I am sure nothing I could say would have the effect of influencing your decision in any degree whatever. Need I say that to me it is a matter of vital import and the most intense anxiety?

I fear that the numerous claims which must necessarily be made on your time and attention next week will prevent your answering this note within anything like the time which my impatience would name. Let me entreat you to consider your determination well, whatever it be, and let me implore you to communicate it to me as early as possible. As I am anxious to convey this note into the city in time to get it delivered today, I will at once conclude by begging you to believe me,

Yours sincerely,
CHARLES DICKENS.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, they had Dillinger surrounded and was all ready to shoot him when he come out, but another bunch of folks come out ahead. So they just shot them instead. Dillinger is going to accidentally get with some innocent bystanders some time, then he will get shot.

Here is the usual daily A. P. dispatch from Indiana:

"MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., April 24.—Four prisoners, three serving life terms, escaped from the prison today."

An Indiana sentence from a judge reads:

"You are sentenced to prison as long as its made comfortable for you and you desire to remain. In checking out kindly let warden know, so he will know how many will be there for supper."

COUNCIL POWER NEAR LAPSE, MAYOR SAYS

Smiles Off Finley Rebuff in Telling Trolley Plans

Irritated because City Council has again ignored the appointment of Safety Director Ralph E. Smith to the Traction Conference Board, Mayor McNair has threatened to swear Smith in as a member of the board by the end of this week if Council does not act.

Council's direct refusal by a vote of 5 to 4 to remove Charles A. Finley to make a place for City Assessor Peter J. DeMuth seemed to have comparatively little effect on the Mayor. He said:

"I have nothing to do with that. It's my place to send in appointments. What have they done about Ralph Smith?"

COMPLICATIONS LOOM

Informed that Council left the Smith appointment and the dismissal of W. Edgar Reed severely alone, the Mayor said:

"If Council don't act within 30 days from the date of the appointment, Smith is in. I'll send him a check for Reed's pay."

The Mayor explained he would act under a clause of the city charter which automatically confirms appointments not acted upon by Council in 30 days. The period is up in the Smith case next Saturday.

However, since the salaries are paid under the Traction Conference Agreement and by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, the Mayor may run into complications in adjusting the pay checks.

OPPOSED BY DEMOCRATS

The resolution refusing to remove Finley was presented yesterday by P. J. McArdle. It was opposed by the Democratic bloc, members of which expressed the fear that it would commit them permanently against the elimination of Finley.

McArdle said:

"For reasons that seem sufficient to the Mayor, he insists on putting in these removals and appointments in the way he likes best. I am assuming his intention to remove Finley, and presuming to find a way to give him a quick answer."

William A. Magee added fervently:

"And a final one, too."

Instead of sending separate resolutions for removal and appointment, the Mayor has been lumping them in one letter.

Council President Robert Garland declared that Council is not permanently bound by resolutions and may vote at any time in the future for the removal of Finley.

Traction Pact Extension As Student Aid, Plea

HARRISBURG, April 24.—(AP.)—J. J. Kennedy, assistant city solicitor of Pittsburgh, told the Public Service Commission yesterday that extension of a Traction Conference Board agreement between the city and the Pittsburgh Railways Company would permit the continuance of negotiations for special rates for school children and reinstatement of a "weekely pass" for car riders.

W. G. Negley, counsel for the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny County, protested the continuance of the contract, charging that it has failed in its purposes and is "illegal."

Negley charged the contract is illegal because of a provision that charges for paving and similar work due the city from the company may be canceled if the company fails to earn capital and budget requirements during the year. He said payments, totaling $983,000, have been wiped out because of this clause and termed the money equal to a "gift."

Philip A. Fleger and E. R. Griffiths, counsel for the Philadelphia Company, contended the pact, originally drawn for 10 years, but extended until 1933, has enabled the city and company to bring an end to litigation which cost about $1,000,000 in the four years preceding 1921. Of this sum, Fleger said, the city spent about $400,000.

Silver Shirt Plea Withdrawn in State

HARRISBURG, April 24.—(INS.)—The Silver Shirts of America, an alleged pro-Nazi organization, today had withdrawn an application for registration in Pennsylvania, against which more than 100 protests had been filed.

Jurists, attorneys and prominent civic leaders protested allowing the organization to do business in Pennsylvania.

MEHARD GIVING TALK ON U. S. DEFENSES

Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, World War veteran and officer of the Pennsylvania National Guard, was to speak on military preparedness at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board in the Keystone Athletic Club today. Gen. Mehard, who is also an Assistant County Solicitor, is an advocate for stronger national defense.

In a recent public address, Gen. Mehard deplored the weakness of the United States Army, Navy and air forces. He advocated building up the defense forces to the limit.

Gen. Mehard further advocated a policy of hands off as far as European entanglements are concerned. He warned against entrance into the League of Nations, expressing the fear that such entanglements might draw this country into another foreign conflict.

The stand of Gen. Mehard against entrance into the League is supported by more than 35,000 other residents of the Pittsburgh district who up to date have signed the petition being circulated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst Newspapers, protesting to Congress against any move which might force this nation into foreign entanglements.

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

RETAIL SCHOOL ENDS COURSE

More than 600 employes of Pittsburgh department stores who have just completed a six weeks' course of instruction under the Research Bureau of Retail Training, attended a dinner last night in Kaufmann's dining room.

The affair signalized the end of the course and was attended by store executives and members of the Research Bureau staff. Dr. David R. Craig, director of the institute, which is conducted by department stores under the supervision of the University of Pittsburgh, was chairman, and Edgar J. Kaufmann, executive of Kaufmann's store, was toastmaster.

Dr. Bernard Clausen, paster of the First Baptist Church, complimented the store workers for their enthusiasm in the institute training.

New Sewickley Choir Plans First Concert

The Sewickley Valley Choir, directed by Julian R. Williams, organist of St. Stephen's Church, will give its first concert in the Sewickley High School on May 22. Organized in January, the group is composed of more than 150 singers from Ambridge, Coraopolis, Aliquippa and the Sewickley Valley.

Oakmont Man, 69, Shot to Death

A bullet wound in his head and a .38-calibre revolver at his feet, the body of Frederick Shoup, 69, was found on the floor of his bedroom at 427 Tenth street, Oakmont, last night, according to the coroner's report.

A son, Donald Shoup, with whom the aged man made his home, told deputy coroners that his father had been under the care of a physician the last three weeks, they reported. Members of the household, attracted by the shot, found the body.

The Big Mystery!
HOW Can We Dress Your Entire Family Fashionably, Budget Your Payments Over Months, All Without A Cent of "Penalty"?
Well, we'll tell you. We are linked, for buying purposes, with 108 of the most active and enterprising stores in the country. When these 108 stores make a group purchase, we own the goods at the same price as W--------'s, Chicago, who can take thousands where we take dozens, or B--------y, Los Angeles, who similarly can use many a gross where we take a hundred. That's ONE tremendous advantage. Another is that we "stick to our knittin'"—confine our selling almost entirely to apparel lines—and specialize in one particular type of merchandising. The third big factor is the LOW EXPENSE at which we can do business. For these reasons we can offer you your choice of:
3 WAYS TO BUY Your New Spring Clothes
No. 1. Cash. No. 2. Regular Monthly (or department store) charge
No. 3. Budget Charge (with many months to settle your bill).
without charging you a nickel extra regardless of which way you buy. The baby's shoes or grandfather's new suspenders, brother's new topcoat or that glorious new ensemble for yourself—all of these, and a whole storeful besides, are at your service at this unique, three-way store that's going places faster than any apparel shop in Pittsburgh. Fresh shipments in all departments to-morrow—just a day or two from New York.

MT. RUSHMORE CONTESTANTS TO GET HELP

Assistance for adults and students alike who are participating in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition will be offered in the second of a series of three special radio broadcasts arranged by the Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Klein

This second outline of specific episodes of history that must be the basis of all the 600-word inscriptions entered by participants will be heard Thursday over Station WCAE at 5:45 p. m.

Clarence E. Klein, instructor in history at the Fifth Avenue High School, will be the educator interviewed. Mr. Klein will discuss the fourth, fifth and sixth episodes of the nine points of history needed. These subjects are: Ceding of the Floridas to the United States; Rise of the Republic of Texas and its entry into the Union; and the Mexican War and the acquisitions of California, respectively.

FIXEL TO EXPLAIN

The first three episodes were discussed last Thursday by Dr. John W. Oliver, professor in history, University of Pittsburgh. The episodes were: Writing of the Declaration of Independence; Drafting of the American Constitution; and Purchase of Louisiana. The final three episodes will be the subject next week of William G. Fixel, instructor in history at the Allegheny High School.

Every entrant of the tri-state district should listen to these instructive talks. While especially arranged to help the thousands of students participating through the public and parish schools, as well as universities, of the district, the discussions will be found equally important to adults and highly educational to non-participants.

OPEN TO ALL

The competition is open to every man, woman and child. It is nation-wide under the sponsorship of the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission. The winning 600-word entry, selected by the national committee of which President Roosevelt is chairman, will become the basis of the final inscription carved on the South Dakota national monument.

TWO OFFICIALS URGE COUNTY REFORMS

They delivered their sharp attacks at the annual convention dinner of the Allegheny County Association of Township Commissioners in Kaufmann's auditorium.

Nearly 150 delegates and guests heard Judge Smith urge careful study of proposals to eliminate unnecessary duplication, overlapping authority, red tape and useless expense, to reduce taxes and provide more efficient government.

Describing the present form of county government as "old-fashioned" and unsuited to modern needs, Judge Smith asserted:

"It's like adopting stage coach equipment to an airplane age."

Laying emphasis on existing unnecessary duplication, Judge Smith cited the fact that there are now 160 tax-levying bodies in Allegheny County.

Chairman McGovern reiterated his previous statements, stressing the need for reorganization and consolidation of units in the county government.

Louis C. Clark, president of the Mt. Lebanon Township Commission, admitted the need for changes in the present set-up of county government, but warned against permitting cities from encroaching on the rights of townships.

Philip H. Dewey, secretary of Internal Affairs for Pennsylvania, was among the speakers. Mayor William N. McNair, scheduled to make the address of welcome, had his dates mixed and could not appear. Theodore Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, substituted.

POLITICAL SIGNS MAR HIGHWAY

One of the most picturesque sections of Allegheny County is the latest scene of operations of political bill posters, who ignoring pleas of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, continued their work of desecration of both public and private property.

Scores of posters heralding the joint campaign of Herman C. Hofacker and Cyril F. Ruffennach, candidates for Legislature in the Twelfth District, have been nailed indiscriminately on poles, trees, cliffs and buildings along the Narrows Run road and other highways in the lower Ohio Valley districts.

The posters of Clarence A. Pearson, Forty-second Senatorial District candidate, nailed on many light poles in the East street district had, with few exceptions, been removed today. Candidate Pearson, following publication of the fact that his posters had been put up illegally, said it was done without his authorization by an over-enthusiastic supporter. Pearson promised to attempt to have all of them removed. Pearson said he is opposed to the desecration of either public or private property by political advertising matter.

M'Nair, M'Closkey Arrange Dry Tour

A plan for a state-wide anti-liquor speaking tour by Mayor William N. McNair, of Pittsburgh, and Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, was announced last night by Mayor McCloskey at a father-son banquet of the Seekers' and Sowers' Sunday School Class of the First Presbyterian Church, West View.

Mayor McNair, John McNeil, warden of the County Jail, and John Landis, teacher of English, Perry High School, also spoke.

Democrats Top G.O.P. Voters in 14 City Wards

Democrats are leading in 14 of Pittsburgh's 32 wards, according to a complete ward-by-ward total made today by the Registration Commission, following the city-wide registration last Saturday.

Some of the 18 Republican wards are ahead by a few votes only, while others show a substantial margin, particularly the Fourteenth and the Second.

The third and final registration day will be May 2, although up to May 5 electors may register at the office of the Commissioners in the County Office Building.

The total registration for Saturday was 49,782, about 11,000 more than the first day's, March 29, when approximately 20,000 Republicans and 18,000 Democrats enrolled. Of Saturday's total, 25,947 were Republicans and 23,835 Democrats.

The enrollment so far:

RWD PAY SCALE REJECTED BY STATE HEAD

Another problem was added to those facing the County Relief Work office today following word from Harrisburg that State Relief Work Division authorities had refused to accept a scale of wages for skilled labor submitted by a committee of Pittsburgh businessmen.

Rejecting the suggestions on all jobs except those hiring union labor, state officials said only a union scale would prevail on jobs employing skilled workers.

Compliance with the order would require the dismissal of several thousand workers, according to James L. Stuart, county RWD administrator, since funds now on hand are barely sufficient to pay the wages of the 18,000 employes on the RWD rolls.

Denouncing the salary system under the present setup, RWD disbursing office employes have written to Harrisburg denouncing wage cuts from $25 to $17.31 weekly.

The present situation, Stuart said, has some office workers earning 27 cents an hour as compared to a minimum of 50 cents an hour for laborers.

More dismissals are due before the end of the month, according to the local office. A hundred workers are to be released from the administrative forces, and all those still employed by the RWD but who were not welfare cases before the inauguration of the Civil Works Administration, are doomed to lose their jobs by April 30.

BIG GUNS FIRED BY DEMOCRATS

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 24.—(AP.)—The big political guns of the Democratic party are booming at the Republican strongholds in Northwestern Pennsylvania.

Candidates indorsed by the Democratic State Committee spoke at a rally last night—the last stop of a tour which led through Butler, Lawrence, Mercer and Venango counties.

Joseph F. Guffey, candidate for the United States Senate, predicted success for his party in November, asserting:

"We've had an election clean-up in Pittsburgh.

George N. Earle, running for Governor, compared the Republican organization to "the Bourbon dynasty in France which never learns anything; never forgets anything."

THREE CITIES TO REGISTER

Citizens who failed to register last fall in the third class cities of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, may do so tomorrow, thus enabling them to vote in the primary election May 15.

Registrars will sit at the polls from 8 a. m. to noon, 1 p. m. to 6 p. m., and 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. Returns from such enrollment must be made to County Commissioners before noon, Thursday.

MARGIOTTI HERE TOMORROW

Charles J. Margiotti, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, campaigned through Cambria County today, with a meeting scheduled for Johnstown. Yesterday Margiotti was active in appealing to voters in Erie County. His itinerary brings him into Pittsburgh tomorrow, and Thursday he will visit Dauphin, Snyder and Northumberland counties. He is scheduled for speeches in Sunbury at noon and Shamokin at night.

Philadelphia will be invaded Friday, the week-end will be spent in Reading, and Monday he will open his week's campaign in Pottsville.

Margiotti's Pittsburgh headquarters announced the appointment of Mrs. R. K. Cochrane, 4614 Fifth avenue, as vice chairman of the Allegheny County committee. Mrs. Cochrane is president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs and will have headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

Sore, burning feet
Due to Dermastalsis
Dangerous Foot Ailment Destroys Cells

BURNING, aching feet—piercing, throbbing foot pains—thick, hardened callouses...Beware these danger signs of dermastalsis. Check this harmful spreading foot ailment in time.

Dermastalsis actually feeds on living cells. The tough, fibrous, rock-like callous grows steadily inward, eating deep into the tissues. With every step you take it presses excruciatingly against the bruised, unprotected nerves and tissues. The stinging, unrelenting pain irritates and unnerves you—mars your face with early age lines.

Don't neglect this menace to your looks and comfort. End dermastalsis now—quickly, easily, pleasantly—by this simple home treatment method.

At night, before retiring, soak the feet in very hot water, for 15 minutes. Then rub in COOLENE, the new, ivory-white vanishing foot cream. Immediately you will feel the callous begin to soften—COOLENE'S healing, cooling oils and unguents penetrating deep into the sore, burning tissues beneath. Instantly draws out fiery inflammation—stops all irritation. Checks dermastalsis by removing painful pressure—SOFTENS, and in a short time, ACTUALLY TENDS TO DESTROY THE ENTIRE CALLOUS GROWTH.

Be sure to get COOLENE today. Your first application brings amazing relief. For a full day your feet will stay wonderfully cool, springy, untiring. COOLENE is greaseless—will not stain sheets or clothing

Things I Never Knew About Wines

(But which you're probably forgotten)

A glass of good cognac, after a heavy meal, will relieve that distressed feeling sooner than the usual pills and potions.

A champagne which is flat is not necessarily bad. Although the wine may have lost its effervescence due to age, it may be delicious as a still wine. (Champagne still tastes like vinegar to me, anyway.)

Ports, Sherries, Madeiras, Brandies and liqueurs should be stored standing upright, differing in this respect from other wines which would spoil if stored other than lying flat.

Red wines should be served at room temperature. Warmth will enhance the flavor of even an inferior wine. Sparkling Burgundy, however, should always be served cold.

Champagne should be served thoroughly iced. Dry white wines should be moderately chilled, and very sweet wines quite cold.

To thoroughly enjoy wines at a meal one should avoid oversweet cocktails and abstain from smoking until the meal is completed. Sherry is the only wine that permits the use of tobacco.

The drier the wine the less intoxicating it is. Sweet wines are usually very heady because of the higher percentage of alcohol due to the fermentation of sugar. (Boyoboyoboy! Am I feeling giddy!)

Never drink a red wine before a white wine, nor a Burgundy before a Bordeaux. Likewise, never drink a liqueur before a brandy. It is an unforgivable faux pas to put ice into any wine.

It is the labor and handling involved in the making of champagne that makes it so expensive.

It takes six years for a champagne vine to yield grapes of requisite quality and four to five years more for the actual process of converting this grape juice into champagne.

Champagne, contrary to the popular conception, is made mostly from black grapes. Only the juice extracted from the first pressing is suitable for making champagne. The juice of the red grapes is run off from the skins before fermentation—the wine remaining as white as the wine made from white grapes. (But it still tastes like vinegar to me.)

Cognac is made from grapes which are unfit to make good wine. According to French law, only the brandy made from grapes grown in the designated Cognac region can bear the name of Cognac.

Calvados is the French name for brandy distilled from cider. It is aged in the wood like other brandies and is exceptionally strong.

Rhine wines are drawn off in brown bottles. Moselle wines in green bottles. Steinwein comes from the region of Wurzburg in Bavaria. It is invariably bottled in a squat broad-bottomed flagon of green glass. The name Noxbeutel is applied to this particularly shaped bottle—and sometimes to the wine itself.

(Swell bottles for breaking heads.)

Champagne is not, as most people suppose, the most expensive of all wines. Very great Burgundies of famous years, and very great Rhine wines have been sold and still are for fabulous sums.

Champagne was first made in the seventeenth century by Dom Perignon, a Benedictine monk belonging to the Abbey of Hautvillers.

He discovered that by corking bottles of still champagne with wooden corks, the gas remained in the bottle when the wine underwent a secondary fermentation. At Rheims a monument is erected to him.

Tokay wines are excellent restoratives, and are most effective in the treatment of nervousness and anemia.

Israel Movie Shown In Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Dream of My People" is the title of a moving picture that opened in the Nixon last night. The significance of the title is in its implication of the aspiration of the Jewish people to repossess their ancient homeland, Palestine, and the establishment of a dwelling place for the children of Israel from any part of the world. Once this was a project—a proposal preached as Zionism.

Now it is a project in the making, and the picture shows what has been done, and is being done, in fulfillment of the dream. The presentation of the accomplishment of a few years is genuinely inspirational as well as being a most interesting exposition of many facts pertaining to a region sacred to both Jew and Christian—the Holy Land.

The late Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt is a central figure in many of the views, which, of course, are not in the nature of a dramatized photoplay, but of a travelogue through Palestine, connected only by a narrative delivered with fine effect by Zvee Scooler. Cantor Rosenblatt's voice is heard in sacred songs at the age-old shrines of the Jewish people, including the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, Rachel's Tomb, the Jordan and other scenes that date back to biblical times.

Contrasted with ancient walls, temples and ruins are the modern structures that have sprung up under the impetus that has resulted from the "dream" of the Jews. Contrasted with the ancient method of trampling out the grain is the modern threshing machine. Contrasted with the ass and the camel are the bicycle, the automotive truck, the steam locomotive and train and modern busses.

There are schools where the young people are taught agriculture, and crafts and arts and sciences. There are festive scenes attending harvests following close upon views of praying groups at the shrines of Israel—the ancient and the modern spectacularly opposed.

Perhaps most interesting of all are views of Tel Aviv, said to be the only entirely Jewish city in the world, a modern city in every respect, upon the site of what was but a small village a few years ago, according to the narrator.

Snake Dance In Variety

"Bonita," music hall dancer, known as the "Dresden Doll," shares top honors with Reggie "Tassels" White in "Kuddlin' Kuties," current attraction in the Variety. Her special offering, called the "Snake Dance," calls for the use of a live snake, represented to be an asp.

Miss White, who has established a record in the Variety for continuous performances, being in her eleventh week, again gives her original "tassel twisting" dance. Honey Bee Keller, Frances McAvoy, Ann Mitchell and Georgia St. George, all dancers, are on the bill also.

George Murray, Abe Sher, Max Furman and Joe De Rita are the comedians; Palmer Cote, juvenile; Arline Milbourne, prima donna, and Franklyn Hopkins, tenor, are the main cogs in the musical numbers.

Miss Oliver Guarded After Horoscope

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 24.—Filmland's champion believer in horoscopes is Edna May Oliver, the comedienne, who plays the fearless school teacher in screen murder mysteries.

Since Sunday, April 15, the actress has not taken a step outside her home unless she is accompanied by a six-foot bodyguard whose coat shows the obvious bulge of a concealed pistol. The protector even follows the star into the RKO commissary and sits at her table.

Wisecrackers, who twitted her about the new boy friend, finally got the truth out of the actress. She hired the body-guard because her horoscope warned of danger from violence during the two-week period from April 15 to 29. The advice was to be especially cautious about entering and leaving the studio or any crowded place.

The comedienne plans to leave for Europe as soon as she finishes her current picture. By that time the danger period will be over.

Darryl Zanuck sent Sam, the studio barber, to the preview of Frederic March's new picture, "The Affairs of Cellini." Later, he questioned him about the film.

"It's a swell comedy," said Sam, "but will the ordinary movie fan know who Cellini was?"

Zanuck disagreed and offered to bet the price of a shave that the first man to pass the barber shop door would be able to identify the great sixteenth century goldsmith and lover.

The first passerby was the janitor. Zanuck hailed him: "Do you know who Benvenuto Cellini was?"

"Sure," replied the janitor, Frederic March."

Frances Dee Endears Self To Fulton Audience

"Coming Out Party," current photoplay in the Fulton, is a rather trite story along conventional movie lines that has Frances Dee and Gene Raymond as young sweethearts, with Miss Dee getting entirely the best of it as far as audience sympathy is concerned. The picture, itself, is about one-third too long, and it will be liked best by those who get a kick out of those mushy embraces known as "clinches."

The story is that of a young society girl who loves a young musician, who hopes to marry her when he has "made a name" for himself, feeling that will break down any social barrier. But things happen that cause him to feel that he should marry her at once. By that time she already is married to someone else. So they just smooth away that little impediment with another clinch.

Miss Dee gives a likeable characterization, but Raymond isn't able to do much toward making the folks really like him in his part. He doesn't seem much more of a human being than the girl's parents, who look at him with extreme disdain.

Alison Skipworth, as a social secretary; Harry Green, as an orchestra manager, and Nigel Bruce, as a friendly butler who helps Miss Dee in her romance, add the fillip of comedy and folksy quality to a stuffed-shirt atmosphere.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"HERE'S a little yarn, Mark," writes Patsy Flick, "about an actor who hit success too swiftly for his own good. In a little more than a season, he clicked on radio, stage and screen. And he immediately became his own worst enemy.

"He went around with a prop smile, catered to phoney socialites and ignored those who had been his best friends in days gone by. All of which just about brings him to the present day.

"He was sitting in a Broadway restaurant the other evening when a man walked over to his table and extended a hand.

"'How are you, Frank?' he asked. 'It's good to see you again.'

"The actor went into his prop smile.

"'Thank you, sir,' was his reply. 'But let me see. I'm just trying to place where I met you. Oh, yes, I have it. It was in Chicago, when Lady Wiffing-proof gave her party for me.'

"The other man shook his head.

"'No, Frank,' he replied, '—

"The actor waved a hand.

"'Don't tell me,' he cried. 'I'll remember in a moment. Oh, now I remember. It was in Washington that we met. Or am I wrong again? Perhaps it was in Cleveland?'

"The other man sighed.

"'You might as well stop guessing, Frank,' he murmured. 'Don't you remember me? I'm your brother.'" . . .

"DEAR Mark:" writes R. P. C. "It actually happened in one of the better cafes the other midnight. A well known comedian was sitting at a table with a newly-found girl friend and was romancing her all over the place. Both of them were beautifully plastered.

"'You're a gorgeoush thing,' said the comic. 'You got mos' beautiful eyesh I ever saw.'

"'Thas right,' agreed the girl. 'I have got beautiful eyesh. Whataya want me to do 'bout it?'

"The comedian swayed closer.

"'Open 'em,' he said seriously. 'I'd like to see 'em!'" . . .

"DEAR Mark:" writes Sam Gevins. "A gigolo got himself into trouble last week. In a swanky Park Avenue apartment he was caught hiding beneath the bar by the irate husband of the woman in the case. But did the gigolo get excited? He did not.

"'Believe it or not,' he cracked nonchalantly, 'I'm waiting for a side-car.'" . . .

"THIS story has been going the rounds, Mark," writes Eric Broughton, "but perhaps it hasn't reached you yet. It has to do with a wealthy nut who, having nothing to do with his money, decided to build an outdoor swimming pool for the inmates of the asylum.

"In due time the pool was completed—and two of the gentler nuts were placed in charge. The rich bug stepped from the asylum of an afternoon and encountered one of the two guardians of the pool.

"'How are things going at the new pool?' he asked.

"'Great!' enthused the other. 'The boys are all having a marvelous time. They're diving in from all angles, and three or four of them have already tried the high dive. What fun they're having! And they can hardly wait for Saturday.'

"'Saturday?' repeated the wealthy nut. 'What's on Saturday?'

"'Oh,' grinned his companion happily, 'on Saturday we put the water in!'" . . .

"UP AT the Ha-Ha Club the other A. M.," writes Julie Johns, "Webster, the English cartoonist, told a tale that you might enjoy hearing. Possessing a seat for the opera and not caring to attend, he handed the ducat to a prize fighter of his acquaintance.

"The latter man struggled into evening attire and went to the performance. Webster met him later in the night and asked him how he had enjoyed himself.

"'Okay,' shrugged the pug. 'I guess it's all right for them that likes it.'

"'But, persisted Webster, 'that leading woman is supposed to be a marvel. Didn't she have a grand voice?'

"The fighter looked a trifle bored.

Frank Smith, S-51 Hero On Radio

Francis G. Smith, world-famous deep sea diver, and the ship's bell from the sunken submarine S-51, awarded to Smith for heroism in salvaging that craft, are heard over KDKA tonight at 7:15 during the Pittsburgh Varieties program.

Smith tells of being trapped in a tunnel cave-in under the hull of the S-51, 150 feet below the surface of the sea. He will be introduced by the Sun-Telegraph Aircaster.

A group of KDKA vocal artists, supported by Umberto D'Egizi's orchestra, round out the varieties program with a selection of sea songs.

Joan Marsh, motion picture star, is guest of Ben Bernie and all the lads, when they come to the air over WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock.

Aida Ward, stage star, and Fats Waller, radio favorite, join the "Harlem Serenade" cast tonight. The program is heard over WJAS every Tuesday evening at 10:45.

The second and concluding part of "The Rogue Song," Lehar's romantic operetta, is heard over WCAE in the Beauty Box Theater program at 10 p. m.

Freddy Martin and his orchestra are heard with Maury H. B. Paul, well-known to Sun-Telegraph readers as "Cholly Knickerbocker," begins a new series of weekly broadcasts over WJAS at 9 o'clock this evening.

A Diver and His Treasure

Frank Smith, Navy diver, and the ship's bell he recovered from sunken submarine S-51, are heard over KDKA tonight at 7:15. Smith recounts some of his adventures on the ocean bottom and rings the recovered bell over the air.

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

F. Beckley Smith, WJAS announcer, has seen a lot of Pittsburgh in the three months he has been here.

Smith came to Hugh Brennan's station from a little peanut whistle transmitter down in West Virginia just three months ago. Today, he was awarded fifth prize—$50.00—in the Sun-Telegraph "Know Your City Contest."

And it is said that the local sponsors pay $80,000.00 a month for his program.

Europes clever but shameless use of radio for insidious propaganda provides opponents with an argument against government subsidy of news broadcasts.

Most assiduous of all proselyting stations abroad are Germany's two powerful plants, whose short waves penetrate to all parts of the world.

They are DJC and DJD, which, obviously for the benefit (?) of Americans, use the English language between the hours of 9 and 11:30 p. m. Specially constructed directional aerials are pointed right at us, during these broadcasts.

Herr Hitler's propagandists aim to neutralize adverse sentiment in America, and they do the job with almost-disarming finesse.

They take the air in the guise of news commentators and open their discourses with innocuous items. But as they warm up to their work, they indulge suavely in highly-colored versions of the news which reflect honor and glory upon the Nazi headman.

Mystery Drama on WCAE

"A Man Disappears," a thrilling dramatization, is heard over WCAE at 7:30 p. m.

At 6:40, Howard Price, silver-voiced tenor, sings popular melodies; and at 7:15, the WCAE String Trio will harmonize.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

These are the days when you see a great many brush fires. I have been asked by Globe Trotters for advice on how to avoid such fires from spreading out of control.

I called the Fire Department and spoke to W. C. Karlen. Instead of finding out how to start and control brush fires and rubbish fires, I learned something that I didn't know before and something that should be passed on to you and that is that THE STATE LAW PROHIBITS THE STARTING OF ANY KIND OF A FIRE.

That means that those of you intending to burn out a field or a garden patch will be violating the law if you do so. Even a rubbish fire in the back yard is not permitted.

In case, however, one of these fires do get started the best way to cope with it is to use brooms and wet sacks to beat out the flames.

"SCHNADER—THE MAN"

(Advertisement)
Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well as Men
Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

CHEVROLET When you pay the price of a Knee-Action car, you naturally want genuine Knee-Action and all that goes with it. You want the new gliding ride at its smoothest, safest, and best. You want simple, foolproof, and trouble-proof construction—the huskiest, sturdiest front-end you can buy. And, of course, you want shock-proof steering—it is the natural companion of the gliding ride. You pay for these things, and you want them all—but you can get them, in the low-price field, only from Chevrolet. The reason is simple. Fully-enclosed Knee-Action wheels are costly to build—so costly that only Chevrolet, world's largest builder of cars, can afford to make the necessary huge investment in new machinery—and still keep prices among the lowest of the low. Only Chevrolet has the resources and the assured volume of sales that permit this extra production cost. Chevrolet does it because Chevrolet believes that, to KEEP ON SELLING THE MOST CARS, YOU MUST KEEP ON BUILDING THE BEST. And judging from the popularity of the 1934 car, America agrees with Chevrolet.

What Happens Inside when you take a Laxative?

NATURE'S WAY—a gentle flush

Most medicine laxatives work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract—lose their force when taken regularly. Pluto Water is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives results in less than one hour.

Pluto Water is gentle, effective—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve—permitting the flush to enter the intestines—permitting anxious hours of waiting. The proper dilution —one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—and end that laxative habit! Two sizes: Splits (8 ounces), 25c. Large bottles (3 times the quantity), 50c. At all druggists.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Marion Edgerton Thorpe, now Mrs. Isaac Diller, and daughter of the late Dr. Francis Newton Thorpe, and of Mrs. Thorpe, of Castleman street, is winning recognition for her poetry.

Her poems have appeared recently in various magazines—some of them in children's magazines, with illustrations. And one of children's poems is soon to appear in "The Searchlight," in Braille, so that blind children may read it.

Mrs. Thorpe, her poet-daughter and her husband, Dr. Diller and her grandchildren, Betsy and Thorpe Diller, are now at Miami. On Friday at the "Celebrity Breakfast" of the League of American Pen Women, Miami Branch, held at the Roney-Plaza, one of Mrs. Diller's poems was read.

On their return the Dillers will go to their summer home at North East, Pa. This home, which has been in the Thorpe family for generations, is located in the town adjacent to the "Indian Arrow Vineyard."

While at their North East home (they live there most of the year now) Dr. Diller plays the organ at church on Sundays.

Mrs. Diller's father, professor at the University of Pittsburgh at the time of his death, was the author of many books on constitutional law.

World Recovery Is Evident Kaltenborn Informs 20th Century Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

World recovery is evident everywhere; the steel industry here exemplifies it, H. V. Kaltenborn, radio commentator and current events speaker, said yesterday before the Twentieth Century Club. Mr. Kaltenborn had been asked by the lecture committee to pay a return visit to the club to sum up the political situation as the closing lecture in the season.

He devoted the greater part of his hour to conditions in this country, but briefly mentioned other countries, too. Hitler is not succeeding so very well and the action of the combined Protestant pastors in Germany marks the beginning of the end to the narrow, bigoted control imposed on the country by Hitler and his henchmen, Mr. Kaltenborn said.

He declared there will be no war between France and Germany, nor between Japan and Russia. Japan has her hands full with her internal problems and the consolidation of the territory which she has taken from China. The Russians are really peace-minded and are interested in class war only.

It is dificult to label what is going on in Washington, Mr. Kaltenborn stated, for the thing is so multiple that no ready made label fits it completely. The New Deal is more or less an extemporary conglomeration of practical measures to meet practical situations, he said, and 50 years from now someone may be found who will be able to tell what it is. It grew out of what many persons feel is exploitation of the majority by the minority and by a desire for change

It must not be forgotten, the speaker emphasized, that the country was fairly close to revolution and violence when the Roosevelt administration came into power. It is far better, he said, later, to have a series of unsuccessful experiments than to stand still and do nothing at all. While Mr. Kaltenborn believes the cancellation of the air mail contracts was the outstanding dramatic mistake of the administration, he believes that the outstanding achievement is restoration of confidence. He went on to say that reciprocal tariffs are neccessary and that world trade will not be restored until the people come into a larger relationship. The revaluation of the dollar was "reflation" and not deflation, he remarked.

Scout Adviser Here This Week

Miss Williamson attended the Seventh World Conference of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts held in Poland in 1932.

Heart Broken Loses Job, Car and Even His Girl

His hopes were centered in that girl.

And yet she SHOOK him when hard times came a-knockin'.

He had a car, and was going to college, and generally speaking was on the up-grade. Then suddenly all these things were swept away. He was another man without a job. So matters took on a varying complexion for this girl. She waved a goodby, and went prancing over to the enemy's camp.

Yet, poor fellow, he remains faithful. He can't see happiness in going with anyone else. His heart is bound up in his devotion for the fair-weather girl.

Miss Brunot

Dear Miss Brunot:

Having been a reader of your column for some time, I feel I can trust my fate to you. Like "Hopeful" in a recent issue, I need help. I have met my companion, in fact we were to have been married soon.

I am a young man of 21, a high school graduate and have a business education. I have been going with this girl friend for two years. I loved her, and still do. But one day not long ago, something terrible happened to me. I had a car, was going to college, and putting all my outside hopes in this girl.

LOST EVERYTHING

Then my business went bang. I had no car. I had to quit college. Yet I looked to this girl for sympathy and faithfulness. A week went by, and I did not hear from her. I tried to get another job. But to no avail. Then the girl let me know she did not want me anymore. I have tried to see her, but she manages to side-step me. And everytime I am near her, she has another fellow. All was well when I had a car and a position. But not so now.

And yet although the other girls show me they might care for me, I still love this one. Should I try going with others, and forget her. Or will I make an effort to win her back?

My engagement to her meant a lot to me. But evidently it meant nothing to her. I am awaiting you answer.

HEART BROKEN.

It does seem that this girl has been very heartless. When we experience real love it should not be but a good-weather happening. Yet maybe you haven't gotten the real lowdown upon the heart of your fiance. Perhaps others have stepped in and advised her, and she is bluffing you. Perhaps if you managed a real heart-to-heart talk with her, you would find she is more loyal than you think. It never is justifiable to give up faith in anyone until you know the genuine attitude of the person. Pride and quick action often ruin lives.

If I were you I would manage to talk with this girl. You are a man. You can take any initiative you desire. She may have a peculiar slant on your misfortune. All people do not think alike. It does seem you have been one of Job's afflicted, and you surely have my deep sympathy.

ADVISES WAITING

If you do find out after this conversation with this girl, that she is light-hearted and does not care I would not, if I were you, seek another girl immediately. Out of the frying pan into the fire, is a wise adage. You are up against it, and must come back. And traveling alone for awhile, sometimes isn't bad.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been going with a girl for 11 months. During this time she has only dated another fellow once. She is attractive, sweet and jolly. She says she loves me, and I know I love her. But she is only a junior in high school and contemplates going to college for four years afterwards. So do you think it right for us to keep steady company?

I will not state my opinon, as I want yours. WAITING.

Love is something that cannot be accounted for. It comes and sometimes stays. And again it goes. I can cite several examples where young people have met and loved when going to high school and have remained faithful all through college years. And yet such instances are somewhat rare. However, who can say, you and this girl may be the unusual examples. Why not try it out, anyway?

Have faith in yourself, and also trust your girl. And you and she may go on together until time and space separate you. And if such is not to be, when the day comes, take your medicine manfully. The sad thing about the long love affair is when one keeps on caring and the other doesn't. Yet there is so much sadness for everyone, and it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

I always like SPORTS in the game of love. And anyone who reasons too much where the grand passion is at stake usually is a poor player.

Don't you agree, Waiting? She's worth a few years out of your life. Isn't she? Otherwise you aren't in love.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

Heavy Spender May Be a Tightwad at Home, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Many a girl has married a "good fellow" imagining that her life would be all joy and generosity. But a "good fellow" is too much concerned with the impression he makes on "the crowd." At home he is apt to be a tightwad and a whiner.

Do not frown upon the quiet reserved young man who is not so much of a spender. He is a better matrimonial prospect. He does not care what persons who mean nothing to him may think of his unsocial manner and cautious spending.

He will save his smiles and jolly humor for his dear ones at home. He will be generous to a fault when it comes to providing for those who depend upon him.

That is what counts!

SPRING HATS SHOW NOVEL CROWNS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NOT ALL THE hat news is a matter of brim whimsy; crowns are behaving in an interesting manner, and they don't care whether they are high or low, or peaked or flat. In some models they gobble up the whole hat, as in the more advanced cases of coolie, and in others they are no bigger than a tonsure, on hats that ape headlights and other automotive gadgets.

* * *

ONE THING a woman can always consider for safety's sake when she is cornered by a collection of unusual hats: If they leave the hair much exposed, will they be cock-eyed unless poised over a perfect coiffure on all occasions? Better to choose a hat that is set off by less coiffure if this is the case, for there are plenty full size models in the latest shapes.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

A Breton sailor with a slashed brim is added to a coolie crown in this model. It is red ribbed fabric and the unexpected quill is curled and black.

A Gibson girl might have liked this picture hat—but it will do very well by Miss 1934. It is black lacquered lace straw and the trim is black velvet ribbon and an underbrim bunch of wild violets.

Contract Bridge

How to Play
How to Win

By Josephine Culbertson

Squeezing Out a Grand Slam

To bid and make a Grand Slam gives to any player a thrill, whether or not the bidding process by which the contract was reached can be defended from every standpoint. But to make a Grand Slam by means of a progressive squeezing out of the defense of both opponents is an achievement that gives a thrill even to the most seasoned veteran, and this is particularly true if the hand has been played in competition against the nation's ranking Bridge players.

Every month at a New York club the experts of the Metropolis gather in a game to which only experts are admitted, and in one of the recent sessions the hand below was played. Naturally, the North-South experts had no difficulty in reaching a Small Slam on their magnificent holdings, but one of the younger experts, John Sherman, playing with Horace Block, was doubled at a Grand Slam contract, and he was the one who, presented with a difficult situation to play, achieved the squeeze.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A Q J 6 5 ♡ A K 7 ◇ K J 9 5 ♣ 8
♠ 8 7 2 ♡ Q 8 ◇ Q 10 7 6 4 ♣ 7 6 2	West North East South	♠ K 9 ♡ J 10 6 5 4 2 ◇ A 8 3 2 ♣ 5
	♠ 10 4 3 ♡ 9 3 ◇ — ♣ A K Q J 10 9 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	7 ♣	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is not conventional but there should be no doubt about the Small Slam contract's being reached. Of course, South's bid of six clubs was considerable of a gamble, but North, with his solid tricks, was sure of a solid trump suit and could do no less than bid seven.

The play of the hand, of course, hinged around East's Double. West's Opening lead was a small diamond, upon which Declarer played the nine from Dummy and East played the Ace. South ruffed, and, placing East with the spade King as well as the diamond Ace on the Double, decided to play the hand on the basis of a squeeze against East in the heart and spade suits and against West's diamond protection. Mr. Sherman's next play was to lead a small spade to the Ace and then follow with the diamond King, upon which one of his remaining spades was discarded. He then led Dummy's only trump and continued with the remaining six trumps. East was forced to find six discards after following once. He parted with his two remaining diamonds and three hearts without difficulty. But when the last trump was led he was forced to choose between retaining the spade King and his three hearts to the Knave. In the meantime Mr. Sherman had discarded in Dummy all of the spades, and on the last trump the last diamond. West at no time had held any protection except in the diamond suit, but the diamond had been retained in Dummy in case he held three hearts.

The hand, played in this manner, produced 13 tricks. Naturally, those playing for a Small Slam did not have presented to them the same problem and hence quite naturally played instead for the spade finesse, which lost.

TOMORROW'S HAND

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

For outstanding ears, plastic surgery is the only cure. In childhood this defect can be corrected by the wearing of a cap made of tapes that hold the ears flat to the head. Afterwards the knife is the only recourse.

The average woman hates pepper and salt hair; she wants the virgin color of course, but she'll accept white. She protests against the betwixt-and-between period. All wrong. When white and dark threads mingles there are beautiful lights and shadows. The crown of mixed colors is often distinguished and becoming. Why not accept it without grumbling?

No sense in the dumpling shaped woman yearning for a long, swan-like neck. It wouldn't suit her, and a plump, short neck is ofttimes attractive. Proportion, rather than weight or measurement, is the big matter. If the contour of the body is harmonious, that's something for which a girl should be thankful. A tiny hand on a large arm isn't pretty, nor is the No. 2 foot on the heavy-weight so good.

Gift to the Hostess?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When you receive an invitation for dinner or a week-end, is it proper to take a box of candy or cake, or shouldn't you take anything? S.

When you go to a dinner, you may, correctly and charmingly, take a corsage (or send it in the afternoon of the party) for your hostess. If the dinner is an informal one, you may take a box of candy instead, if you wish.

When you go for a week-end visit, you may either take a simple gift when you go, such as a box of candy or attractive sweets of some other kind, a box of flowers, a book, a group of the latest magazine, or something of that kind, or you may send a gift with the bread-and-butter letter you write after your visit.

Selecting the Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be an inexcusable breach of etiquette if I ask my fiancee to accompany me when selecting an engagement ring? P.

No, this is usually done nowadays. And wisely, too, for it is the sensible thing to do.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Prevents Attack on Madge

Reluctantly I followed Lillian across the room to the chair in which Edith Fairfax sat, staring straight before her with strained eyes, and with her twitching hands held tightly in Harry Underwood's strong fingers.

"I wouldn't ask you," Lillian had muttered after her injunction to follow her because Edith was on the verge of a collapse, "but I didn't know what crazy notion she might get if you went out of the house without speaking to her."

Then she had rushed across the room to Edith, leaving me to follow as I would.

Edith did not speak until Lillian had stopped in front of her. Then, without changing her steady stare, she said in a curious, sing-song monotone:

"He is dead and you have come to tell me!"

She swayed as she spoke, and I expected her to slump against Harry Underwood in a swoon. But Lillian put out her hand and slapped Edith's cheek lightly, but with a certain stinging effectiveness, once, twice, three times.

"Don't you dare to faint, Ede!" she said. "Dicky is not dead. He's very much alive and in no danger, but he has to go to the hospital at once, and there isn't any time to take care of anybody in hysterics or a fainting fit."

I think it was sheer astonishment at his wife that made Harry Underwood let go of Edith's hands at the first slap and knowing her fiery temper, I terrifiedly expected she would lunge out at Lillian. But evidently her anxiety for Dicky transcended every other emotion.

WANTS TRUTH

"I'm not going to faint, nor am I going into hysterics," she said, "but you must tell me the truth. Why is Dicky going to the hospital, if he is in no danger?"

"I crave a little information on that point myself," Harry Underwood said, but I knew that he had spoken thus only to make Edith's query seem less tense and emotional.

"If you'll give me your ears for two or three seconds, you two morons," Lillian said, with a purposely withering glance at her husband, "I'll tell you in words of one syllable, or thereabouts, just why Dicky has to go to a hospital, and stay there for a day or two at the longest. In the first place, they want to know whether the bullet grazed the ligament of his right arm—"

"Oh!" Edith exclaimed emotionally. "His drawing arm! Oh! Poor Dicky!"

"Exactly," Lillian retorted calmly. "In the second place, if the bullet did graze it, they want to find out if any real damage was done. But in either case, you may rest assured that Dicky's life is in no danger whatever."

"That shows how little you know Dicky," Edith said chokingly. "If he never can draw again, he won't want to live. It will be a high place and a long jump for him."

WARNS EDITH

Although I knew that hysteria was prompting her words, I could not repress a convulsive shudder at the mental concept which they forced upon me.

"Look here, Ede!" Lillian said sharply, "Kindly remember that you are in this room only on sufferance—only because you pleaded to be permitted to stay near Dicky. Madge has enough to bear without listening to any Cassandra-like wailings from you. Now, mark me—and you know I keep my word—one more crack like that last one out of you, and Harry will take you upstairs to my room and lock you in until you can behave yourself.

"Now, how about it? Are you going to take a leaf out of Madge's book and behave like a reasonable human being, or are you—"

"It's easy for her," Edith interrupted sullenly. "She doesn't love—"

"Are you going to finish that sentence?" Lillian demanded. And I did not wonder that Edith shrank perceptibly from her mentor's stern, purposeful face and her menacing voice.

For a long second she was silent, then she stiffened, raised her head and looked at her opponent with a gaze as level, as straightforward as Lillian's own.

"I know when I am beaten—for the time being," she said slowly. "I give you my word, provided—Look here!—" She broke off abruptly, "Who's going with Dicky to the hospital?"

Household Hints

Before hanging new lace curtains allow them to soak for several hours in cold salted water. This extracts every particle of lime from the material.

Rain spots are easily removed from velvet by half filling a kettle of water, bringing it to boiling point, and holding the marked velvet in the steam, shaking continuously. Do this for a minute or two. Remove the material from the steam, shake till dry, then brush lightly in the direction of the pile.

STOCKS RESIST COMMODITY DOWNTREND

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—Stocks generally displayed resistance to sagging grains and slumping silver prices today, but only scattered specialties were able to ignore the declining commodity trends.

Wheat got down about a cent a bushel and the other cereals eased. Silver futures and the bar metal dropped around 1 cent or more an ounce despite the Senate silver bloc's apparent determination to defy the President and pass legislation over his disapproval. Cotton lagged, although rubber was again firm. Bonds were a trifle irregular. The dollar was steady in foreign exchange dealings.

On the whole there was not a great deal of bearishness noticeable in the majority of commission houses, but traders apparently were in no rush to expand commitments in most categories.

The silver contingent was somewhat gloomier than usual and the sharp decline of silver futures was said to have reflected the dwindling hopes for mandatory remonetization legislation at this session. The test vote on the McLeod bill for the payment of deposits in closed banks also did not help the temper of the inflationists.

Labor troubles still were considered among the retarding market influences, although the situation in the automobile field did not seem to be greatly disturbing the leaders of this industry. In some quarters it was felt that motor labor may have "missed the boat" insofar as this season is concerned. Possibilities of growing strikes in the old sector were attracting some attention.

The stock exchange control bill was not being forgotten and some analysts felt that any sort of a strong forward push in equities must await final action by Congress on this measure.

Results of the United States Steel Corporation's directors' meeting, usually made public after the close of the market, were awaited with much interest. All sorts of guesses as to earnings during the first quarter of this year were made. Estimates by various commentators were that the company would show operating earnings of some $5,000,000, or around $500,000 under the last quarter of 1933. The opinion was also expressed that the 50-cent payment on the preferred dividend would be continued.

WHEAT CLOSES AT DECLINE

CHICAGO, April 24.—A quick renewal of speculative buying rallied wheat prices sharply today as trading drew to an end, but the rallies failed to overcome effects of earlier heavy liquidating sales.

Pitiful reports were received from the Northwest as to acute shortage of moisture. One leading elevator company at Minneapolis with many rural branches said the crop outlook in their territory was discouraging as there was a deficiency both of feed and seed on account of crop failure last year, and in a great many cases it would be impossible for farmers to reseed.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5/8@1 1/8c under yesterday's finish, July, 75 1/4-75c; corn unchanged to 3/8c lower; oats, 1/8@1/2c down, and provisions at 2 cents to 7 cents decline.

TEXAS BOARD REVAMPED

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—A recasting of the board of directors of the Texas Corporation was approved by stockholders at the annual meeting today. Seven new members were elected and J. H. Lapham resigned as chairman of the executive committee.

R. C. Holmes, former chairman and president, whose contest last year to eliminate the so-called Lapham interests from control precipitated a controversy, was dropped from the board.

Commenting on the changes C. D. Ames, chairman of the board, told stockholders that our internal troubles are behind us and we have prospects both externally and internally for improvement in the future.

Good Baseball Year Seen Season of New Features Cards Bring Changed Club

Lively Pace by Frisch Bucs Strong at Home Shifts Appear Helpful

The early loss of the services of Capt. Pie Traynor, with the existing uncertainty as to the time of his return to the lineup, is the only disquieting note as Father Pitt unwraps his new baseball season. Otherwise the picture is practically perfect as the Pirates, with the assistance of Frankie Frisch and his St. Louis Cardinals, launch the home portion of the city's forty-eighth campaign in the National League. Interest runs high, the club with its new blood promises to be a pennant contender, the fans are loyally and solidly behind it, and the business uplift indicates a good financial year, after many lean ones, to reward the efforts and the liberal policy of the enterprising President W. E. Benswanger.

Pie Traynor

In addition to the fact that 1934 will bring the Silver Jubilee of Forbes Field, with a celebration on June 30, there are several other features to make the new Pittsburgh season an unusual one, chief among them being the playing of Sunday ball for the first time in the city's history. In every respect, it looks like a year that will sustain interest and leave a good taste.

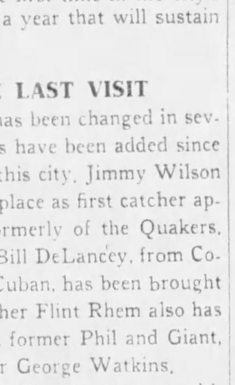
CARDS ADD NEW FACES SINCE LAST VISIT

The makeup of the Cardinal crew has been changed in several respects and a number of new faces have been added since the club made its final visit of 1933 to this city. Jimmy Wilson has left to manage the Phils, and in his place as first catcher appears the hard-hitting Virgil Davis, formerly of the Quakers. The No. 2 backstop also is a new man, Bill DeLancey, from Columbus. Mike Gonzales, the venerable Cuban, has been brought back as bullpen catcher and coach. Pitcher Flint Rhem also has returned from the Phils. George Davis, former Phil and Giant, is in the outfield, obtained in a trade for George Watkins.

A brother act is presented in the pitching department, with Paul Dean called in from Columbus to work with Dizzy. Paul is 20 years old and Dizzy is 23. The younger Dean is within three-fourths of an inch of being as tall as Dizzy, towering 6 feet 3 inches and scaling 192 pounds. Glenn Spencer, former Pirate, also has been added to the staff. Colonel Butler Mills—that's his proper name, though he is called Buster—is an outfielder from Rochester. Another gardener new to the National League, but old in the game, is Johnny Rothrock, 32, formerly of the Boston Red Sox. Gene Moore, one of five unrelated players of that name in the National League, is a young flychaser from Houston. Burgess Whitehead is back from Columbus for another infield trial. Several other recruits are being carried temporarily. Among the pitchers being tried is a resident of Scottdale, Southpaw Clarence Heise. Dazzy Vance, Bob O'Farrell, Sylvester Johnson, Gordon Slade, Ethan Allen and Estel Crabtree have departed, in addition to Wilson and Watkins.

FRISCH SETTING FAST PACE FOR HIS MEN

Manager Frisch is not merely telling his men what to do. He is stepping out and showing them how to do it — making them hustle by example, pulling them along with him. Fred Clarke used to do that with the Pirates, and he never got the same results as a manager after he retired to the dugout. It looks as though the dopesters who figured that Frisch would slow down and play only part time this year have another guess coming. The Fordham Flash is off to a fine start, and is setting the pace for his men in spirit and speed.



Frankie Frisch

Frankie says he is better physically than for years, and he looks and acts the part. The Pirates report that in the second game at St. Louis last week he went from first to third on a single as fast as he could the day he joined the Giants from Fordham in 1919, ending the dash with a great head-first slide. Frisch is starting his sixteenth season in the majors. He is only 37 games short of having played in 2,000 championship contests, and is past the mark when you count in his 43 world series games. He is one of the few players credited with 2,500 hits, has been at bat almost 8,000 times, has scored almost 1,400 runs and has stolen more than 400 bases. That's a lot of baseball, but Frisch seemingly is far from being done and appears to be headed for another brilliant year.

BUC RECORD PROMISES BIG HOME SEASON

Pirate rooters are basing their pennant hopes largely on the new home season. The proved strength of the Bucs on their own grounds is one of the biggest items in support of their flag chances, and after the opening of the 1934 campaign at the Oakland ballyard the outlook will depend to a great extent on

ROONEY SIGNS SKLADANY FOR PRO TEAM

The Pitt all-America end star of last year has signed a contract with President Art Rooney, of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Professional League. Muggsy received no fewer than three separate offers from the Philadelphia club, each boosting the ante by quite a respectable figure, but Muggs wishes to remain in these parts and besides, President Rooney didn't do badly by Joseph in the way of salary.

Rooney announced last night that Armand Niccolai, Ben Cicone, Sil Zaninelli and Al DeLuca, former Duquesne stars, are being considered for berths with the local pros.

With the Temple meet out of the way, Coach Carl Olson, of Pitt's track and field team, is busy forming the various relay teams that will represent Pitt in the Penn relay carnival in Philadelphia this week-end.

Anson Green, the dusky middleweight clouter of Homestead, is banking heavily on scoring a knockout over Ben Jeby, former world champion, in their 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden Friday night. He is figuring on landing one of his heavy blows on Ben's chin early in the fight and so justify the confidence of the fans who have been clamoring that he be matched with Ted Yarosz. He has been working on punching in the gymnasium in preparing for the battle.

Jeby is due here tomorrow to finish up his training, a slight rearrangement of the preliminary card is being made and tickets have gone on sale at the Garden.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Charley Blozevich and Johnny Birek have been matched for one of the bouts on the Mose Butch-Charley Burns card in Johnstown, May 3. Sammy Paris and Joey Adams are in another. Mose also boxes Frankie Wolfram at Wheeling on May 7.

Charles DeSanto and Henry Kiena, Pittsburgh Golden Gloves amateur boxing champions, will defend their flyweight and lightheavyweight titles, respectively, in the tournament to be staged under the auspices of Isiam Grotto in its quarters on the North Side, May 7, 8 and 9. Leo Sweeney, William Fiss and Eddie Katkish are among other stars entered.

Local boxing fans are keenly interested in the featherweight elimination tournament which opens in New York tonight, due to the presence in the field of contenders of Jackie Wilson, erstwhile local Negro star.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE OYSTER BREAKFAST—As a result of a wager between the Duke of Talleyrand and the Chevalier de Sainte Foix, the latter, who was the loser, undertook to provide and pay for an oyster breakfast for 12 people. This breakfast made oyster history. Talleyrand invited the champion oyster eaters of France. None of the guests consumed less than 500 oysters at that memorable breakfast table. The record quantity was eaten by the lawyer Vernon, who consumed 720 oysters at the single sitting.

MANAGER SEES HIS CLUB AS FLAG HOPE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The disappointing takeoff of his St. Louis Cadinals had not dampened the good nature of Frank Frisch when the famous Fordham Flash landed in Pittsburgh this morning to assist the Pirates in the home inaugural. Frisch naturally regretted that his club had dropped four of its five games in the first week of the season, but he had a good explanation for the early reverses of the Cards.

The leader of the St. Louis flock is convinced that the Cards and Pirates are two formidable pennant contenders. Touching on the defeats sustained by his team, he said:

"Take that 2 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Cubs, for example. We had one of those days when we could not get our runners off the sacks. Everything went wrong and we let a dozen men on the bases. Then consider that 4-to-3 setback the Pirates handed us. We had the tying and winning runs on with nobody out in the eighth when Chagnon and Traynor came up with a great force play on a bunt that spilled the beans for us."

EULOGIZES TRAYNOR

Frisch's reference to Traynor started him on a eulogy of the Pirate captain. Pie's great career, by the way, is a common-piece to the baseball life of the present Cardinal pilot. Pie first hooked up with the Buccos in 1920, just one year after Frank had left the Fordham campus to report to Manager John McGraw, of the Giants, at the Polo Grounds.

Frisch has long been an admirer and friend of Traynor. Touching on Pie's trouble, the Redbird leader said:

"Just how bad is Traynor's arm? In the interest of the Pirates and baseball in general I hope there is nothing seriously wrong with Traynor, although I will admit if he is in the dugout in this series, you will not hear any complaints from our side of the house. Pie has a habit of coming up with some kind of a play in a clinch that snatches victory right away from you. But, on the level, we are all pulling for him to be back at his post quickly."

CHANGES LINEUP

Frisch announced a changed batting order as his club landed here. He opened the season in an experimental frame of mind—he wished to see what certain boys could do, but he figures that he should shake up the order as the club takes to the road.

Ernie Orsatti, his veteran of the outfield, has been ordered back into action, and Frisch, himself, will drop to his old-time third notch of the batting order with Pepper Martin hitting in the cleanup position.

The American Walker Cup team, composed of youth and experience, should return with the trophy when the matches scheduled over the famous St. Andrews course are completed, in the opinion of Densmore Shute, British Open golf champion, who appeared in an exhibition at a downtown store today.

Denny, who later played a round of golf at the Fox Chapel Golf Club, is in a position to give an opinion regarding the possibility of the Walker Cup team defending its trophy, because it was at St. Andrews that Shute won the Open title last year.

Denny does not feel that the winds will bother the American team. Much is written regarding the ever-changing winds and how players are hampered by this condition. Johnny Goodman and George Dunlap, both are great golfers, says Shute, and iron play is the strongest forte in their game. Max Marston, Chandler Egan and Francis Ouimet, are all seasoned veterans, and they can adapt themselves to any condition that might arise. The British team will have the advantage of playing over a familiar course, but many new faces will be seen on the team and, being of an unknown quality, it is hard to predict just how they will shape up in international competition.

Shute will not be at Oakmont for the Pennsylvania State Open. At the conclusion of the National Open at Merion, Denny has two exhibition matches, and on the following Wednesday sails for England to defend his Open title.

The Open champion will go to Oakmont Country Club tomorrow for a round of golf in the afternoon. Emil Loeffler will be Shute's partner in a foursome.

Collegiate and interscholastic matches feature today's golf card, the major attraction being scheduled at Wildwood, where Pitt and Duquesne clash.

Thirteen matches are scheduled for the teams enrolled in the Interscholastic Golf Conference.

TEE TO GREEN

The Rev. Schuyler Garth, of Coraopolis, scored the first ace at the Coraopolis Heights Golf Club, sinking his tee shot on the short seventeenth.

Mrs. Eva Blair, former city champion, has joined the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Mrs. Blair should be a welcome addition to Mrs. Frank Campbell's team when the league race gets under way.

The Notre Dame golf team comes to Pittsburgh June 6 and will play the University of Pittsburgh at St. Clair.

Schenley Park links will be opened on Thursday instead of Friday as previously announced. Director of Public Works Johnstone announced the new date late yesterday.

A large crowd attended the smoker at Highland Country Club last night. Sam Parks, Sr., was master of ceremonies, and made a good job of it. The Bobby Jones pictures made a big hit.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association this afternoon to pass on plans for the leading tournaments of the district.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

Former Star, Now Coach of the Pirates

To the Sports Editor: I've been traveling so much on trains for the last two months that when I'm home and want to find a pair of socks I call "Porter!"

Honus Wagner

I notice that Bob O'Farrell, manager of the Cincy Reds, don't claim he is going to win the pennant. That proves that maybe the Reds are going to be dangerous this year, because when Bob can be as right as that maybe he's going to be right in lots of other ways.

It's great to win the pennant, and every team will try darn hard to do it, but, after all, isn't the big thing in baseball to provide a lot of fun for the public? To give 'em some pleasure in life?

Regards,
HONUS WAGNER.

Those who do not have rifles will be supplied weapons by the Fort Pitt Club.

President Ray McLaughlin, of the rifle club, has announced that anyone wishing to attend the firing school should report at the range, Graham boulevard and Laketown road, at 1:30 Saturday. The street car stop is Laketown road on the Verona line.

Vignettes Of Sport

Cookie Lavagetto, the new Pirate, is a ringer for Tarzan Johnnny Weissmuller in looks . . . Only he's not as tall . . . And he can play second base better than he can climb trees . . . Well, the baseball lid's off today, so what? . . . The Tilden tennis troupe will have been on tour exactly eight months when it appears in Duquesne Garden on May 8 . . . It started out on January 8 and has attracted more than 300,000 persons in more than 30 appearances so far . . . Playing with Tilden here will be Ellsworth Vines, Keith Gledhill and Dr. Alfred Chapin . . . Vines lost his first three matches with Tilden, but since then has evened up the score and passed the veteran . . . Tilden will play Vines and Chapin will oppose Gledhill in the singles here and Tilden and Chapin will pair in the doubles against the other two.

Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland lightweight, who meets Dominic Mancini in the 10-round semi-final to the Anson Green-Benjeby bout in Motor Square Garden Friday night, has boxed here twice before, losing to Jimmy Thomas in the Meyers Bowl and beating Leon Jendrasiak . . . In recent bouts he has boxed Mickey Genaro, Paul Dazzo, Johnny Mitchell, Eddie Shea, Frankie Wallace, Cecil Payne (twice), Young Terry, Battling Gizzy, Johnny Farr, Buddy Scrutchings, Henry Scarpuzzi and Lew Feldman (twice) . . . He stopped Gizzy in seven rounds in Cleveland last October.

It was just one year ago today that the Yankees and Senators put on a free-for-all, with Buddy Myer, Earl Whitehill and Ben Chapman all being fined and suspended for their part in the brawl . . . Dick Hyland, all-America halfback at Stanford University in 1926, has an article in the current issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine in which he deals with the participation of women in athletics and raises the question of whether their champions are the equal of men . . . It's called "Are Women Champions, or Just Winners in a Minor League?"—HARRY KECK.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL

—What It's All About—

This is the fourth installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 5—The Batting Order.

1—The batting order of each team must be presented to the umpire by the team captain or manager before the game, and cannot be changed after the batteries have been announced. The batting order so delivered must be followed throughout the game, unless a player be legally substituted for another, in which case the substitute must take the place in the batting order of the retired player. The only exception to this shall be Rule 4, Article 3.

2—After the first inning, the first batsman in each inning shall be the batsman whose name follows that of the last man who completed his full time at bat in the previous inning.

3—If a third out be made before a batter has completed his full time at bat, balls and strikes which have been called on him shall be ignored when he appears at bat to start the next inning.

RULE 6—Length of Game.

2—A game shall be deemed a regulation game if it be called because of darkness, rain or other cause which puts the players or spectators in danger; provided that five or more full innings have been played, or if the team second to bat shall have made more runs at the end of its fourth inning or before the final out of the fifth inning than the team first to bat has scored in five completed innings. This provision does not apply to any acts on the part of players which might call for forfeiture of the game. In the event of a team second to bat being behind and not having completed its full inning, the score reverts to the last full previous inning.

3—The home team shall have the choice of batting first or last, except in tournament play where other arrangements have been made.

4—In the event of a tie score the game shall be continued until one team scores more runs than the other in an equal number of innings.

Tomorrow: Forfeits and Pitching Rules.

CUP GOLFERS TO SELECT OWN BALL

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP.)—Upset by a controversy that arose over a suggestion to the United States Walker Cup players, now en route to Scotland, that they use the American ball in the matches with the British and United States Golf Association officially has announced that the team members had been left free to use any ball they chose.

It had been suggested to the players some time ago, Archie M. Reid, U. S. G. A. secretary, explained, that the American ball be used. At the farewell dinner last Friday night, however, it was found several of the team objected, expressing a preference for the smaller British edition, and they were told to use their own judgment. No formal order ever was issued that the American ball be used, he said.

NATIONAL LOOP LEADS RIVAL CIRCUIT

Associated Press.

If home run figures for the first seven days of the major league season furnish a true barometer, then injections of a little more "rabbit" have been made not only in the National League ball but the American as well.

Although National League batsmen have shown the greatest percentage of slugging improvement, more than 200 per cent, swatsmiths of the American loop, supposedly hitting at the same sphere they did a year ago, already have clouted nearly 60 per cent more homers than they did in the same period in 1933.

NATIONAL IN LEAD

John Heydler's bombardiers, who could hit only nine homers in their first 21 games last season, have banged out 28 in the same number of contests this year, an increase of 211 per cent. In the American League, the figures for the first 20 games showed 17 home runs in 1933 and 27 this, an increase of 59 per cent. The general major league increase was 112 per cent.

These figures serve to confirm, partly at least, the claims of several American League batting stars, notably Babe Ruth, that the 1934 ball is much livelier, statements of the manufacturers to the contrary notwithstanding.

With three exceptions, every one of the 16 major league clubs has shared in the heavier home run production and those three at least have held their own in comparison with a year ago.

The figures by clubs, giving the 1934 home run total first and that for the corresponding period a year ago second, follow:

National League: Chicago, 6 and 0; New York, 6 and 3; Brooklyn, 5 and 1; Boston, 2 and 0; Philadelphia, 2 and 0; St. Louis, 2 and 1; Pittsburgh, 3 and 2; Cincinnati, 2 and 2.

American League: Philadelphia, 7 and 3; St. Louis, 2 and 0; Cleveland, 2 and 1; Detroit, 3 and 2; Chicago, 3 and 2; New York, 6 and 5; Washington, 2 and 2; Boston, 2 and 2.

After a one-day vacation granted by the schedule-makers, the athletes will resume firing in a new set of openings in both the National and American leagues today.

CUBS MEET REDS

In the American League, President Roosevelt was to toss out the first ball for Washington's home opener against Boston, while Philadelphia played at New York, Chicago at Detroit and Cleveland at St. Louis.

W. Va. Announces 1934 Golf Card

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 24.—(AP.)—West Virginia University golfers will open their inter-collegiate schedule Saturday against the University of Pittsburgh linksmen on the local course. The Mountaineer schedule still has two dates pending. It calls for the following matches: April 28, Pittsburgh at Morgantown; May 4, W. and J. at Washington, Pa.; May 7, Duquesne at Morgantown; May 12, Ohio University at Athens, O.; May 19, Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh; May 22, Duquesne at Pittsburgh; May 26, W. and J. at Morgantown.

SPORTS COMMENT

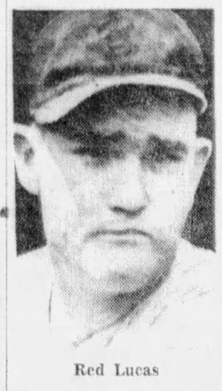
their living up to the reputation they have earned as one of the hardest clubs in the majors to beat at home.

The fact that the Rovers finished only five games short of first place last year in spite of the fact that they failed to break even on the road indicates how uncommonly successful they were at their own park. Of their 77 home games in 1933, the Gibsons won 50 while losing only 27, a percentage of .649, which spells a winning average of almost two out of every three engagements. Only the Cubs, with 56 victories against 23 defeats, did better at home than the Corsairs. It was on the road that the locals fell down, losing 40 games abroad while winning only 37. Just a little better showing on foreign loam would appear to be the only thing necessary this year. Certainly, on the strength of what the 1933 record promises, the fans are warranted in hailing the home part of the 1934 race with plenty of confidence.

MORE STRENGTH SEEN IN PIRATE CHANGES

While the start of the Pirates at home naturally finds interest centering in Pitcher Red Lucas and Second Baseman Cookie Lavagetto as the most important of the additions made to the club since last season, those two are not the only reinforcements deserving of a warm welcome as likely to help the Bucs greatly during the year. Catcher Art Veltman, for one, is not to be overlooked. He looks like the makings of an exceptionally fine receiver with a batting punch, and just what the doctor ordered to take the place of Earl Grace when the enemy is using a left-hand pitcher.



Red Lucas

Wally Roettger is another. He was called only a throw-in when the Picaroons got Lucas in exchange for Tony Piet and Adam Comorosky, but he has shaped up as a really valuable ball player this spring, has recovered much of his old speed, and may be counted on to help a lot as a right-hand pinch-hitter. Pitchers Cy Blanton and Lloyd Johnson, even if they have to be sent out for a spell, are fine bets for the future. Not all of the Pittsburgh's club strength is in the regular lineup. With Pep Young and Tommy Thevenow for the infield, and Roettger and Woody Jensen for the outfield, Manager Gibson is fortified with a quartet of reserves unsurpassed in the majors. Any one of the four would be playing regularly on many another club. Thevenow, a rare sub able to play any of three infield positions like a star, is already showing his value by plugging the big hole which Traynor's absence leaves at third base. All around, it's a season rich in promise that Pittsburgh now greets.

DUKES, TARTANS NET MATCH POSTPONED

By PAUL G. S LLIVAN

Inauguration of local college tennis hostilities for 1934 has received another brief setback. The varsity campaign, originally slated to begin yesterday with invasion of the Bluff by Waynesburg for battle with the Dukes, must now await next Saturday for lifting of the lid. Announcement that the Duquesne-Waynesburg joust would be postponed was made last week at request of the Yellow Jackets, who have been unable to practice on their clay rectangles because of the inclement weather.

Now comes word that for the same reason the Duquesne-Carnegie Tech contest, slated for the Hill tomorrow, likewise will be adjourned. The Siverd crew, fortunate in the possession of asphalt playing surfaces, has been working out with fair regularity for more than a fortnight, but readily acceded to the position of the Jackets and Tartans for additional opportunity for conditioning.

Meanwhile news comes from the Hill that there is excellent prospect of healing the Duquesne-Westminster sports breach with scheduling of two racquet jousts between the Pittsburgh and New Wilmington institutions, whose rivalry incidentally has been quite as keen in tennis over the past decade as it has been in basketball. Dates for the tussles have yet to be fixed. The pair of skirmishes will raise the total on the Red and Blue card to 16.

The Skibo-Dukes playoff has been tentatively listed for May 14, with the Bluffite-Waynesburg affair here re-booked for May 29 and the Greene County performance between the same opponents switched to May 23. The Duquesne-West Virginia match at Morgantown has been eased back to Saturday, June 2.

Wet courts yesterday prevented the playing of four matches in the Interscholastic Tennis Conference.

Buckeyes Decide On Penn Relays

COLUMBUS, O., April 24.—(AP.)—Changing their minds for the second time within a few hours, Ohio State University athletic officials have announced they will send the Buckeye track team to the Penn relays next Saturday after all.

This reversed an earlier decision which, in turn, reversed an original determination to participate in the Penn games.

ROSENBLOOM HELD TO DRAW BY GAINER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champion, was forced to give all he had last night to stave off defeat as he was held to a draw by Al Gainer, hard-hitting New Haven Negro, in a 10-round fight.

The non-titular fight saw the champion backing away frequently from the Negro's vicious body assaults, but Maxie's superior speed and skill pulled him out of the tough spots.

FASCISTS EXPECTING TO RULE BRITAIN

Editor's Note—Sir Oswald Mosley, now 37, hopes to become the Fascist head of the British government before he is 40, writes H. R. Knickerbocker in the second article of his series on the British Blackshirts.

"Give us two years more of preparation and if we continue to grow as we have in the past 18 months we will win in 1936," the British Fascist leader tells Knickerbocker.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, April 24.—Mussolini receives in the most magnificent room of the most magnificent palace in Rome, the Palazzo Venezia. Hitler receives in the bright, modern, luxurious rooms of the Reich's chancellery in Berlin.

Sir Oswald Mosley, candidate to be the Mussolini or the Hitler of Britain, receives in the most primitive room of the cold, monastic building they call the Black House in London. Mussolini and Hitler, too, had primitive quarters in their early days, but none could have been less pretentious than those of the man whom his enemies call "a film actor," but whom his followers hail as the saviour of England.

Twenty years ago, lacking two months of being 18, Mosley flew over the German lines. Later he crashed and today his right leg is two inches shorter than his left leg. But he came forward to greet his visitor without a limp. Despite his injury he became runner-up in the British fencing championship, second best fencer in Britain.

AIRMEN FASCIST LEADERS

Airmen play a great role in European Fascism. Balbo in Italy, Goering in Germany, and now Mosley in Britain have taken the lead. Sir Oswald said:

"Yes, air fighting is Fascist."

He sat at a rickety desk. Two plain chairs were in front of it. A tiny fire burned in an open hearth, but its heat made no impression on the great bare room, with a door-window wide open at Sir Oswald's back. I had to keep my overcoat on but the chill of London's early spring seemed to make no impression on Sir Oswald. Clad only in the black jersey, black trousers of his movement.

Looking down upon us was a big portrait of Mussolini, close friend of Sir Oswald. Next the portrait hung a Fasces. In another room hung a standard presented by Mussolini inscribed "British Union of Fascists, for King, Empire and International Justice." The orientation of Sir Oswald's movement is definitely pro-Italian and only to a smaller degree pro-Hitler.

"The classic man," observed Sir Oswald, indicating the Mussolini portrait. He spoke with boyish enthusiasm. His figure, robust but youthful, was tall, his complexion dark, his hair brushed back smoothly, his moustache black. He added:

"That poise that Mussolini has. It is the poise of the men of classic times."

HAS METEORIC RISE

Sir Oswald's own profile might well be Italian, with its prominent nose, clear lines. His enemies have derisively called him the best-looking politician in England. He may remember that critics of Adolf Hitler derisively called him "der schoener Adolf."

He is a sportsman. On the walls hung fencing foils. Sir Oswald said:

"Mussolini, too, is a fencer. I've never fenced with him, but they say he is good. I used to wrestle also. But now I've given up championship bouts. They are too strenuous."

Of the Fascist leaders of Europe, Mosley is the only one of noble birth. He is the sixth baronet, or hereditary knight. His baronetcy was created in 1781. One of his ancestors was the living originator and model of the John Bull who represents England as Uncle Sam represents America.

He was educated at the fashionable public school, Winchester, and, intending to become a professional soldier, became a cadet at Sandhurst, the British West Point. As an officer of the Sixteenth Lancers he entered the war, switched to the Royal Air Force, was invalided out in 1916 after the injury to his leg failed to heal, and in 1918, aged 22, entered politics as member of Parliament for the Tory party.

The youngest aristocrat, steadily winning recognition by his gifts of oratory, gradually went left. He became independent in 1922. His rise was meteoric. By 1929, aged 33, he had become a member of the cabinet in the Labor government. A brilliant marriage with Lady Cynthia, daughter of the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, and his wife, the daughter of Levi Leiter, millionaire Chicagoan, added to the talk that Mosley was a coming prime minister. They had two sons and a daughter. Lady Mosley died in 1933.

BREAKS WITH LABOR

In the midst of his first cabinet job Mosley broke with Labor, suddenly, spectacularly resigning from the government because it would not accept his plans for dealing with the unemployed. Banking on his personal prestige he founded the so-called New Party. Without proper preparation, lacking sufficient financial backing, the New Party collapsed. It failed to get a single seat in the elections of 1931. Its enemies had called it Fascist. Mosley, reflecting on the defeat, analyzed his political ideas, found they were Fascist, and decided to take the risky step of adopting Fascism outright. He founded the British Union of Fascists, and therewith he burned the bridges of "respectable" politics behind him.

It is hardly likely that Sir Oswald could stage another comeback if he should fail at Fascism. The tom-tom beating of the Rothemere press for his cause is balanced by an equally vigorous daily blast of criticism from the organs of the old established parties. The Labor press holds him up to proletarian ridicule. The Conservatives crack dignified jokes at his expense. They all declare that Britain has no stomach for Blackshirts and stiff-arm greetings.

But Sir Oswald believes Britain will learn to like them. He said:

"The British crowd is capable of displaying great temperament. I have heard many speeches before Latin crowds, but I have seen greater displays of feeling from British crowds than from any Latin crowd.

ROMANCE OF FASCISM

"That is one element in British psychology that our opponents overlook. They seem to believe that the British have no romanticism in them. They have a great deal of it. They like parades, and uniforms and flags and music.

"That is no accident that the Fascist leaders who have succeeded have all been men who have had experience of the Socialist movement and acquaintance with the masses. Fascist leaders know mass psychology. At Socialist meetings I have stood and watched 100,000 workmen march past with flags and banners and all the uniforms they could scrape together, or anything that would pass for a uniform. They like that, as everybody does. And it is a mistake to believe that the romance of Fascism will not appeal to the British mind.

"Look at Cromwell. What could have been more alien to the so-called British point of view than his Ironsides. Fascism combines the romantic quality of the Ironsides with their dour determination to win."

SIR OSWALD MOSELY, BRITAIN'S FASCIST LEADER, GIVING THE BLACKSHIRTS' SALUTE

I asked:

"But when do you expect to win, Sir Oswald? How soon will it be before you intend to fight an election?"

It must be remembered that the Mosley plan, avowed in all his speeches, is to capture control of the government of England by strictly legal means. In this respect he has taken a leaf from Hitler's experience. Early in Mosley's Fascist Party councils the question was debated whether it would not be better to put the headquarters, the Black House, of the movement in a city in Northern England, or the Midlands, in the heart of the sector of greatest industrial unemployment. If this had been done, it was argued, after the blackshirts had accumulated masses of jobless followers they could stage a march on London, a la Mussolini's march on Rome.

STRATEGY REVEALED

Mosley decided against this plan. His whole strategy is now directed toward building up a party organization, not to seize power by violence, but to win it by gaining a majority of votes. To see his movement in proper perspective it is necessary to keep in mind that despite whatever promise it may hold for the future, at present it has no seat in Parliament and at the moment is not yet strong enough to fight an election.

But Sir Oswald is confident. He declared:

"If the next election comes in two years at the expiration of the present Parliament, we should be able to fight that election throughout England. We do not intend to make a campaign until we have hopes of winning a majority.

"Hitler could campaign for only a few seats, which were well worth while at the beginning of his movement, because Germany had a proportional system of representation which made every vote count. Under the British system we could poll millions of votes and not win one seat in Parliament. We cannot afford to do that. It is too costly.

"But give us two years more of preparation and if we continue to grow as we have grown in our first 18 months, and the finances of the party are guaranteed as I hope they will be—we should be able to go out to win in 1936.

"I have made the claim that the British Union of Fascists has grown faster than any other Fascist movement in history because you only have to look at Hitler's movement and Mussolini's movement in their first 18 months of existence to realize how much more speedily we have gone ahead. Hitler had prhaps 90 to 100 followers in the first year of his agitation. Our movement after 18 months is nation-wide.

"To fight an election over all England we would require 400 to 500 candidates. I think we have a higher type of young speaker than any other party—capable mob orators, effective with crowds. We shall not campaign when it suits our opponents, but when it suits us. It will suit us when we can win."

Hitler was 44 when he became master of Germany. Mussolini was 39 when he marched on Rome. Mosley is today 37 years old. He hopes to become the Fascist chief of the British government before he is 40.

In the next article he explains why.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LII.

Mist beaded her eyelashes and made the hair blown about her face shine.

Said Bill, releasing her, but not taking his eyes from hers: "Do you think you need to protect me, Pippin, and that I'll sue you for breach of promise on the strength of a kiss or two? You couldn't have meant that." His young boyish mouth rippled in a smile. "You must surely want to kiss me after all these years. I don't mean you love me, but just the warm salute of one friend to another."

She gave a little laugh: "You've become more than ever a man of the world. You always did have a traveled air."

"And men of the world, Pippin, don't need a slim, pure thing like you to watch out for them, do they? Haven't you noticed I've been very cagey? I've brought you some things that I picked up here and there. Can I come tomorrow morning and give them to you?"

"Why, yes. Come for breakfast. Helena will be glad to see you. She thinks you're a bonny youth."

"What do you think, Pippin?"

"I had a grand time with you tonight. You're darling and sweet and I would have been quite lonely, because I canceled a previous engagement, if you hadn't turned up today."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party. Kevin disappoints Pippin, but saves a man's life.

Now Go On

Brings Presents

"That, Pippin, is quite sufficient for me for the first night."

He came in the morning and had to ask Dadee to help him carry in a camphor wood chest. This he set down in the little room off the hall which Pippin considered almost exclusively hers.

"Open it," said Bill.

A shimmering flash of color met her eyes. She was kneeling on the floor and now she rested on her heels and looked up at him with a happy grin.

"Am I to have my choice? Can I have anything I want?"

"They're all for you. Take them out."

She drew a startled breath and began tumbling out kimonos, shawls, ivory figures, a string of bright green jade, a sapphire-blue haori-coat, bracelets, a turquoise choker and two or three sport rings. The rainbow of color made her a little hysterical. She leaned across the box and said:

"Bill, you must be mad or else you're a bandit. Aladdin, or Rockefeller in disguise!"

"Try on the blue coat."

"You'll have to wait until I get my breath. Nobody ever sent me presents like this before."

"Why should they? Wasn't I the first man that ever rushed you?"

"Yes, and the last that ever did it in such an exciting way. I've never had two dozen gardenias at one time since, and I'm lucky to get two orchids, once in a blue moon, let alone six. Are you sure you won't come and demand these things back so that you can buy your supper tonight?"

Pippin Grateful

"They don't cost very much when you buy them at the source. I got the jewelry in Shanghai. Your eyes will turn green when you wear those beads, and they'll be blue in the coat. I thought of little details like that."

Pippin felt giddy and grateful and troubled. For a moment she became very quiet.

Bill leaned down until his face was on a level with hers. "And you were going to send back the bracelet I sent for your seventeenth birthday, weren't you, Pippin? Don't you think a fellow likes to give presents without attaching significance to the acceptance of them? I love to shop. I brought a whole load of things to my mother. If I didn't have a darling like you to think of, I'd have brought gifts to the cook. It wouldn't be half as much fun."

"I'm glad it was I instead of the cook! I've never had so many beautiful things all at once, not in ten Christmases. It's quite odd, Bill, to live 20 years without any such exotic, unusual adventures happening, then suddenly to have the treasures of the Indies dumped in your lap." She couldn't but feel a gay, singing exhilaration.

"But this is nothing, Pippin, to the thrill of driving a plane. I've left mine down at Palo Alto. That will be convenient. I'm a very good pilot. Will you be afraid taking a chance with me?"

Monday afternoon, trembling with a strange, apprehensive delight, Pippin stood by Bill's plane. It was painted blue and white. It had no name.

He looked down at her with a gay laugh.

"I haven't christened it yet. I didn't know whether you'd let me or not. I thought 'The Pippin' would be a swell name. Are you frightened?"

"Maybe I am a little bit. I'm eager, too."

He helped her into the small cabin, saying happily: "The real thrill is going up into the air. After you get up you scarcely feel the motion. The view is the thrill then."

Take Plane Ride

The mechanic twirled the propeller. There was a sudden deep booming roar. They taxied across the field. Miraculously, inspiringly, and with a bright in-rush of breath, Pippin felt the plane leave the earth.

It was a clear, sunny afternoon in February. She sat holding tight to the seat, looking at Bill's face and at his hands on the controls.

He leaned close to her and shouted: "You're afraid!"

She shouted back: "I'm not!"

"All right then. Glance down at the campus and the hills."

The buildings looked small; the people were black, slow-moving ants; the trees were toys.

They cut a dazzling path through the bright azure meadow; below them the misty Pacific and the tight black hoods of the Farallones. Bill reached over, took her hands, put them on the controls. He smiled but said nothing.

She took courage and glancing down again saw the golden valley swinging between the long, racing mountain chains.

"Now I'm going to make a loop."

She forced her lips to a vivid smile, but she was very terrified.

"How did you like it?"

"Did you do it already?"

"Yes—that's the way it is."

Feels Serene

Clouds thronged the western sky like colored mountains. They were pink and gleaming all over with brush-dabs of silver and gold. Below the magic mountains the red dome of the sun dropped in wistaria mist.

She felt happy, serene, eager to go on.

When Bill said: "Had enough?" she shook her head. With regret she saw him heading for the field. He made a superb, easy landing. It reminded her of Kevin flying down the perpendicular snow mountains. Bill reached over and covered Pippin's hands, which were cold and trembling a little.

"Well, how was it?"

"Wonderful. I want to go again and again."

"You will. Was it as much of a thrill as you expected?"

"More." She added with a happy, impulsive rush: "I didn't really think you had—"

"What?"

"Well, such serene power—kind of devil-may-care. I like it."

"Nice—I'll acquire more."

"You seem a born pilot."

"I guess you're a good judge. But I've been fooling with planes for years. Every vacation I took lessons. I like the air even better than the sea and I love the sea as Conrad loves it.

"I've been looking forward to taking you in that plane, Pippin. I wanted you to know what it was like. I'm glad you've never been up before. You weren't too frightened?"

"Only for the first few moments, but when I saw that you were good—"

Meet Kevin

"Tomorrow we'll go again!"

She was surprised to feel so blithe and chummy with Bill—all the strain vanished. Yet not as carefree, because Bill was stronger; something in his smiling assurance disturbed and excited her.

Thursday she had no classes. He begged her to drive to the city. They could lunch together.

"You know you'll waste an hour or two out of the 12. Give them to me, instead. Study twice as hard in the time that's left. Brain works better when you gear it on high."

As they were walking down Post Street after the lunch, they met Kevin going to the office. Kevin greeted her and stopped. Pippin introduced them. She glanced with a flurry of smiles from one to the other. Kevin was taller, was heavier through the chest; his face had a hard leanness as though cut from pale, satiny bronze. As they stood there, the one so fair, the other so dark, she felt deeply, stirringly excited. Something beautiful in their straightness; in the ripple of muscles; in the clear, high youth both still possessed. They talked only a moment.

"So that's Kevin!"

They walked a short distance. He halted, and giving Pippin's arm a swing, brought her face to face with himself.

"So that's Kevin!"

And she, flushed and trembling, said: "Yes. It is!"

Bill looked in her eyes. His own had a challenging light. They seemed to ask: "You think him a better man than I?"

Then he gave a laugh, took hold of her arm, and went with a gay whistle to the car.

PRESIDENT ULYSSES S. GRANT ABUSED FOR UNSCRUPULOUS SCHEMES

In view of split of the Republican party, Grant grew lenient, bordering on weakness toward the regular party members. Grant soon became veiled in a political "smoke screen," embracing also military adventurers scheming for personal profits. Some of the relatives, private secretary of the President and cabinet members were implicated in unscrupulous dealings characterized by above contemporary cartoons.

The "whisky ring," an association of distillers, evaded tax payment on liquor by bribing high officials. The "Sanborn Contracts" allowed 50 per cent commission to Sanborn for collecting good debts, due to the government, diverting a substantial part of the proceeds for party purposes. The financial panic of 1873 was blamed on the demoralized condition of Grant's administration. (United States History)

IRON—MOST IMPORTANT METAL

ATOMIC STRUCTURE OF IRON

Iron (Fe), a silvery and soft metal is found in meteorites; the interior of the earth probably consists of it. It is an element fourth in abundance near the earth's surface (after O, Si, Al) giving brown color to almost every rock, soil. It is necessary for life, forming part of haemoglobin in blood and chlorophyll of plants. Its atomic structure (Bohr diagram) and other characteristic data are shown at right.

Above: Open pit ore mining of hematite (Fe_2O_3), the most important iron ore in the U. S. Rich deposits are near Lake Superior, also in Alabama, California, Colorado, and Minnesota, the latter having the 100x50 miles Mesabi Range.

Other important iron ores: Limonite ($2Fe_2O_3 \cdot 3H_2O$, the same composition as rust), magnetite (Fe_3O_4), siderite ($FeCO_3$), pyrite (FeS_2, mined as source of sulphur rather than of iron). (Chem.)

THE WORLD'S FIRST PLUMBER

The caveman, who first learned to guide water by a fallen hollow tree, was the forerunner of the master plumber of today. Egypt, Babylon, Greece and Rome knew the value of pure water supply, bathing and disposal of sewage; this seemed to be forgotten during the Middle Ages, justly called the "Dark." Even toward the end of the 18th century it was considered unusual and even dangerous to bathe regularly. Benjamin Franklin, as scientist, knew the health value of bathing. To relieve a skin ailment, he took a hot "slipper-bath" twice a week, defying public opinion. He built a rack on the instep to hold a book, enabling him to read while bathing. (General Science)

ALLIANCE AGAINST RUSSIA IN CRIMEAN WAR (1854-1856)—TREATY OF PARIS

England's policy in the East clashed with that of Russia. When Czar Nicholas I attacked Turkey in 1854 to strengthen his position in East of Europe and to gain an outlet into the Mediterranean Sea, England (Queen Victoria) joined with France (Napoleon III) and Sardinia (Victor Emanuel II) to help Turkey against Russia in the following Crimean War, 1854-1856.

After bloody battles (Sebastobol, Balaclava, etc.) and great losses from epidemics, the war was terminated by the Treaty of Paris (1856), a session of delegates pictured above. Russia lost parts of Bessarabia, its protectorate over Wallachia and Moldavia; the Black Sea and the Danube (emptying into it) were opened to merchant navigation outlawing warships and coastal fortifications. Turkey was admitted to the European Concert of Powers, its integrity guaranteed. She in turn vouched for maintaining liberties possessed at that time by her provinces. The map at left shows the gradual dismemberment of the once mighty Ottoman empire in Europe, during 1683-1914. (World History)

WHITE BLOOD CORPUSCLES

They are colorless, nucleated cells with amoeboid movements, engulfing and digesting bacteria, foreign particles (phagocytosis); they promote tissue repair, partake in blood clotting, form blood proteins. Their number is 6,000 to 12,000 per cu. mm. in health, increasing with nourishment and activity, greatly so during infections. Above: Normal white cells. Except the eosinophile leucocytes, (taking acid dyes) all are basophile, meaning they can be stained conveniently by basic dyes.

In the fatal disease, leukaemia, white cells are generally increased in number, degenerated; red cells become anaemic (left).

Gold in Them Thar Rills

It's called bromine. From it they take gold and silver.

Bromine is a very handy thing to have around the garage.

In addition, and plus, they also extract war gas, photographic film and headache tablets.

There's one chemical that will start a war, mugg it for the news reels and stop the same war it started.

You also use bromine for anti-knock gasoline. That ain't all. It's a mange cure and will stucco a wall very nicely.

There's enough gold in the ocean to tile the roof of the world. There is enough liquid silver in the seven seas to pave America for east and west bound traffic.

Other chemicals hiding in the ocean are cobalt, magnesium, solicon, manganese, fluorine and chlorine. Science is making great hops and skips. Just add a lemon peel and stir and you have a prohibition cocktail of the vintage of 1924. The grapes ran very good that year.

But we are interested mostly in the gold and silver contents of the sea. To say that we are amazed would be putting it very slightly. All you have to do is to mix the waves with sulphuric acid. This ionizes the gold.

That's all we can tell you. It ionizes the gold. From then on you had better go to college.

You have got to hand long credit to the scientists. They put everything to some practical use. They harness Niagara Falls, crack atoms and make canaries roar loud enough to frighten cats.

The old way of extracting a fortune from the ocean was to own a hot dog stand in Coney Island. The new way is to mix the sea with a chain of drug stores and shake well before using.

Just as soon as our maritime spy learns the secret code of chemicals we will publish them in confidence.

In the meantime, don't go Klondike and swallow the ocean while surf bathing. We are against hoarding.

Flood Control Prospects

It Is to Be Hoped Mr. Davison Is Right in Thinking Them Improved.

As a result of an investigation made by members of the Mississippi River Commission, George S. Davison, president of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, expresses the opinion that prospects for the construction of flood control reservoirs on the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers are brighter than they were. It is to be hoped so.

The Federal Government has recognized in principle that the reservoirs are desirable and that it is a proper function of government to build them, for it has authorized the construction of such a reservoir on the Tygart River in West Virginia, an affluent of the Monongahela.

But if a thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing properly, and the flood control project will not have been carried out until the Allegheny Valley also has been protected. Moreover, it will take 12 reservoirs to give adequate protection.

It has been Pittsburgh's contention that not only this district but all the states in the Ohio valley, and perhaps to a less extent those in the Mississippi Valley as well, would benefit from storage reservoirs in the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys, consequently that the Federal Government should do the work.

There has been a disposition at Washington to think of it as purely a local project and as one whose benefits would be confined rather narrowly to the Pittsburgh district. But even if that should be so, this district is entitled to generous aid from the Public Works Administration because of the fact that Allegheny County alone has more people than any of a dozen or more states, while Western Pennsylvania is equivalent in its population to a whole block of states.

Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes has admitted that Allegheny County did not get its fair share of the three billion, three hundred million dollars that was allocated for public works. As a matter of fact, we got next to nothing.

We are promised better treatment if Congress grants more money for public works. We should demand not only funds for the completion of the county's road, bridge and tunnel program, but also funds for the flood control project.

It is charged that we failed to receive an adequate grant for flood control out of the three billion, three hundred million because Pittsburgh businessmen and others who would stand to benefit most from flood control failed to work hard enough for the proposed grant. Some of our public men who are supposed to be influential as Washington also failed to rise to the occasion.

As things stand now, it seems they may have another opportunity to see what they can do.

Do Not Vote for Them

Candidates Whose Signs Are Displayed in Violation of the Law Should Be Defeated.

Almost every day of late the Sun-Telegraph has been publishing news items and photographs relating to politicians whose campaign signs are posted along highways on public property in violation of the law or on private property without the owners' consent.

It is difficult to see any excuse for this, since the Civic Club sent each candidate a copy of the law on the subject and asked him to obey it.

Some of the candidates whose dereliction in respect to signs has been called to public attention have stated that the signs were put up by over-zealous friends and have had them removed. Let them be given credit for that.

Notwithstanding the publicity many new signs have gone up.

No one seems disposed to prosecute the offenders. But there is one other way of putting an end to the nuisance which should be no less effective, and that is for the citizens to refuse to vote for candidates whose signs are illegally posted. Neither the candidates themselves nor their over-zealous friends will put up the posters if it means loss of votes.

Let the voters adopt this means of expressing their disapproval, and the time will soon come when it will be possible to hold an election without having trees defaced and the beauty of country roads marred with unsightly signs.

Relief for Landlords

They Cannot Reasonably Be Asked to Provide Free Housing for the Destitute.

To avoid riots such as that which occurred on the North Side last week when a family was evicted for non-payment of rent, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar asks for a court order postponing for 30 days the eviction of 25,000 families on relief for whom the Community Fund is no longer able to supply rent money.

The eviction of 25,000 families, or of 2,500 for that matter, would cause trouble. It is desirable that the trouble be averted. Before the 30 days have elapsed some solution of the problem may have been worked out.

To be fair, the solution must provide relief for landlords as well as destitute tenants. It is wrong for the public to require the owners of houses to provide free shelter for persons unable to pay. Grocers are not required to furnish free food, and physicians are no longer required to provide free medical service. They are paid out of public funds, and landlords, if not allowed to evict tenants who do not pay, should also be recompensed out of public funds.

Landlords have taxes, interest on mortgages, and maintenance charges to meet. They should at least be relieved of those expenses while assuming the community's obligation of providing shelter for the needy.

The Pirates' Chances

The Baseball Outlook Becomes a Subject of Absorbing Interest

The baseball season opens in Pittsburgh today with the Pirates in conflict with the St. Louis Cardinals. And the outlook for the local club ousts, temporarily at least, politics, taxes or Dillinger as the major topic of conversation.

It is a wholesome thing that Pittsburghers, in common with other Americans, can become so absorbed in the national game. Baseball, at its best—and that is the brand that the Pirates furnish—has many admirable qualities. The most important of its good qualities is good sportsmanship. The game cannot be played as the American public wants it to be played except vigorously, honestly and bravely.

In the spring of the year hope is strong. The baseball fans of Pittsburgh speculate on what the Pirates have in store for them. There is concern over the condition of Pie Traynor's ailing right arm; but the fans' predominating feeling is one of confidence that the home team will make an excellent showing.

The Pirates have finished second during the last two years. Will they win the pennant against the serious competition of the Giants, Cubs and Cardinals?

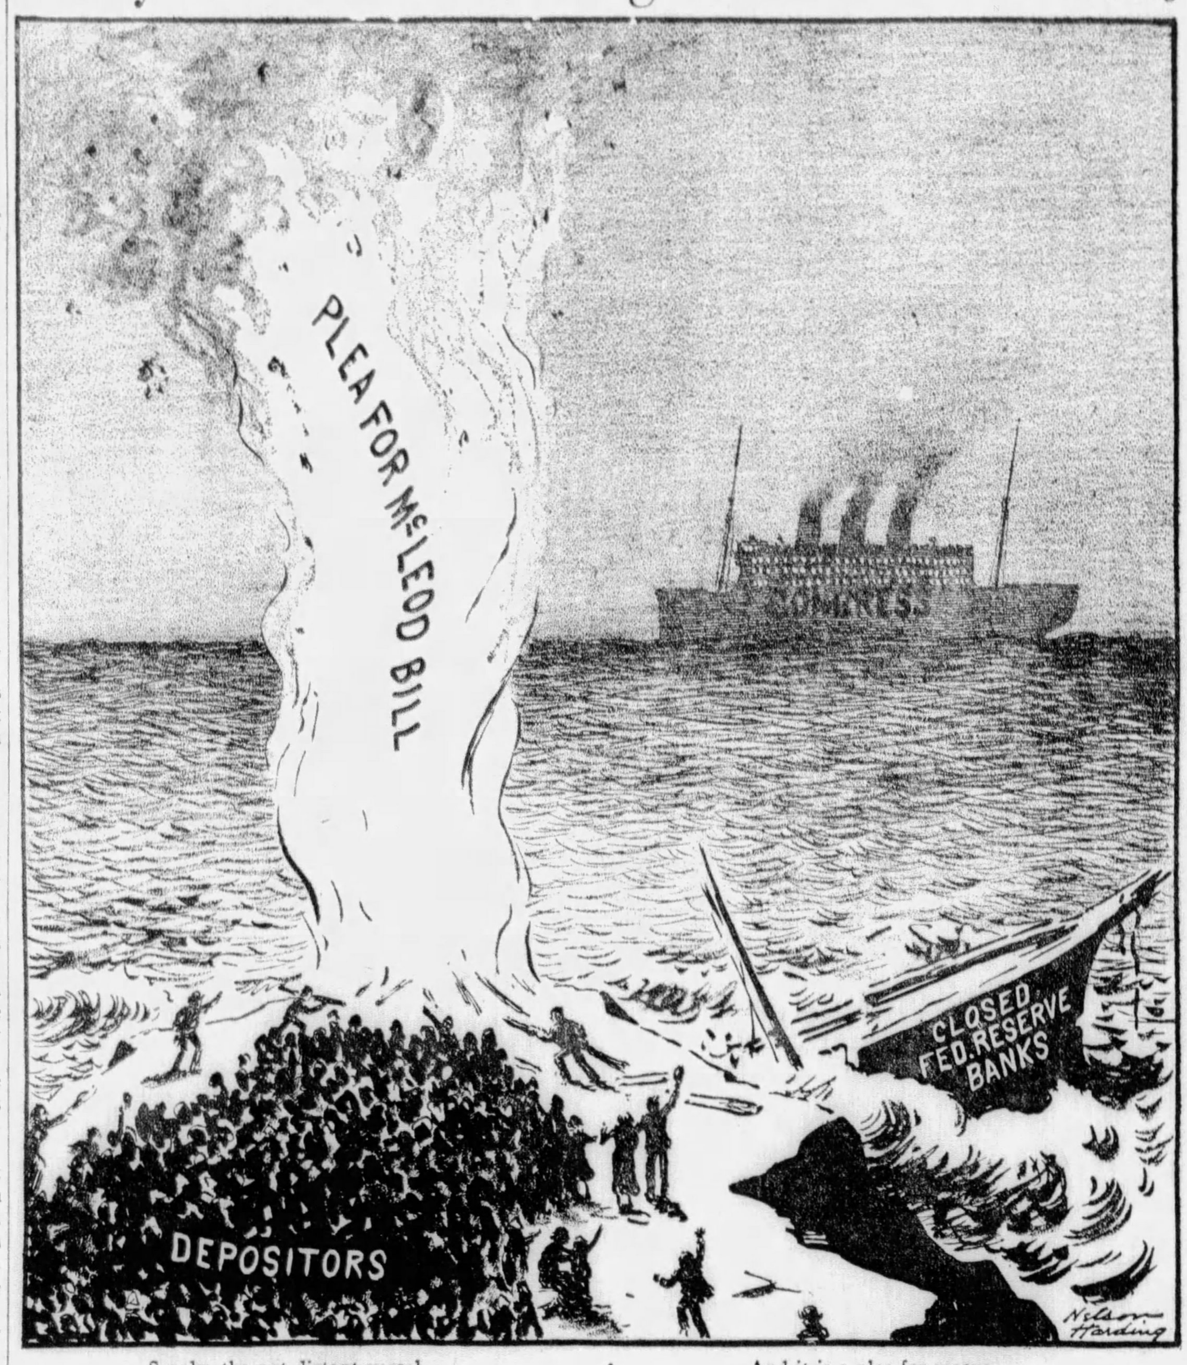
They Must See That Signal! :-: :-:

By Nelson Harding



Surely, the not distant vessel
Must observe that blazing beacon,
Cannot fail to see that signal
Of distress upon the island!

And it is a plea for rescue
By the victims of disaster.
Surely, that great ship will answer,
As the castaways are hoping.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 24.—Libby Holman's plans for a stage comeback, her friends say, include a definite try at more serious draymah than the sinuous moanin' low in dim lights that characterized her career before the crack-up. She is studying earnestly at her country place near New York.

The young Cincinnati matron's chief asset was the tragic husk to her sullen voice. In new flowering she wants to abandon that and register in higher key. So she is not only pursuing dramaturgy in its more sedate branches, but voice culture as well.

When she comes to town, chiefly to see plays, she arrives in her private plane, being an enthusiastic aviatrix, although she has not yet flown alone. At the theater she usually occupies a seat on the aisle far back. And, while she pops out for a cigaret at intermission, does not mingle with the lobby crowd.

Several local producers have angled for her but chiefly for revues, a type of entertainment she is anxious to avoid in her return to the footlights. It is believed that after an intensive period of study, she will go to London for her debut. Noel Coward may clear the way. * * *

Miss Holman's worthy effort may be an exception. But it is a truism of the Rialto that most of the blossoming favor of those caught in the notoriety of the courtroom wilts with the headlines. Psychologists explain it by declaring that no matter how well they act, audience reaction is diverted by speculative curiosity.

James Whittaker is regarded an ace re-write man in the editorial shops of New York and native Chicago. A rolling stone, he rarely remains in one spot long, but wherever he will hang his hat a top salary job is waiting. It was Whittaker who, before his honeymoon had ended with his then wife, Ina Claire, was cast to review a play in which she opened on Broadway. His critique was a classic in genteel excoriation. Few know, however, his real forte is music. He makes arrangements of classical suites for double piano and such and is himself a pianist of concert caliber. But he spurns engagements because he will have to wear full evening dress.

At luncheon the other day I sat a seat removed from one of the professional baby vamps of the amusement world, a downy creature of cloudy sweetness. Her coquetting charms are encompassed largely in a birdy voice, a sort of chirp. Plus, of course, large wondrous eyes demurely cast down. We fell to talking books and I wondered what a baby vamp read in relaxing moments. I rather expected she would be fond of D. H. Lawrence and Haverlock Ellis. Instead she professed to be excited by stories of the sea with special devotion to Melville's "Moby Dick" and Conrad's "Mare Mostrum."

I have always believed there is a snobbish lack of naturalness and frankness in discussing one's literary tastes in public. It so happens that mostly because of the exquisite phrasing (much of the plot and real meaning escape me), I like Shakespeare. But I also like E. Phillips Oppenheim and have read every story he ever published. Yet when bookish topics come up I veer to Shakespeare and vent what knowledge I have of him and his works, with copious quotations. Somehow, and it strikes me as rather snide, I do not mention Oppenheim at all. * * *

There is a tug toward bird feeders in Central Park. Neither wind, snow or rain keeps them from their daily tryst. In some 20 years I have come to know eight, two, incidentally, are elderly white mustached twins. Some pay their visits in the morning, but the majority at sundown. They have their favorite benches and the sparrows, pigeons and squirrels reveal their instincts for awareness by peeping about nearby at least a half hour before the various arrivals. One has a feeling regulars among the bird-feeders are cliffed off somewhere among the Manhattan niches in painful isolation. There is invariably a lonely look in their eyes.

I popped into a lah-de-dah avenue nic nac shop today to look at bill folds—imagine me or anyone having a bill fold! My inferiority sends me into such places; with an awkward assumption of nonchalance. "Something in bill folds," I murmured, plucking a bit of imaginary fluff from my sleeve. They were shown in Lizard, ostrich, seal and alligator with gold and platinum edgings from $35 to $105. Cut-out monogram $10 extra. Finally I blurted: "Mister, you know what?" He looked puzzled. So I finished: "I'm just a snap purse man at heart"—and went into my skeedaddle.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Compulsory Job Service for Young People

Little Billy is born in America. Every year, millions of little Billies are born in America.

Little Billy grows up. Presently, when he gets around to it, or when the family gets around to it, little Billy goes to work. He goes to work at something he likes, if he has his choice. If he hasn't, he works at anything he can get.

Outside of Billy's personal desire—or the ebb and flow of local opportunity—there is no particular plan about Billy's work. Once in a blue moon, Billy starts to work at something unusual—something for which there is a growing demand.

Nine times out of 10, he falls into an overcrowded rut; begins to produce something with which the market is already glutted, so price of the commodity cheapens. The value of Billy's work lessens. Presently, inevitably, there is a slump in Billy's particular market. No one wants what Billy can produce. Billy's out of a job.

When there are enough slumps—when there are enough Billies out of jobs—there's a depression. When the depression spreads too far, lasts too long, there's a heap of trouble—a nation going to the dogs.

THAT'S THE RESULT OF UNPLANNED LIFE . . . UNPLANNED WORK . . . UNPLANNED PRODUCTION AND DEMAND.

For the last five years a bothered and bewildered nation has been wondering if there's any way to escape that. Russia thinks she knows the answer. But we don't like Russia's answer. Italy thinks SHE knows the answer. But we don't like Italy's answer any better than we like Russia's. We still have a hunch that we want to go on being America—a democracy—and giving real American answers. And now a smart old lady down in Florida thinks that she has discovered what a real American answer should be.

Her name is Prestonia Mann Martin. She should know American answers, for she's been circulating around these parts for over 70 years. She remembers the good old days, and she has tusselled with the bad new days. And she believes that the way to lick poverty, and the discouragement, despair, and general messy muddle which go with poverty, is to—

PUT YOUTH TO WORK!

She wouldn't let Billy "just grow" like a young turnip and then go to work if, when, how and where he pleased. She'd make Billy's job a matter of national concern. First, she'd see that Billy had a REAL EDUCATION UNTIL HE WAS 18 . . . PRACTICAL TRAINING IN SOME DEFINITE LINE WHICH NEEDED WORKERS, AND INTO WHICH BILLY WITH HIS PARTICULAR TALENTS, COULD FIT.

THEN, AT EIGHTEEN, SHE'D HAVE BILL CONSCRIPTED!

Yes—actually conscripted by the government. As soldiers in Europe are conscripted. AND MADE TO SERVE A TERM AT SOME JOB UNTIL HE WAS 26—JUST AS EUROPEAN SOLDIERS ARE MADE TO SERVE A TERM IN THE ARMY.

All this to be considered as part of their education, as well as COMPULSORY service to the nation.

No hit or miss work, mind you. "INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATION, UNDER SCIENTIFIC DIRECTION, TO SUPPLY A SUFFICIENCY OF THE NECESSARY GOODS AND SERVICES, WITHOUT BUYING OR SELLING THEM, TO THE ENTIRE POPULACE."

Big words—meaning what? Meaning simply that the young people would do the nation's work—WITHOUT PAY—WITHOUT MARRIAGE—and wise heads would so direct labor and production that there would be no poverty.

Then, after 26? Why, after 26, they could marry; have homes and careers of their own. Go on adventures. Raise their families. Study. Run their nation. BUT ALWAYS THE ROUGH WORK WOULD BE DONE BY THE YOUNGSTERS.

Well—what do you think of it? Do you think THAT would abolish poverty? Regulate our present crazy nightmare of unplanned production and demand?

WOULD IT TURN US FROM A NATION OF DRONES, DRUDGES AND DESPERATE DERELICTS INTO A NATION OF TRAINED, PROUD, SELF-RELIANT CITIZENS?

Mrs. F. D Roosevelt thinks it would. Do YOU?

Sinister Story Taking Shape In Air Mail Inquiry

By James T. Williams, Jr.

AFTER TWO melancholy months the naked body of the truth about an American tragedy, which has turned out to be a national disaster, seems at last to be rising slowly to the surface.

This disaster occurred two months ago when, on February 19, all domestic air mail contracts were suddenly canceled without due process of law.

This cancellation wrecked our federal air mail. It crippled our national air transport. It undermined out national defense. It sapped our international prestige. It sent to a needless death a dozen of the bravest and best military pilots who ever defended the colors of a great nation.

The charges that these contracts were obtained by "collusion and fraud" have yet to be proven.

The contractors alleged to be guilty of this "collusion and fraud" have yet to ge given their day in court.

But evidence is at last being adduced before a special committee of the Senate which shows that a group of air transport companies, without air mail contracts, soon after the November election of 1933, organized into a society to find ways and means of obtaining contracts, which, of course, could only mean cancellation of the existing contracts.

The record of the evidence which Senator Austin, of Vermont, has been developing in the last fortnight abounds in startling revelations.

Campaigned to Get Contracts Canceled

THIS RECORD shows that for many months prior to the cancellation of all domestic air mail contracts on the nineteenth of February last the Postoffice Department was bombarded by the organized operators who had no contracts and by their political sponsors to do what the department finally did—cancel all existing air mail contracts.

The record shows that this sinister and sordid alliance of political spoilsmen and special interests urged upon committees of the Senate and the House and upon individual senators and representatives, as well as upon the Postoffice Department, the cancellation of existing contracts.

The record shows that the special privilege wing of this alliance hired an attorney and kept him busy pressing its scheme at both ends of Constitution avenue.

The record shows that this attorney was not without experience in the Postoffice Department. He had served as one of its officials for twenty-two years—from 1903 to 1925. He was a friend of more than thirty years standing of the candidate for the office of general superintendent of the air mail service who landed that job in the spring of 1933.

This official had previously served as general superintendent, but was stationed at Fort Worth, Texas, as an assistant superintendent when appointed to his present job. This official was appointed from the same state which produced the solicitor of the Postoffice Department, who finally recommended the cancellation of existing contracts.

What the Record Reveals

AS SENATOR AUSTIN has pointed out, the record discloses that the president of this society of non-mail operators and the newly-appointed solicitor of the Postoffice Department "were working together before the Senate Special Investigating Committee."

The record shows that other clients of this attorney of the non-mail operators, who were seeking cancellation that they might bid on new contracts, were also active in the campaign. In fact, one of these clients wrote to this attorney:

"I have bombarded the Postoffice Department with all the national Democratic committeemen, state chairmen, Governors, Congressmen, all Democratic Senators and everyone else in this territory who materially helps keep the Democratic donkey alive."

The record even reveals that the investigator of the so-called Black committee, according to the attorney of the non-mail operators, requested him to obtain from his clients the names of three or four qualified accountants who could assist the committee in its investigative work. But this extraordinary request was never revealed until Senator Austin developed this amazing fact and put it into the record.

In view of these and many other revelations before the so-called Black committee since Senator Austin began the cross-examination of witnesses and the submission of evidence, it is not surprising that patriotic Senators of both political parties are now demanding that this investigation shall continue until the whole sordid story is dragged into the light and written upon the record.

This must be done if the judgment of the Senate, and the verdict of "the great jury of the people" regarding the wrecking of the federal air mail and the national disaster that followed in its wake, are to be arrived at in the light of all the facts obtainable.

Human Side of the News

Col. Edward R. Bradley, Breeder of Racehorses, and the Only Man to Win Three Derbies

By Edwin C. Hill

COL. EDWARD R. BRADLEY, of Kentucky and Palm Beach, is called as a witness before a committee of the United States Senate, a rare experience, indeed, for the master gambler of America, and for one who avoids publicity and public appearance with all of the modesty of the shrinking violet. But a very interesting gentleman, Col. Bradley of old Kentucky, suh. He's 62 now, gray, poker-faced, dignified, reserved, remote; his life something of a mystery in a country where the careers of most rich men are open books. A bit taller than the average height, straight-backed, still minus a waistline, he is a most fastidious dresser and is seldom seen without spats and high, starched collar.

One of the most celebrated breeders of thoroughbreds in the Bluegrass, or in the world, his great farm near Lexington is like a corner of the old South before the Civil War. Col. Bradley is the only man who ever won three Kentucky derbies. He won with Behave Yourself, Bubbling Over, and Burgoo King. The name of every horse he breeds and runs, begins with "B." His swanky gambling house on the Gold Coast at Palm Beach is the most famous gambling resort from Paris to Papeete.

The dizzy heights of its play, the severity of its management, and its survival in this age, combine to project its fame. Bradley, immensely rich, has two great aims in life—to win the Kentucky Derby and to maintain the Beach Club, his Palm Beach palace of chance, without a mutter of scandal. A motion picture magnate screamed one night that h' $300,000 loss at chemin de fer was not solely due to bad luck. Col. Bradley bowed coldly, ordered the cashier to return the gentleman's money, and wished him good evening—permanently.

Entree to the club is not easy to secure. The rich people who flock to Bradley's afternoons and nights in the Palm Beach season are as sensitive as century plants. Many of them are at the head of large business interests. The Beach Club, therefore, is guarded like the White House. One is impressed by the quaint old-fashioned appearance, inside and out, of this swanky house of chance where millionaires buck the tiger and the sky is the limit. It's as rustic as a country church.

Interior Plain To Show Off Frocks

THE HOUSE, itself, is a sprawling, white-painted wooden structure, on a business street of Palm Beach some distance from the beach and the big hotels. Its severely appointed rooms, done in plain green and white, have a sedate, almost pious look. Visitors speak in low voices, even at their gambling. The place might be the unpretentious home of an elderly deacon, or of a maiden lady of irreproachable principles. One wouldn't be surprised to hear the rolling tones of a pipe organ, or a choir chanting a hymn. The whole interior is undistinguished and lacking in the gorgeous decorations of the beautiful Casino of Havana, or the brilliant gambling clubs of the Riviera. But the astute Bradley knows his business. The interior is plain because it best shows off the Paris frocks and the jewels of his feminine patrons. A long hallway in green and white leads to a large room at the rear, where the only works of art are the roulette wheels, noiselessly spinning.

Above stairs are the rooms where the big play is carried on, at night, in the season—the tables for chemin de fer and baccarat. One of these tables, at least, has seen a single individual drop $700,000 in one night's play.

Federal Court Upholds New Deal

ONCE MORE the Federal Court gives the weight of its authority to President Roosevelt's New Deal. A most important decision, as to the constitutionality of the National Recovery Act has been handed down in the Federal Court of New York by John C. Knox, a judge who is known for his forthright opinions.

The case was an obscure one, such as the Dred Scott case and the more recent Rochester load of bread case, which gave the present United States Supreme Court the opportunity to render a verdict on the Roosevelt program. Price fixing, the heart of code making, was the kernel of the case before Judge Knox. The government had marshaled its forces against the Spotless Dollar Cleaners, Inc., a chain organization in New York which was cleaning men's suits for 39 cents and women's dresses for 45 cents.

The prices under the code fixed by the industry are 70 and 75 cents for each of the items. The importance of the case was emphasized by the counsel appearing in it, Martin W. Littleton for the company, and United States Attorney Martin Conboy for the government.

In upholding the government's right to fix prices under the NRA, Judge Knox said:

"The strategy of battle, within the limits of strength, belongs to the authority in command. And who can rightly say with assurance that governmental price-fixing, when confined to transactions in interstate commerce, is not a means reasonably adapted to the legitimate ends which Congress seeks to serve?"

Mr. Conboy viewed the court's opinion as of the utmost importance to the enforcement of the recovery program.
